U.S. Joins In Boycott Of Rhodesian State

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council Saturday called for a worldwide economic boycott against Southern Rhodesia. The United States then announced that President Johnson had ordered rejection of a shipment of 9,500 tons of Rhodesian sugar now in transit from that country.

The announcement was made by U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg shortly after the council adopted a resolution toughening its stand against the rebellious white minority regime in Rhodesia.

The resolution, approved by a vote of 10-0 with only France abstaining, calls on all states "to do their utmost in order to break all economic relations with Southern Rhodesia, including an embargo on oil and petroleum products."

A proposal against recognizing or aiding the breakaway British colony passed the council by the same vote Nov. 12, the day after the declaration of independence.

Goldberg told the council the President acted after learning the 1965 Rhodesian sugar quota of about 9,500 tons was on its way by sea to the United States. The ambassador earlier had announced suspension of any 1966 quota on sugar imports from Rhodesia.

Goldberg said the United States "will continue to consider urgently what other steps we can take to assure that no action is taken which would assist and encourage the illegal regime in Salisbury (Rhodesia)."

He urged the "misguided rebels" in Rhodesia to "heed the voice of the council." He added that "reason can still prevail if the minority will but reconsider their shocking and untenable position."

Home Again

He made it back; that's Sonny Henley, who vacated the area in August for "green pastures" elsewhere, namely New Orleans. Wife and family are fine, he says and the return is temporary. The home trip to the Crescent City is planned this afternoon after a visit with family and friends here and in Ruston.

Nix Named To Replace Whetstone

BATON ROUGE (AP) —The State Board of Education Saturday elected officers for 1966, and laid down a uniform policy for state colleges to seek state appropriations.

Under a new formula adopted, the 10 state colleges under the board would seek $523 million in appropriations for the 1966-67 fiscal year.

Enoch T. Nix of Bossier was named president to succeed W. E. Whetstone of Monroe, in January. J. Marshall Brown, New Orleans, was chosen vice president. Neither had opposition.

Nix, 45, a Louisiana banker and business and industrial leader, is a former teacher and associate county agent who attended Louisiana Tech and received a degree in agriculture from Louisiana State University. He was a Marine Corps fighter pilot in World War II.

These budget requests, along with those of some 300 other state agencies, must be given to the Legislative Budget Committee by Jan. 15.

The colleges received $38.1 million in appropriations for the current fiscal year.

Dr. Vernon Galliane, chairman of the State College Presidents' Council, presented the board the formula the council approved Nov. 3 "for determining budgetary needs of the colleges and universities under the State Board of Education."

He is president of Nicholls State College at Thibodaux.

FIVE-PART PLAN

The five-part formula largely is geared to use of a "student credit hour" to provide a uniform system in which requests are made for state appropriations.

Basically, one teacher will be provided for each 510 student credit hours for the first 60,000, and one for each 600 for those in addition. Exceptions were made in pharmacy, nursing, engineering and music and in graduate programs.

The average salary to be used will be the average for all faculty members at all institutions for the current year, increased by five per cent each year as determined by the Department of Education.

Spending requests will be screened both by the Education Board and the Legislative Budget Committee in advance of the May Legislature, which must approve all appropriations.

Here are the appropriations proposed under the formula for colleges and universities under the education board:

Louisiana Tech $6,482,737, up from 5,125,440 in the current fiscal year.

McNeese State $3,790,913, up from $2,841,786.

Nicholls State $3,084,430, up from $1,919,288.

Northeast State $5,230,525, up from $3,745,979.

Northwestern State $5,820,061, up from $4,076,062.

Southeastern $4,991,938, up from $4,110,303.

University of Southwestern Louisiana $8,895,489, up from $6,364,306.

Grambling $5,203,944, up from $3,404,546.

Southern University, Baton Rouge, $7,121,129, up from $5,378,301.

Southern University, New Orleans, $1,734,280, up from $1,221,791.

Over 10,000 Protest War In Viet Nam

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — More than 10,000 demonstrators against U.S. military action in Viet Nam marched peacefully over a five-mile route into Oakland on Saturday and wound up in a park rally.

As the last column of Viet Nam Day Committee marchers arrived at DeFremery Park in a predominantly Negro neighborhood, the protest took on a picnic atmosphere.

The more than 800 law officers, amassed as a precaution against violence, had little to do but watch.

OLD LEADER

Up front as the marchers converged on the park was Beatrice Whitnah, 84, of Berkeley — a Gold Star mother who lost a son in World War II.

Pushed in a wheelchair, Mrs. Whitnah carried a sign reading: "My Son Died in Vain — Don't Fight, Go to Prison."

Two small boys carried a mock bomb, emblazoned with, "A Gift From the American People."

Marchers occasionally broke the quiet of the procession with the song, "We Ain't Gonna Study War No More."

Spectators, whose number had been noticeably sparse through Berkeley, increased as the march reached the park.

Many families spread out picnic lunches on the park lawns. Demonstrators lounged about on the grass and listened to rally speakers. Leaders shouted anti-Viet Nam war slogans and speeches over a public address system brought along on a truck.

The VDC fell short of mustering the 15,000 marchers it had predicted.

Marchers were met at the Oakland city limit by stern-faced Oakland policemen, who had large nightsticks hanging from their belts. More than 700 policemen, sheriff's deputies and California highway patrolmen lined the parade route.

"We're very pleased with the way this march has progressed," said Lt. Walter Garratt of the Berkeley police. "So far it has been completely orderly."

The streets were a forest of signs and placards as the colorful columns moved from the University of California campus in Berkeley toward Oakland. There were beatniks with beards, girls in sandals, a few barefoot marchers. One woman pushed her infant child in a carriage.

Among the marchers was Assemblyman William F. Stanton, D-San Jose. At a premarch rally on the University campus, Stanton told marchers: "I'm getting d—— sick and tired of people saying you and I are disloyal."

THE VIET NAM Day Committee protest march gets started in nearby Berkeley, Saturday. Police estimated there were 5,000 marchers at the start, but an hour later changed the number to an estimated 10,000. The demonstration was orderly, approved by a federal court order, which over-ruled objections of the Oakland City council which refused to give the committee a parade permit. Early Morning Fog Forecast Considerable early morning fog will hamper the visibility today, according to the U. S. Deather Bureau.

Partly cloudy to cloudy skies today and Monday with a few showers mainly in the afternoons are also predicted for the Twin Cities area.

Temperatures should drop slightly this afternoon, with highs expected to be between 72 and 77 and lows between 54 and 60. Even at this slight drop, things are much warmer in the area than this time last year. The low mercury reading last Nov. 21 was a below-freezing 28 degrees, the first freezing temperature of the season.

Visibility at Selman Field Saturday night remained at 10 miles, in spite of fog conditions in other parts of the area. High Saturday was 77 at about 3 p.m. and the low was 52 degrees shortly after Friday midnight.

Winds today should be southerly at five to 15 miles per hour.

Area Woman Dies After Being Shot

BASTROP (Special) — A Bastrop woman, the mother of four children, died of a gunshot wound about 5 a.m. Saturday at Morehouse General Hospital here.

Mrs. Ervie Lee Sisk, 29, died after her husband's gun discharged about 12:45 a.m. Saturday at their home, striking her in the left side, just under the heart, police said.

Her husband, Elloitt Sisk, 34, was getting ready to go on a hunting trip, he told Bastrop police officers, and did not realize his gun was loaded.

Sisk called state police who took his wife to the hospital. Police said Mrs. Sisk told them while being taken upstairs in the elevator at the hospital that the shooting was an accident.

Bastrop investigating police said the shot came from a close range with a .20 gauge shotgun.

Police took Sisk into custody at the hospital, and later released him to the Morehouse Parish Sheriff's Department. Sheriff's officials said Saturday night that he was being held on open charge, pending further investigation.

City police and the sheriff's office were conducting the investigation. No coroner's report had been released.

The oldest of the couple's children is age 13.

Mrs. Sisk was a native of Jones and was a member of the First Methodist Church of Bastrop.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. today at First National Funeral Home of Bastrop with the Rev. Robert Peyton officiating. Burial will be in Carter Cemetery on Collinston Road.

Surviving are her husband; four children, Nancy Lee, Larry Elliott, Toni Ann and Myrtle Dianne, all of Bastrop; and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Williams of Jones.

U.S. Attempts Food Answers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is seeking answers to a confused food situation in India, including a new grain shortage, and is not ready to sign a long-term agreement with New Delhi.

Instead, U.S. authorities indicated Saturday another short-term authorization for the delivery of 500,000 tons of wheat to India in January will be approved within the next week. Deliveries require about six weeks' advance approval to keep the flow of grain uninterrupted.

Federal Mediators Fail On Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal mediators under urging by President Johnson to settle the strike against a major airplane and spacecraft maker reported some progress Saturday, but not enough to brag about.

The President, who went to his Texas ranch Friday, was reported by White House aides to have talked to Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz about the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists' strike against McDonnell Aircraft Corp.

But the chief federal mediator, William E. Simkin, said, "We do not expect any White House intervention" even though the tie-up has threatened to delay a Gemini manned space flight set for Dec. 4.

The strike started at midnight Thursday and the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service convened talks here Friday with the White House, the Defense Department and other government agencies urging a quick settlement.

Simkin told newsmen a long negotiating session Friday night between representatives of the company and the machinists made "some progress, but I would not underline it as enough progress to brag about."

The negotiations continued Saturday with federal mediators meeting both sides, jointly and separately. Indications were sessions would continue through the weekend if no agreement is reached.

Spokesmen for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said at Cape Kennedy, Fla., that if the strike is not ended this weekend they probably will have to postpone launching of Gemini 7 scheduled for Dec. 4.

Ike Explains He's 'Fine, Fine'

FT. GORDON, Ga. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower had his first outing Saturday since his heart attack Nov. 9 and he flashed his electric grin and said he is feeling "fine, fine."

He rather looked it, too, even though he was a bit peaked from his 12 days in the hospital. And he said his physicians are going to get an argument if they tell him he can play no more golf.

Monday the doctors are taking him to Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington, to continue his recovery.

With Mrs. Eisenhower by his side, the 75-year-old five-star general was rolled in a wheelchair onto the porch of his hospital suite. He was dressed in a sky blue robe, with his legs covered by a white blanket.

Lighting Contest Gets Endorsement

More than half of those who entered Christmas Home Lighting Contest co-sponsored by the City of Monroe and the News-Star—World Publishing Corp., have indicated they plan to enter the competition again.

Approximately 150 persons were officially entered in last year's lighting contest, and it is expected by contest officials that more than this number will enter this year's Yule event.

Reporting on the number of entries this week, Monroe Chamber of Commerce president Howard Griffin said, "I'm very happy the city and the newspaper are again sponsoring this contest."

"I would urge everyone who can to take part in this contest," Griffin continued. "Last year it certainly sparked a new interest in decorating and resulted in a wide variety of attractive Christmas scenes. The contest created friendly, competitive spirit as well as an interesting and enjoyable city. I think the added decorations are in keeping with our celebration of Christmas. This was a real success last year and I look for a more enthusiastic participation and a brighter Christmas season this year."

Top winners in 12 city districts will win $100 each and one grand prize sweepstake winner will earn an additional $150. This represents 1,350 in cash prizes for winners in the 1965 lighting contest.

Those who wish to add their names to the list of participating decorators should notify contest officials at the Monroe Chamber of Commerce. An entry blank will be published during the next week for the convenience of those wishing to enter.

B52's Slam Valley With Bomb Loads

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Allied pincer movements drew blood Saturday on flanks of the North Vietnamese regulars in the Ia Drang Valley. U. S. B52 jets again bombed their center.

Fresh South Vietnamese paratroopers took on a Communist detachment in a three-hour fight at the western edge of the valley and were reported to have counted 188 enemy dead after contact was broken at dusk. A spokesman said paratroop losses were light.

BUSY WEEK

From the other side, men of the U.S. 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division rounded out a week in the biggest battle of the war with sweeping operations against sniper fire that the spokesman said was light.

Striving to wipe out suspected supply and regroupment centers, B52s dumped dozens of 750-pound bombs on two areas just south of Chu Prong Mountain, a Communist strongpoint in the first three days of the battle.

A half-dozen clashes dotted the countryside elsewhere, most of them involving the old struggle between government troops and the Viet Cong.

As outlined by briefing officers:

Red guerrilla forces inflicted heavy losses on two militia detachments in the central highlands, overrunning one company and striking at a platoon a few miles away. They also blew up a bridge on a highway in the north.

Government forces, however, killed 175 Viet Cong in four actions ranging from points 185 miles southwest to 300 miles north of Saigon.

In addition, Vietnamese sources said two government battalions that recovered the district headquarters of Hiep Duc from the guerrillas Thursday had killed 93. U.S. advisers in that area, 350 miles northeast of Saigon, said the body count totaled 38.

A U.S. Marine spokesman in Da Nang, 380 miles northeast of Saigon, said Marine artillery killed eight Viet Cong.

At the same time the spokesman reported the explosion that ripped into a Marine ambush in the Chu Lai sector Tuesday came from an enemy mine and not a short round of friendly artillery, as originally announced. The blast killed two Marines and wounded 13.

A U.S. spokesman said one routine air strike was made on North Viet Nam. Poor flying weather was reported above the 17th Parallel.

American forces are being quietly built up in the wake of intelligence reports of a rise in North Vietnamese infiltration via the Ho Chi Minh trail.

A military spokesman said 165,700 U.S. military personnel are now on duty in Viet Nam. The Army tops the list with 101,000. Reinforcements in coming weeks are expected to push the over-all total to 200,000.

High American circles in Saigon express belief Hanoi is preparing four to six new divisions — roughly 40,000 to 60,000 men — to be thrown into the war within six months.

21 Killed

RAWALPINDI, Pakistan (AP) — A government spokesman said Saturday 21 Indian soldiers were killed in the latest clashes on the cease- fire line, 17 in an action near the Sadhewal sector of Rajishthan in southwest Pakistan, in the Poonch and Nikial area of Kashmir and in the Fazilka sector 200 miles east of Rawalpindi.

Pakistan troops suffered four casualties in Rajisthan, the spokesman added.

Bad Name

BELO HORIZONTE, Brazil (AP) — Justice Joao Gabriel Starling has rejected a petition by student Churchill de Gaulle Lougou Moulin to change his "ridiculous name." He asked to have De Gaulle deleted from his name because it had made him a laughing stock for years.

Judge Starling, in his ruling Friday, said "The French president is a hero and a great statesman who deserves all our respect."

State Teachers Hold Convention In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Louisiana Teachers Association (LTA) opens its 71st annual four-day convention here today with more than 8,000 teachers and administrators expected to attend.

Convention business gets under way officially Monday when the 380-member House of Delegates will be called to order by LTA President Joseph J. Martina of Harvey.

The first general session will be held Monday night with M. E. Wright of Port Sulphur, unopposed candidate for LTA president, serving as chairman.

State Supt. William J. Dodd will address the second general session.

A number of banquets and other social events are scheduled today. Former Oklahoma coach Charles (Bud) Wilkinson, president of Lifetime Sports Foundation, will address the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Department.

No contests developed for LTA offices. Wright will be president for the next year, with Mrs. Mildred McCormick, Shreveport, as vice president.

Simple Services Held For Former VP

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — A simple, quiet and brief funeral service was conducted in this peaceful New England village Saturday for Henry A. Wallace.

Its humbleness was emphasized by the absence of a eulogy for the Iowa-born farmer who served his nation as a Cabinet member and vice president and ran for president. He died Thursday at the age of 77.

"And though this body be destroyed," said the Rev. Aaron Manderbach, reading from the Episcopal Book of Common Prayer, "yet shall I see God."

The congregation of 300 participated with him in the reading of a psalm.

John Gardner, secretary of health, education and welfare, brought a red, white and blue floral wreath and a personal expression of sympathy from President Johnson to the family. Also attending the service in St. Stephen's church was James A. Farley, postmaster general in the original Cabinet of President Franklin D. Roosevelt where Wallace served as secretary of agriculture.

His pall bearers were six vestrymen of this Episcopal church where Wallace had worshipped in his 15 years of retirement.

So quietly had he dwelled on his South Salem, N.Y., farm four miles from here that his name was not recognized by a group of teen-agers standing across the street from the church. "Who was he?" one asked.

Consisting mostly of psalms, the service lasted less than 20 minutes. Wallace's widow, brothers and sisters, and children were composed throughout. The family has been unable to contact one son, Robert B. Wallace, somewhere in Egypt to tell him of the death a spokesman said.

In a plain casket, the body then was borne to Bridgeport, Conn., for cremation at the Mountain Grove Cemetery. Wallace's ashes then will be returned to his native soil for interment Tuesday at Woodland Cemetery in Des Moines.

HILLSIDE, N.J. (UPI)— Oops! Another computer went berserk.

One hundred homeowners here rubbed their eyes in amazement when they received their water bills. Each bill was for $2,442—an over charge of $2,435.

The Elizabethtown Water Co. said letters of apology were in the mail Saturday explaining "gremlins" had upset their computer. The homeowners were assured proper bills soon would be on the way.

Students Contribute Big Thanksgiving

EL TORO, Calif. (AP) — A Marine Corps cargo plane left Saturday with 1,700 boxes of Thanksgiving goodies collected by Southern California college students for U.S. fighting men in Viet Nam.

Typical contents of each carton included: one can each of tuna. Vienna sausage, tomato juice, fruit juice, fruit, vegetables and shoestring potatoes; popcorn confection, chewing gum, candy, peanuts, soft-drink mix, sunflower seeds, bouillon cubes, honey, mustard, raisins, salt, pepper, playing cards, razor blades, envelopes, writing tablet.

"And flavored toothpicks just for novelty," added Dave Balsiger, Pepperdine College student and co-sparkplug of the project.

Keyed to Thanksgiving, it's called "Operation Thanks." Balsiger, 19, says he and fellow student Mike Maier, 22, got the idea when they heard of draft-card burnings and anti-Viet Nam demonstrations several months ago.

They wrote a letter of support for the troops which some 2,600 students now have signed, making it about 45 feet long.

The letter — to be airmailed Monday to Lt. Gen. Victor H. Krulak, commanding general, Fleet Marine Force, Pacific, in Hawaii — says in part: "At this historical season of Thanksgiving, we wish to record our individual gratitude to you and attest this expression with tokens of appreciation. May the blessings of the Almighty protect you and return you safely to this land of freedom and promise."

Each student who signed donated 50 cents or more to buy the goodies —a total of about $1,-500. Food distributors contributed case lots of some items.

From Pepperdine in Los Angeles the project spread to 11 other area campuses.

Students cars and a U.S. Marine truck hauled the boxed treats this week to El Toro Marine Corps Air Station, 30 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

A delegation of students had hoped to go along to present the goodies personally to the troops. Washington officials were sympathetic but said travel space was to limited.

The cargo plane, a KC130 Hercules, stops first in Hawaii, the heads for Wake Island, Guam; Iwakuni, Japan; Okinawa and Da Nang, South Viet Nam.

Its 11,642-pound "Operation Thanks" load includes about 3,-500 items of clothing collected by students, much of it unclaimed garments donated by dry cleaners, for impoverished residents of a South Viet Nam village.

In each of the boxes of goodies for troops is the name and address of a student who contributed.

New Advisory Officers Are Reported Here

The Salvation Army here Saturday announced the election of advisory board officers to serve for the coming year. Two new names were added to the advisory board.

The officers, re - elected, Fred Brownlee, chairman; Roy Brooks, first vice chairman; James Daniel, second vice chairman and Hugh Balfour, treasurer. Herbert Walker was named secretary, replacing Mrs. Anna Mae Sartor.

New members added to the board were W. F. Bragg, who replaces his predecessor Homer Tillery, transferred, and William Husted Jr., who will fill a three - year term replacing Fred Petty.

Capt. Ronald C. Greene, commanding officer, said the following persons now serve on the board: Travis Wood, Rabbi Sylvan Wolf, Don Weil, Herbert Walker, W. F. Bragg, Louis D. Smith, Mrs. S. D. Shlosman, Mrs. Anna Mae Sartor, Frank McDermott, Vernon McCoy, Marcus Mapp, Albin P. Lassiter, Irvin Kilpatrick, J. F. Heimgartner, Bert Hatten, J. L. Hales, Bailey Grant, Harry Arthur Genung, Sam Futrell, William Fleming, James Daniel, Mal Cooley, Fred G. Brownlee, Roy Brooks, Hugh Balfour and William Husted Jr.

S. K. Heninger and H. M. James serve as life members.

Pilot Thinking Of Home, Family As Death Nears

PEARSON, Okla. (AP) — A pilot, apparently disoriented by heavy fog, scribbled a note to his wife Saturday shortly before his plane buried its nose in a field two miles southwest of this central Oklahoma community.

Alan Duncan Dean, 43, of Lawrence, Kan., was killed in the crash.

Oklahoma police said Dean apparently was attempting to get under the cloud and fog cover when he crashed.

Dean wrote a note on the back of a bundle of checks. It was addressed to Rose and read in part, "If I have to die I want you to know I love you and Alan, Alex and Mary."

The wreckage was discovered by a motorist in a field about 15 feet from the road.

Dean had spent the night in Denton, Tex., and apparently was on his way back to Lawrence when the crash occurred.

Britton Funeral Slated Monday

Funeral for Breard E. Britton, 80, West Monroe Negro who died at his home Thursday morning, will be at 11 a.m. Monday at Jerusalem Baptist Church.

A lifelong resident of Ouachita Parish, he was a deacon of the Jerusalem Baptist Church and a Master Mason. He was largely responsible for the founding of "Camp Albert Britton," a camp of the Ouachita Valley Council of the Boys Scouts of America, named for his father.

Burial will be in Jerusalem Cemetery by Miller's Funeral Home of Monroe.

Survivors include his widow; four sons, Daniel and Launcie Lee Britton, both of Kansas City, Mo., Breard Britton Jr., and Robert Britton, both of West Monroe; five daughters, Mrs. Pauline Britton and Mrs. Gladys Williams of Oakland, Calif., Mrs. Mary J. Hollar of New York, N. SOMETIME ABOUT the turn of the century, local photographer E. W. Mealy, took this picture of the ruins of a fire which gutted a large portion of the town. No historians have the event recorded, so far as the Morning World has been able to determine, but legend has it that a local man, mad at his wife, set fire to their store. This fire caught half the buildings in town afire and lawsuit threats were numerous. Records in the Ouachita Parish Clerk of Court did not reveal any actual lawsuits filed because of this incident, however. The photo pictures Grand Street, looking northwest after the great fire. The picture is the property of Mulhearn Funeral Home.

Red Lawyers Work On Court Appeals

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Communist Party, convicted anew for failing to register with the government, began work Saturday on an appeal some government lawyers predicted would win a reversal.

A Federal District Court jury found the Communist Party guilty Friday night of violating the 1950 Internal Security Act. This was the party's second conviction under the controversial law. Judge William B. Jones fined the party $230,000, the maximum penalty.

Lawyers for the party said they would carry their case to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals within the next 10 days. The move would provide a vehicle for a new test of the 1950 subversive control act, which already has been struck down in part by the Supreme Court.

The party's first conviction under the law was in 1962. This later was reversed on grounds the government failed to show there were volunteers ready to register the party.

In the second trial, the government tried to prove there were volunteers in the party who would have registered, if they were asked.

The government's witnesses included two FBI informants who testified that they would have been willing to do the job.

But the party leaders were optimistic about their appeal. Gus Hall, spokesman for the party, said the verdict was just another chapter in the "longest and weirdest political persecution in our history." He said he expected the higher courts to reverse the conviction.

Belle Terre . . . .
BEAUTIFUL GROUND
No matter how beautiful, every new subdivision requires a little priming — special inducements to get the ball rolling. BELLE TERRE has some of the most desirable homesites anywhere in Monroe. Nestled in the triangle formed by Loop Road, Sterlington Road and beautiful Bayou DeSiard, it is artfully laid out, carefully engineered with underground utilities and set apart from the surroundings by a handsome brick wall of English garden type. Some lots are on the Bayou, and all have access to it. One or two bayou lots and a few of the others can now be bought at "primer" prices — prices that are real bargains for the early buyers. If you have the daring to be among the leaders of the elite group that will occupy this prestige section, act promptly. Reap the twin rewards — Selection and Savings. We'll be glad to show you the lots — show you the prices. Phone at your first convenience.

DR. B. F. COOPER JR.

Cooper Named Dean Of Pharmacy At NLSC

Dr. Benjamin F. Cooper Jr., professor of pharmacy at the University of Georgia, has been appointed dean of the School of Pharmacy at Northeast Louisiana State College.

The appointment of Dr. Cooper, 41, was approved Saturday morning by the State Board of Education in Baton Rouge and announced by Dr. George T. Walker, Northeast president.

"The profession of pharmacy in Louisiana deserves the best leadership for the School of Pharmacy and I am confident Dr. Cooper will do outstanding work as dean," Dr. Walker said in announcing Dr. Cooper's appointment.

Dr. Cooper will assume his new post Feb. 1, 1966. He succeeds Dr. Dale Cronk, who has been serving as acting dean of the School since the resignation of Ralph W. Wilson last summer because of health reasons. Wilson remains on the College faculty as professor of pharmacy and Dr. Cronk will continue as associate professor of pharmacy.

"We appreciate the fine contributions Mr. Wilson and Dr. Cronk have made to the College," said Dr. Walker," and we are happy to have men of their caliber on our faculty."

A native of North Carolina, Dr. Cooper received his doctor's degree in pharmacy from the University of North Carolina.

He served on the faculties of the University of North Carolina and Oregon State University as well as Georgia. He joined the Georgia faculty in 1961 as associate professor and was promoted to full professor this year.

Dr. Cooper served as an officer in the U. S. Navy during World War II and the Korean Conflict.

He received the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy Student Body Award in 1950, served as Visiting Scientist with the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy in 1964-65, was named the "Outstanding Teacher" in the Georgia School of Pharmacy earlier this year, and has received several other professional honors and awards.

Dr. Cooper has served as officer and on numerous committees of national, state and local professional organizations. He is currently secretary-treasurer of the American Pharmaceutical Association's Section of Pharmacy Teachers and has served on the national executive committee of Rho Chi Society and as chairman of the resolutions committee of the American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy Conference of Teachers.

The new Northeast dean has contributed chapters to three books and written more than 20 articles for pharmaceutical journals and other publications.

He is married and the father of three children, a son, age 10, and twin daughters, age 4. He is Sunday School superintendent and chairman of the Board of Deacons of Green Acres Baptist Church in Athens, Ga.

Northeast State's School of Pharmacy, although the youngest in the nation, ranked in a tie as the 15th largest school in undergraduate enrollment last year. Established in 1956, the School has 611 students enrolled this year, an increase of 146 over last year.

There are now more students in the final three years of pharmacy training at Northeast than there were at both Northeast and the School of Pharmacy at Loyola of New Orleans last fall. Last fall Northeast and Loyola had a combined pharmacy enrollment of 289, compared to 328 now in the final three years of pharmacy at Northeast State. Loyola discontinued its School of Pharmacy last spring.

Convention Hall

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Ground was broken this week for a $1 million privately-owned convention center and auditorium just north of downtown Baton Rouge and the state capital. City - parish president W. W. Dumas turned the first spade.

The auditorium, to be completed in 1966, will seat 4,000 persons theatre-style and can be converted to seat 2,5-banquet style. An 80-foot stage, theatrical lighting and acoustical treatment, coaxial cable connections, a domed roof, a food service area, a paved parking lot to serve 700 cars and a heliport to serve air travelers.

Owner of the new convention hall is Wilson F. Abraham, who said he believes the auditorium will become a show center of the south.

Pickets Foiled In Strike At Cape Kennedy

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—Out-of-town technicians Saturday temporarily replaced striking spacecraft workers and kept preparations moving toward the opening of a twin launch Gemini spectacular in two weeks.

Project officials brought in 43 supervisory personnel from the strike-idled McDonnell Aircraft Corp. plant in St. Louis, Mo., to keep Gemini 7 testing on schedule for at least several more days.

With Gemini 7 astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell scheduled to begin their 14-day flight Dec. 4, any lengthy check-out delays would postpone the blastoff. The launch of Gemini 6 rendezvous pilots Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford follows Gemini 7 by nine days.

The salaried technicians from St. Louis were filling the key gaps left by the walkout of more of 215 of McDonnell's hourly-paid workers represented by the International Association of Machinists (AFL-CIO) at the launch site.

"We don't want to go all the way to Dec. 4 in this manner," said a spokesman for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), "but we can go for several days."

NASA officials were hoping that a quick contract settlement could be reached by McDonnell and IAM officials meeting with federal mediators in Washington so a delay with the Gemini launches could be avoided.

William Simkin, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, joined negotiations Saturday. He said the White House has expressed concern about the tieup "but we do not expect any White House intervention."

Saturday's check-out program included a crucial test of the vital fuel cell electrical supply system aboard the capsule. The time-consuming fuel cell work required technicians.

NASA said the fuel cell tests were expected to continue into today. If any problems were encountered, the Gemini doubleheader would probably be delayed.

The two - week courses will contain about 80 hours of classroom and laboratory instruction in using X - rays to test welds and castings in a wide variety of metals.

Racial Injustice

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Rep. Prentiss Walker, R-Miss., said Saturday President Johnson's charge of "injustices to Negroes at the hands of all-white juries" was "a mere excuse to extend the meddling of hand of the federal government into the sacred institution of our jury system."

Walker then cited a recent case in his own fourth congressional district in which a Mississippi Negro plaintiff recovered a verdict of $50,000 for personal injuries from an all-white jury.

Accident Near El Dorado Kills One, Hurts One

EL DORADO, Ark. (Special) — One person was killed and another was injured in a car-truck collision one mile west of El Dorado on Ark. Hwy. #5 at 3:30 p.m. Saturday.

Dead is Joe Langford, 66, a Crossett, Ark., Negro, who was a passenger in an auto driven by Lula Mae Jones, 39, also a Crossett Negro. The Jones woman was admitted to Warner Brown Hospital at El Dorado with possible internal injuries.

George Porter, 36, of Decatur, Ga., driver of the trailer-truck, was not injured.

Investigating officers said the accident occurred when the Jones car pulled onto the highway from a side road.

This was the seventh traffic fatality in Union County in November.

Street Fire

A frantic caller reached West Monroe alarm headquarters shortly after 10 p.m. Saturday night, saying "Sandal Street is on fire!"

Trucks reaching the scene found the "blaze" already out. Firemen surmised that someone had spilled or poured gasoline on the road and it had ignited.

Foggy Weather

Talk about foggy—reports says it was so foggy in north Louisiana Friday night that observers in the pressbox at Shreveport found it difficult to make out the players in the Ouachita - Airline football game.

It wasn't much better in the Wisner - Crowville game at Crowville, and traffic was slowed to a crawl in the Twin Cities.

Austrians Give Honor To Late U.S. President

VIENNA (UPI) — Austrain soldiers and civilians honored the memory of the late President John F. Kennedy Saturday with a 50-mile memorial march.

About 95 soldiers and numerous civilians participated in the two-way hike. Scores of others joined the marchers for part of the way.

The group left the Austrain military barracks at Klosterneuburg near Vienna Friday and were to reach Mautern near Krems in the well known wine-growing region of Wachau late Saturday.

Kennedy and his wife Jacqueline made a deep impression on the people of this small neutral country when they came here in June, 1961, for Kennedy's summit conference with then Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

The Austrians remember Kennedy not only as an outstanding statesman but also as a strong advocate of sports programs.

Police Action Taken By Smith

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — The homes and offices of university faculty members who signed ananti-independence statement have been raided and searched by police, university informants said Saturday.

Police refused to comment on the report.

The statement denounced the government of Prime Minister Ian D. Smith as illegal and said 46 members of the staff of the University of Rhodesia and Nyasaland who signed it refuse to recognize it as Rhodesia's government.

The university has a faculty of 123. Last week 400 of the university's 550 full-time students signed a statement expressing loyalty to the British governor, Sir Humphrey Gibbs. Smith has deposed Gibbs but Britain still recognizes him as Rhodesia's chief authority.

The informants said plainclothes policemen entered the homes and offices of the faculty members Friday night and Saturday in search of the original copy of the statement. But they failed to find it. The informants said it was smuggled out of the university and was being sent to the Times of London. The police seized 20 unsigned copies of the statement, however.

The statement said:

"We, the undersigned teaching members of the University College of Rhodesia, wish publicly to affirm that we do not recognize or accept the present illegal regime of the former prime minister, Mr. Ian Smith."

The signatures then followed.

The name of the university is now in the process of being changed to the University of Rhodesia. Nyasaland formerly was linked to Rhodesia in the old Central African Federation.

Among the 46 who were said to have signed the document were British, Rhodesian, American and South African teachers.

Smith's white government declared Rhodesia independent on Nov. 11. The British government declared the act illegal.

The university raids were said to have followed a tip to police from an informant at the university. Many of the science faculty support the Smith government while the arts faculty generally supports the governor.

University sources emphasized the document sought by police contained a private expression of some members of the teaching staff and was not an official university statement. No students were involved in its preparation or signed it.

Race 'Inverse' Said At CBS Broadcasting

CHICAGO (AP) — A white musican for the Columbia Broadcasting System who said he was fired in "inverse discrimination" to make room for a Negro replacement had his job back Saturday.

The Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission ordered Robert Fahsbender, and not the FEPC, restored Fahsbender's job. He said Fahsbender, who plays a string bass, was rehired weeks ago to fill a vacancy in the orchestra resulting from the resignation of another white musician.

Fahsbender complained to the FEPC on Feb. 4 that CBS dismissed him and three other white musicians on Oct. 11, 1964, and replaced them with four Negro musicians. The other three white musicians subsequently were rehired.

Fahsbender contended he was the victim of "inverse discrimination," being replaced by a Negro musican "for the purpose of filling a quota or integrating their (CBS's) staff."

The FEPC on Aug. 3 asked CBS to rehire Fahsbender, but a network spokesman said then that Fahsbender had only seven months of prior service and had no claims for job tenure under the agreement with Local 10, American Federation of Musicians.

The commission order stated that Fahsbender was restored to his job as of Oct. 3 and would keep his job at least for the duration of the union's contract which expires next June 30. The FEPC said it would retain jurisdiction for 18 months beyond the date Fahsbender filed his complaint.

Fitts said Fahsbender had been let out when merging of segregated Chicago locals of the AFL-CIO musicians federation allowed CBS to hire Negro musicians.

He said the CBS contract had been with an all-white AFM local, hence the orchestra had been white. After the locals merged 18 months ago to two years ago, Fitts added, CBS believed it wrong to have an all-white orchestra in a city such as Chicago.

Richland Parish Slates Another I-20 Hearing

RAYVILLE (Special) — Richland Parish residents will gather once more Tuesday night to protest the lack of service roads on the proposed Interstate-20 through their area.

A public hearing has been set for 7:30 p.m. at the courthouse by the police jury, with all residents with problems urged to attend.

Rep. Benny Christian will be on hand to help present the case of the local landowners. He said that the drainage plans have been altered and a third fee appraiser has been employed, taking care of two of the three Richland Parish complaints.

The property owners are seeking access to their land that will not be provided by the highway as it is presently designed. Christian said that I-20 will leave 18 dead-end roads in his parish.

James W. Moore, Fifth District highway commissioner, and A. A. Braddock, district highway engineer, have been invited to the session.

Moore said he will bring one or two engineers from Baton Rouge with him and will try to supply Richland residents with an "up-to-date" report on I-20 plans.

2 At Northeast To Participate In Orleans Meet

Two Northeast Louisiana State College pharmacy professors will play an active role in preparation for the 41st annual joint meeting of District Six of the National Association of Boards of Pharmacy and American Association of Colleges of Pharmacy meeting to be held at New Orleans next year.

Dr. Dale Cronk, was chosen to serve as co-chairman of the 6-state meeting with the president of the Louisiana State Board of Pharmacy, Redfield Bryan of Baton Rouge. Dr. August G. Danti, also of Northeast, has been named to the convention program committee.

Announcements of the selections were made at the groups' annual meeting at St. Louis recently.

Prof. Danti was among those appearing on the program at St. Louis. He delivered a paper on "Is the 'Practical Examination' Practical?" In his report, Dr. Danti dealt with the status of the laboratory "practical" examination presently employed to evaluate prospective pharmacy licensees. He expressed an affirmative attitude toward the laboratory examinations, but cautioned such tests should be kept current in content, embracing rapidly changing knowledge and procedures.

In addition to Dean Cronk and Dr. Danti, members of the NLSC pharmacy faculty attending the meeting were Drs. Joe Kern and Theodore Eickholt.

Conference participants attended from Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas.

'He Must Have Blown A Cork'--Mom

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — "He must have blown a cork. I hope a psychiatrist can tell us," Mrs. William Glen Robinson says of her 16-year-old son, a model student who blazed away with two pistols aboard a jetliner over the Gulf of Mexico.

The youth, Thomas Robinson, has been charged in New Orleans with attempting to commandere a National Airlines DC8 with 91 passengers aboard Wednesday.

His parents and teachers were stunned. His principal, Arnulfo Oliveira, said when he heard about it he thought it was a hoax.

"I've got five sons, and I'd like each one of them to be like Tommy," he said. "I simply can't explain it."

His mother said in an interview she felt only a psychiatrist could unlock the youth's mind.

She said, "he was tired of school, overworked — but that's too simple, that's not the answer.

"He must have blown a cork. "I simply don't know."

Mrs. Robinson described her son as a boy looking for knowledge like most teen-agers seek a good time.

For instance:

He had never missed a day of school until Wednesday when he boarded a Florida-bound national Airlines plane at New Orleans, whipped two pistols from under a newspaper and fired several shots harmlessly into the plane's floor before he was subdued by a passenger.

Since the sixth grade, he has gone to school 12 months a year, cramming six to eight hours of study each night before going to bed about midnight and bouncing up at six o'clock the next morning for the same unrelenting routine.

Even in his hobbies — stamp and coin collecting and rock polishing — he seldom relaxed, working to be a little better than others his age. "He was super-conscientious," said Mrs. Robinson, "I told him to take a rest, but he wouldn't.

"Tommy was not the type to go out and sit at the drive-in sipping malts," said Oliveira. "He was not about to waste the time."

"He was not an intellectual snob. He was cheerful and well-adjusted. The day before he tried to take the plane he talked and joked just as usual," said his debate teacher Jack Burnett. "Although he might differ with someone in class, he never took the attitude he knew more, although he probably did."

An "A" student with a 96 average, Robinson was in position to graduate a full year ahead of his class.

His favorite pastime was keeping up with current events, and he often read and clipped newspaper editorials, occasionally writing a letter to the editor. He called himself an anti-Communist, spoke proudly of his patriotism, and could not understand apathy toward a dictatorship. He told FBI agents he wanted to go to Cuba to protest the treatment of anti-Castro political prisoners.

"He felt the Cuban people were uninformed and exploited by dictatorship," said Burnett. "He said he didn't think they were aware of their own plight or they would not tolerate Castro."

The elder Robinson, a mathematics teacher at Southmost College in Brownsville, said he supposed his son felt if he didn't "make some form of protest he would lose his self-respect."

YACHT AGROUND

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — The Neophyte Too, the pleasure yacht of American Lee Quinn which is manned by an all-girl crew, was reported aground Saturday off the holiday resort of Green Island.

Officials said the craft was in no danger of sinking.

ERHARD HAS GRIPPE

BONN (UPI) — Chancellor Ludwig Erhard was confined to his bed for the weekend with what a government spokesman called "a mild grippe." The spokesman said Erhard should be back at his desk Monday.

There's Seldom Anything Certain About Tiny Laos

By ROBERT LIU

VIENTAINE, Laos (AP) — Foreigners joke that the only thing certain about Laos is that it is a landlocked nation.

Everything else isn't true — even if you see it.

But as the war continues in Viet Nam, there is a growing belief that this tropical kingdom is heading toward deeper involvement.

Laos already is involved in the Viet Nam war, due largely to geography.

A rolling, river-rent nation twice the size of Pennsylvania, Laos borders Red China, North Viet Nam, South Viet Nam, Cambodia, Thailand and Burma.

Across its 800-mile border with Communist Viet Nam and down Communist-held eastern Laos runs the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

North Viet Nam is using the trail, a network of roads, cowpaths and mountain passes, to send supplies and reinforcements to the Viet Cong in South Viet Nam.

U.S. and Laotian pilots bomb and strafe the trail but spotting supply carriers through jungle foliage is difficult. There are indications the raids have succeeded only in slowing the flow of supplies.

Some officials believe the supply line can be choked off only by ground troops. This would bring Laos openly in the Viet Nam conflict and raise questions about its neutrality.

The United States began flying over the trail in the summer of 1964 when the pro-Communist Pathet Lao, aided by North Vietnamese, swept government forces off the strategic Plain of Jars in central Laos.

At that time, Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma asked the United States to fly reconnaissance missions to pinpoint the Vietnamese supply lines for Laotian fighter pilots to attack.

Everything went well until two U.S. planes were shot down. Washington then had to decide whether to retaliate or pull out.

There were fears that U.S. military intervention would jeopardize Souvanna's neutralist status. But there also were arguments that U.S. pilots could not continue flying as unarmed targets.

A decision was finally made: Armed U.S. planes would continue reconnaissance missions, but would shoot back if fired upon.

The United States is still officially operating in Laos under those rules.

Unofficially, it is admitted that U.S. pilots flying "reconnaissance missions" now hit the supply route without ground-fire provocation.

For Premier Souvanna, 66-year-old French-educated prince, the Viet Nam conflict has been a disguised blessing. It has permitted him to push economic development plans, hampered before by a chaotic domestic political situation.

A 14-nation conference in Geneva decreed Laos neutral and independent and established a three-headed government in 1962. Souvanna tried to knock all heads in the coalition government to work for the betterment of the country.

He failed. Probably anyone would have failed.

The Pathet Lao, led by Souvanna's half-brother, Prince Souphanavong, and the rightists remained at loggerheads.

On the battlefront, the Pathet Lao — reinforced by North Vietnamese — rolled over neutralist territory with regularity. Even today, the 18,000-man Pathet Lao force controls two-thirds of the nation. Given sufficient North Vietnamese backing, they seem capable of overrunning the country whenever they please.

But the war in Viet Nam forced North Viet Nam to divert supplies to the Viet Cong. Officials believe that without these supplies the Pathet Lao today are capable only of limited assaults.

Off and on for four years, the Pathet Lao have fought over the Plain of Jars against the troops of Gen. Kong Le.

Pint-sized Kong Le once aligned himself with the Pathet Lao, but broke with them after he caught them trying to undercut his influence.

Today Kong Le's 11,000 troops are mostly U.S.-equipped. But the general makes it plain he considers himself a neutralist who accepts U.S. assistances more from necessity than desire.

"I would rather that we did not have to accept U.S. help or help from any country," he once told a friend. "But without help we would be overrun, and without U.S. help my army would have been destroyed."

The United States in the past decade has sent $550 million in aid to Laos, about one-quarter of it in military assistance.

Part of Kong Le's popularity with his troops may result from superstition.

Some Laotians believe he is the reincarnation of legendary 16th century King Setthathirath, who disappeared on a jungle expedition but was expected to return in time of danger to save the nation.

According to legend the people, cattle, fowl, gold, silver and vegetation of Laos gushed out of a gigantic heavenly pumpkin which was pierced with a red-hot iron by a man sent to earth by the god of heaven.

The Lao today is a happy-go-lucky individual, perfectly content to earn an average $100 a year, and spend hours in dusty coffee shops chatting with friends and swatting flies.

Visitors to this nation of 2.3 million soon discover the reason. A sleepy, tropical land, Laos holds true to the assessment that all a man needs to survive is "a small knife to peel bananas and a large one to kill the pigs."

Foreigners in Laos delight in telling the story of how a group of international agricultural experts, after surveying Laos' rice crops, suggested a method which could double the harvests.

The farmers readily accepted the suggestion. But when the experts next visited the farmers, they discovered that only half of the land had been planted.

"Why should be plant more," explained one contented farmer, "when with half the usual work now we get just as much as we did before?"

Sudan's Army Now Locked In Battle

By GARVEN HUDGINS

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Three quarters of Sudan's army is locked in a violent struggle with terroristic rebels who call themselves Anyanas, after a lethal jungle insect.

The rebels, like the insects, stir fear throughout Sudan's great southern rain forests near the Congo and Uganda frontiers.

There, in three provinces inhabited entirely by Africans, the Sudanese army has sought for 10 years to stamp out the Anyanas, mutineers who sprang up after a century of colonial rule.

British officials once administered the predominantly Christian provinces of Equatoria, Upper Nile and Bar Al Gazal in the South Sudan. With independence in 1955, Arab governors from the Moslem north replaced the Britons.

"The two peoples never had a chance to know each other under British rule," a Khartoum government spokesman commented. "The British governed the North and South Sudan separately. They would not allow northerners to go south to live because, as they put it, they didn't want the south to be exploited by northern Arabs."

The British acknowledge these two Sudanese peoples became split so that the country developed as two units. One was Moslem, the other largely Christian.

To avoid Arab domination, southerners sought a federal system in Sudan after the British pulled out. The central government in Khartoum approved in principle but never has moved to put such a system into effect.

As a result, southerners rebelled against the Arabs in a mutiny put down by the Sudanese army in 1956. It has been fighting to keep it down ever since.

The Anyanas today are reported stronger and better organized than ever. The Sudanese army, according to reliable informants, follows the trail of blood in the south only along main highways and in large towns.

"The Anyanas control the forests," says a southerner living in Khartoum, "but nobody controls the Anyanas."

Sudanese officials and impartial observers agree that the Anyanas are under the control of no single political party or creed.

"Over the past 10 years, they've developed a king of Mau Mau philosophy, living off the land, plundering when necessary and fighting against central authority," says William Deng, leader of the Sudanese African National Union party.

"This means they will eventually have to be completely reeducated if normal conditions ever are to be restored in the south."

Deng's party supports a federal system and he is one of several southerners who seek to represent the southern provinces in the central government at Khartoum.

Den at one time supported independence for the southern provinces. Today, however, he says:

"The Sudan will be more effective as a union of north and south. It will be stronger that way than split into small, independent states."

Deng visualizes a federal system with Khartoum controlling foreign affairs, finance, defense and communications but with the southern provinces in control of local governments.

GYPSIES CLASH

TURIN, Italy (UPI)—Police said Saturday a young gypsy shot and seriously wounded Mario Nicolino, another gypsy, because he refused to sell his 16-year-old niece to be married.

Mansfield Is Visiting Behind Iron Curtain

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and four colleagues flew into Bucharest Saturday for a day's visit on their way from Moscow to South Viet Nam.

Mansfield declined to discuss details of the visit but he and the others left the impression they came because of Romania's relaxed attitude toward the West and its apparent desire to broaden trade with the United States.

But also was possible that senators brought up Viet Nam in their talks with Romanian officials. This they had done in Paris with President Charles De Gaulle, in Warsaw with Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki and in Moscow with Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

"We really cannot talk about our trip," said Mansfield, a Montana Democrat. "We are sounding out opinion and exchanging views and will report back to President Johnson. Until then there is nothing we can say. There will be no press conferences or interviews until that time."

Traveling with Mansfield are Sens. George Aiken, R-Vt.; J. Caleb Boggs, R-Del.; Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, and Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

"We chose to come to Romania because it is quite evident that Romania has demonstrated a desire to widen contacts with the West," Mansfield said.

Diplomats here saw the Bucharest stopover as a tactical one with a payoff other than the more dramatic overtones of the Southeast Asia problem. The Romanians have in recent months relaxed attitudes toward the West in a manner that would have been heresy in Stalin's day.

Visitors are encouraged, tourism is in full bloom and the gaiety of prewar French-flavored life is rapidly returning to daily life.

The American senators indicated that in this atmosphere they saw opportunity to strengthen Bucharest-Washington ties in every field imaginable, including the big one — trade.

The senators take off today in the presidential jet for Saigon.

FRANCO-HUNGARIAN PACT

PARIS (UPI) — Hungarian and French officials currently are working out a new long-term commercial treaty which will substantially increase trade between the two countries, the Foreign Ministry announced Saturday.

The treaty was part of President Charles de Gaulle's campaign to increase France's influence behind the Iron Curtain.

1st Cavalry Fights Long Battle Trails

WASHINGTON (AP) — It has been a long trail the Army's 1st Cavalry Division — now airmobile — has traveled from the old days in Texas to these grim times in Viet Nam.

Along the way the division has made military history and left its many dead.

The modes of travel and battle have changed. The cavalrymen's horses have long since gone. Today the troopers whirl down in helicopters to land battles.

The men and the organization of the outfit are new. But the colors, the black and yellow shoulder patches, the tradition and the spirit remain.

The "1st Cav" has fought all its wars in the western Pacific or Asia.

It began in the Admiralty Islands as the Pacific campaign in World War II mounted toward a peak. The outfit landed at Los Negos island. Intelligence reports said the place was held by a comparatively modest force of Japanese. It took 30 days to clear the island, killing 5,000 enemy in the process and suffering its own casualties.

It pushed on up through the campaigning in the Bismarck Archipelago.

It was the invasion force going ashore at Tacloban and then fighting and maneuvering on until Manila was before it. It was the 1st Cavalry that thrust swiftly forward while another Army division kept its flanks secure and freed the prisoners held captive by the Japanese in Santo Tomas University.

When the Pacific war ended, the division was the first U.S. division to roll into Tokyo.

The war was over but the 1st Cavalry stayed on in the Far East, doing occupation duty in Japan.

It was still on that job when Korea came. The division was thrown in to block the North Korean Communist drive at Taegu. The command said Taegu must be held at all costs. It was.

As the tide of war changed, the division hammered on northward. Fighting and driving in jeeps and trucks, the division covered 106.4 miles in a single day. It hammered across the border into enemy North Korea, swept into the capital of Pyongyang. But hordes of Red Chinese came down from the north and, for a time, allied forces were shoved far back.

The 1st Cavalry Division was organized at Ft. Bliss, Tex., in 1921. For two decades, the division patroled along the Mexican border and held training maneuvers in Texas and New Mexico.

Tass Unhappy Over Ruling On Communists

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass said Saturday the verdict in the United States against the Communist party showed that American democracy does not live up to its own ideals.

A U.S. District Court in Washington on Friday convicted the U.S. Communist party for failure to register with the government as an agent of the Soviet Union and fined it $230,000.

In a dispatch from New York, the Soviet news agency called this a disgraceful verdict.

"Only a couple of days ago the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the provisions of the McCarran Act on the registration of Communists as foreign agents were unconstitutional," it said. "The verdict of the District Court which condemned the Communist party fully exposes the hypocrisy of American democracy, which in words gives all citizens political freedoms but denies them these freedoms in reality."

Saud Homecoming

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Ex-King Saud of Saudi Arabia may soon return to his desert homeland from exile in Eruope, diplomatic sources reported.

Saud was dethroned a year ago by his brother Faisal and left last January after recognizing Faisal as monarch.

RFK Arrives Safe On 40th Birthday

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI)— Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., arrived Saturday on his 40th birthday for a six-day visit and received such a boisterous welcome his wife Ethel was forced to use Kennedy touch football tactics to get past zealous policemen.

A policeman, not recognizing Mrs. Kennedy as the crowd swarmed forward, pushed her with his night stick in an attempt to remove her from the official party. He promptly received an elbow in the ribs for his effort and Ethel remained by the senator's side.

She overcame her difficulties but the wife of Mayor J. V. Faria Lima had even more. At one point policemen with linked arms cordoned her off from the rest of the official party before she broke through with her own touch "football" tactics.

Kennedy alighted at Congonhas Airport to the strains of "Happy Birthday" played by a military band. A crowd of 3,000 stood on the airport terminal balcony and crowded along the fence to shout at the senator and clasp his hand.

Kennedy, walking alongside his wife who was clad in a print dress, constantly shook hands during the 20-minute, 500-foot walk from the Tarmac to the official visitors' pavilion. He laughingly said "no" when asked if he was tired.

More than 1,000 soldiers and security agents were assigned to control at the airport and along the 10-mile route to the Hotel Jaragua where the couple was to spend the night.

Wrong Place

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (AP) — Federal agents and state troopers piled out of their unmarked car Friday and ran into a smoke shop on a gambling raid.

There was a traffic ticket on the windshield when they returned to the car. They had parked on a main street crosswalk.

Solon Asks Publication Of Dominican Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Clifford P. Case, R.-N.J., said Saturday night he has asked publication of secret testimony taken by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last July on U.S. intervention in the Dominican rebellion.

Case, a member of the committee, said he has suggested such a course to Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., its chairman.

"Conflicting accounts of what was or was not presented as facts to the committee have made for confusion that can only be dissipated by publication of the actual transcript, except for items of strictly security information," Case said in a statement.

Neither Fulbright, nor Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, its senior Republican member, would comment on an account of the secret testimony published by the Los Angeles Times.

Fulbright said he had no plans to publish the transcript. But he has emphasized that any decision to do so would be up to the committee when it reconvenes in January.

Among other things, the Los Angeles Times story said that Undersecretary of State Thomas C. Mann conceded that the United States solicited from a military junta hastily formed early in the rebellion a request that U.S. Marines be sent to the Dominican Republic to protect American lives there.

The story quoted Mann as saying the United States did not want "to base our first landing on the ground of anticommunism but rather on the grounds of saving American lives."

Case said that "as concealment undermines public confidence, disclosure strengthens it."

The New Jersey Republican, at the same time, appealed for "candor and the fullest disclosure of pertinent information by our government" concerning developments in Viet Nam.

He said the State Department now has acknowledged that North Viet Nam "did, in fact, offer to meet with the United States in August 1964, and that the offer was rejected."

"There may well have been good reasons for doing so," Case added. "It is in any event a matter of judgment. There can be no justification, however, for the subsequent and repeated denials by the highest officials of out government that any such offer was made.

"If the democratic process is to be sustaine dand strengthened, it is essential that the public be told all the facts, except as national security may otherwise require. The withholding of information is bad enough. It is completely intolerable that our government should deliberately misinform its citizens."

Princess Is Busy In New York Visit

NEW YORK (AP) — Britain's Princess Margaret jammed her second full day in New York with a morning of culture, an afternoon of hectic sightseeing and a night of private parties.

Radiant and smiling, she moved steadily through crowds at every stop, nodding, sometimes saying a soft "hello" and always waving.

"Isn't she beautiful!" came the comment, or, "Her eyes are so blue." And of her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, walking behind her: "He's so handsome and blond."

The royal couple's day started with a private tour of French impressionist galleries in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and in a frenzied pace went on to include the Museum of Modern Art, a luncheon with artists and writers, a drive through Chinatown and colorful Greenwich Village, a harbor tour, cathedral visit and dinner at which Joshua Logan, Broadway producer, was host.

"She's having a wonderful time," said Robyn Haydon of the British Embassy. "It's very busy, but she's sorry the trip is ending."

The princess' 20-day cross-country tour has included California, Arizona and Washington D.C., and ends Wednesday. It's her first visit to this country and over and over again she's said she loves it.

High point of her New York visit was a dinner-dance for 1,200 persons Friday night at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. The princess laughed and danced until after midnight when she returned to the town house of her host, New York Herald Tribune Publisher John Hay Whitney.

The royal party drove Saturday night to the Whitneys' estate, Greentree, at Manhassett, Long Island, where they will stay for the rest of the visit. The estate is about 25 miles from New York.

Today's itinerary includes lunch with architect Philip Johnson, a friend of Snowdon's, in New Canaan, Conn.

The princess and her husband fired volleys of questions during their art gallery tours, but it was Snowdon who most often broke pace with the tour to show his wife a special canvas, describe with his hands what it entailed, and urged museum officials to look closer too.

"Look there," he could be heard saying, and, "see that, M'-M." Snowdon speaks to his wife affectionately using what sounds like "M."

Snowdon abruptly left the tour in the Museum of Modern Art to dash up nearby marble steps for a view at a terrace exhibit. Several minutes later he recognized British architect Hugh Casson in the lobby and plowed through the crowd to invite him to lunch.

Saves Life

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Buddy Coulter, 25, a slim 5-foot-6 resident of Portage Lake, got up and dressed before dawn Saturday to go deer hunting.

He was feeding the baby while his wife slept when he heard a car skid off the road and crash into a nearby canal.

Coulter ran outside and sprinted about 100 yards to the edge of the canal. He could see the roof of the car, so he dove in. Fighting a strong current and the numbing effects of below-freezing temperatures, he wrestled open a door on the auto and dragged Ed Guy Jr., 21, a 200-pounder from Dexter, Mich., to safety.

Guy was treated at an Ann Arbor hospital and released.

Coulter changed clothes and went deer hunting.

MISS MERRY CHRISTMAS for 1965, chosen to reign over Tallulah's third annual Christmas Festival, is Rita Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Milton Clark of Tallulah. Miss Clark, a senior at Tallulah High School, designed and made the costume she will wear during the festival.

1st Cavalry Fights Long Battle Trails

WASHINGTON (AP) — It has been a long trail the Army's 1st Cavalry Division — now airmobile — has traveled from the old days in Texas to these grim times in Viet Nam.

Along the way the division has made military history and left its many dead.

The modes of travel and battle have changed. The cavalrymen's horses have long since gone. Today the troopers whirl down in helicopters to land battles.

The men and the organization of the outfit are new. But the colors, the black and yellow shoulder patches, the tradition and the spirit remain.

The "1st Cav" has fought all its wars in the western Pacific or Asia.

It began in the Admiralty Islands as the Pacific campaign in World War II mounted toward a peak. The outfit landed at Los Negos island. Intelligence reports said the place was held by a comparatively modest force of Japanese. It took 30 days to clear the island, killing 5,000 enemy in the process and suffering its own casualties.

It pushed on up through the campaigning in the Bismarck Archipelago.

It was the invasion force going ashore at Tacloban and then fighting and maneuvering on until Manila was before it. It was the 1st Cavalry that thrust swiftly forward while another Army division kept its flanks secure and freed the prisoners held captive by the Japanese in Santo Tomas University.

When the Pacific war ended, the division was the first U.S. division to roll into Tokyo.

The war was over but the 1st Cavalry stayed on in the Far East, doing occupation duty in Japan.

It was still on that job when Korea came. The division was thrown in to block the North Korean Communist drive at Taegu. The command said Taegu must be held at all costs. It was.

As the tide of war changed, the division hammered on northward. Fighting and driving in jeeps and trucks, the division covered 106.4 miles in a single day. It hammered across the border into enemy North Korea, swept into the capital of Pyongyang. But hordes of Red Chinese came down from the north and, for a time, allied forces were shoved far back.

The 1st Cavalry Division was organized at Ft. Bliss, Tex., in 1921. For two decades, the division patroled along the Mexican border and held training maneuvers in Texas and New Mexico.

Tass Unhappy Over Ruling On Communists

MOSCOW (AP) — Tass said Saturday the verdict in the United States against the Communist party showed that American democracy does not live up to its own ideals.

A U.S. District Court in Washington on Friday convicted the U.S. Communist party for failure to register with the government as an agent of the Soviet Union and fined it $230,000.

In a dispatch from New York, the Soviet news agency called this a disgraceful verdict.

"Only a couple of days ago the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the provisions of the McCarran Act on the registration of Communists as foreign agents were unconstitutional," it said. "The verdict of the District Court which condemned the Communist party fully exposes the hypocrisy of American democracy, which in words gives all citizens political freedoms but denies them these freedoms in reality."

Saud Homecoming

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Ex-King Saud of Saudi Arabia may soon return to his desert homeland from exile in Eruope, diplomatic sources reported.

Saud was dethroned a year ago by his brother Faisal and left last January after recognizing Faisal as monarch.

RFK Arrives Safe On 40th Birthday

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI)— Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., arrived Saturday on his 40th birthday for a six-day visit and received such a boisterous welcome his wife Ethel was forced to use Kennedy touch football tactics to get past zealous policemen.

A policeman, not recognizing Mrs. Kennedy as the crowd swarmed forward, pushed her with his night stick in an attempt to remove her from the official party. He promptly received an elbow in the ribs for his effort and Ethel remained by the senator's side.

She overcame her difficulties but the wife of Mayor J. V. Faria Lima had even more. At one point policemen with linked arms cordoned her off from the rest of the official party before she broke through with her own touch "football" tactics.

Kennedy alighted at Congonhas Airport to the strains of "Happy Birthday" played by a military band. A crowd of 3,000 stood on the airport terminal balcony and crowded along the fence to shout at the senator and clasp his hand.

Kennedy, walking alongside his wife who was clad in a print dress, constantly shook hands during the 20-minute, 500-foot walk from the Tarmac to the official visitors' pavilion. He laughingly said "no" when asked if he was tired.

More than 1,000 soldiers and security agents were assigned to control at the airport and along the 10-mile route to the Hotel Jaragua where the couple was to spend the night.

Wrong Place

NEW BRITAIN, Conn. (AP) — Federal agents and state troopers piled out of their unmarked car Friday and ran into a smoke shop on a gambling raid.

There was a traffic ticket on the windshield when they returned to the car. They had parked on a main street crosswalk.

Social Security Office Location Change Noted

J. Dodd Brooks, district manager for the U. S. Social Security Administration said the office moved Saturday from its North 3rd Street location to 2003 Tower Drive.

The new building consists of almost 6,000 feet of floor space and will enable the staff to give more prompt and efficient service to 325,000 people located in the 12 parishes which the office serves, Brooks said.

The office serves Ouachita, Lincoln, Union, Jackson, Caldwell, East Carroll, Madison, Tensas, Morehouse, Richland, Franklin and West Carroll Parishes.

Features of the new building include teletype communications to headquarters at Baltimore, Md.

Open House will be held at a later date.

Solon Asks Publication Of Dominican Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Clifford P. Case, R.-N.J., said Saturday night he has asked publication of secret testimony taken by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last July on U.S. intervention in the Dominican rebellion.

Case, a member of the committee, said he has suggested such a course to Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., its chairman.

"Conflicting accounts of what was or was not presented as facts to the committee have made for confusion that can only be dissipated by publication of the actual transcript, except for items of strictly security information," Case said in a statement.

Neither Fulbright, nor Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R-Iowa, its senior Republican member, would comment on an account of the secret testimony published by the Los Angeles Times.

Fulbright said he had no plans to publish the transcript. But he has emphasized that any decision to do so would be up to the committee when it reconvenes in January.

Among other things, the Los Angeles Times story said that Undersecretary of State Thomas C. Mann conceded that the United States solicited from a military junta hastily formed early in the rebellion a request that U.S. Marines be sent to the Dominican Republic to protect American lives there.

The story quoted Mann as saying the United States did not want "to base our first landing on the ground of anticommunism but rather on the grounds of saving American lives."

Case said that "as concealment undermines public confidence, disclosure strengthens it."

The New Jersey Republican, at the same time, appealed for "candor and the fullest disclosure of pertinent information by our government" concerning developments in Viet Nam.

He said the State Department now has acknowledged that North Viet Nam "did, in fact, offer to meet with the United States in August 1964, and that the offer was rejected."

"There may well have been good reasons for doing so," Case added. "It is in any event a matter of judgment. There can be no justification, however, for the subsequent and repeated denials by the highest officials of out government that any such offer was made.

"If the democratic process is to be sustaine dand strengthened, it is essential that the public be told all the facts, except as national security may otherwise require. The withholding of information is bad enough. It is completely intolerable that our government should deliberately misinform its citizens."

Princess Is Busy In New York Visit

NEW YORK (AP) — Britain's Princess Margaret jammed her second full day in New York with a morning of culture, an afternoon of hectic sightseeing and a night of private parties.

Radiant and smiling, she moved steadily through crowds at every stop, nodding, sometimes saying a soft "hello" and always waving.

"Isn't she beautiful!" came the comment, or, "Her eyes are so blue." And of her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, walking behind her: "He's so handsome and blond."

The royal couple's day started with a private tour of French impressionist galleries in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and in a frenzied pace went on to include the Museum of Modern Art, a luncheon with artists and writers, a drive through Chinatown and colorful Greenwich Village, a harbor tour, cathedral visit and dinner at which Joshua Logan, Broadway producer, was host.

"She's having a wonderful time," said Robyn Haydon of the British Embassy. "It's very busy, but she's sorry the trip is ending."

The princess' 20-day cross-country tour has included California, Arizona and Washington D.C., and ends Wednesday. It's her first visit to this country and over and over again she's said she loves it.

High point of her New York visit was a dinner-dance for 1,200 persons Friday night at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. The princess laughed and danced until after midnight when she returned to the town house of her host, New York Herald Tribune Publisher John Hay Whitney.

The royal party drove Saturday night to the Whitneys' estate, Greentree, at Manhassett, Long Island, where they will stay for the rest of the visit. The estate is about 25 miles from New York.

Today's itinerary includes lunch with architect Philip Johnson, a friend of Snowdon's, in New Canaan, Conn.

The princess and her husband fired volleys of questions during their art gallery tours, but it was Snowdon who most often broke pace with the tour to show his wife a special canvas, describe with his hands what it entailed, and urged museum officials to look closer too.

"Look there," he could be heard saying, and, "see that, M'-M." Snowdon speaks to his wife affectionately using what sounds like "M."

Snowdon abruptly left the tour in the Museum of Modern Art to dash up nearby marble steps for a view at a terrace exhibit. Several minutes later he recognized British architect Hugh Casson in the lobby and plowed through the crowd to invite him to lunch.

Saves Life

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Buddy Coulter, 25, a slim 5-foot-6 resident of Portage Lake, got up and dressed before dawn Saturday to go deer hunting.

He was feeding the baby while his wife slept when he heard a car skid off the road and crash into a nearby canal.

Coulter ran outside and sprinted about 100 yards to the edge of the canal. He could see the roof of the car, so he dove in. Fighting a strong current and the numbing effects of below-freezing temperatures, he wrestled open a door on the auto and dragged Ed Guy Jr., 21, a 200-pounder from Dexter, Mich., to safety.

Guy was treated at an Ann Arbor hospital and released.

Coulter changed clothes and went deer hunting.

Poker Game Has Violent Aftermath

MOUNT AIRY, N. C. (UPI) —A poker game between four "good friends" and a stranger early Saturday ended in a bloody massacre which left three of the men dead and a fourth wounded in the basement of a Surry County grocery.

Chief deputy Dallas Coe said Spencer Lawson, 32, of Mount Airy, was being held on three counts of murder and one count of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill. Coe said Lawson apparently was the stranger in the game.

Killed were James Pete Lawrence, 28; James Woodrow Odell, 42; and Allan Knott, 38. All were from Mount Airy and described by Coe as "good friends."

Coe said Gaither Nunn, about 28, was hospitalized in "not too serious condition" with gunshot wounds in the hand and mouth. The deputy said it was Nunn who identified Lawson as the killer.

Coe said the shooting occurred in the basement of Knott's Grocery about 4:15 a.m. Coe said Lawson told him that Knott drew a gun on him before the shooting took place.

Nunn said Lawson shot Knott and Odell at the poker table with a 22-caliber automatic rifle. He said Lawrence was shot twice in the chest as he fled to a front door and died while crawling down a steep, 20-foot embankment.

Cambodia Warns Of Intervention By U.S., Others

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI)—Cambodia warned Saturday that the United States, South Viet Nam and Thailand would face "grave consequences" for any bombing of Cambodia.

The government also announced it had sent a seven-man military mission, led by Defense Minister Gen. Lon Nol, to Red China, its closest ally.

The Information Ministry warning note was the toughest since Cambodia broke relations with the U.S. last April. It was then charged that U.S. and South Vietnamese troops and planes had continually attacked the Cambodian borderland while chasing Communist Viet Cong.

There have since been regularly published charges here that "U.S.-South Vietnamese planes" have intruded from neighboring South Viet Nam, bombed border settlements and even broadcast warnings that attacks were soon to come.

The government also proposed an exchange of "hostages" with Thailand and South Viet Nam under supervision of the United Nations and the International Control Commission for Indochina.

The note said the warning was provoked by two indications that the U.S. might be planning air strikes on Cambodia similar to those flown daily against North Viet Nam.

Cambodia is technically "neutral," but frankly asserts that the Viet Cong are the legal government of South Viet Nam and demands full U.S. withdrawal from Viet Nam.

At a press conference in Saigon last Tuesday three North Vietnamese defectors said they were materially aided during their infiltration from the north by Cambodian malitiamen.

News Fatal

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Charles Gallagher, 20, and a girl companion, Nancy Miles, 17, both of suburban Minneapolis, were killed early Saturday when a train hit their car.

Charles' father, Robert, telephoned the news to the youth's grandmother, Gertrude Gallagher, 75, a widow, of Minneapolis. She collapsed and died at the phone, Robert Gallagher said.

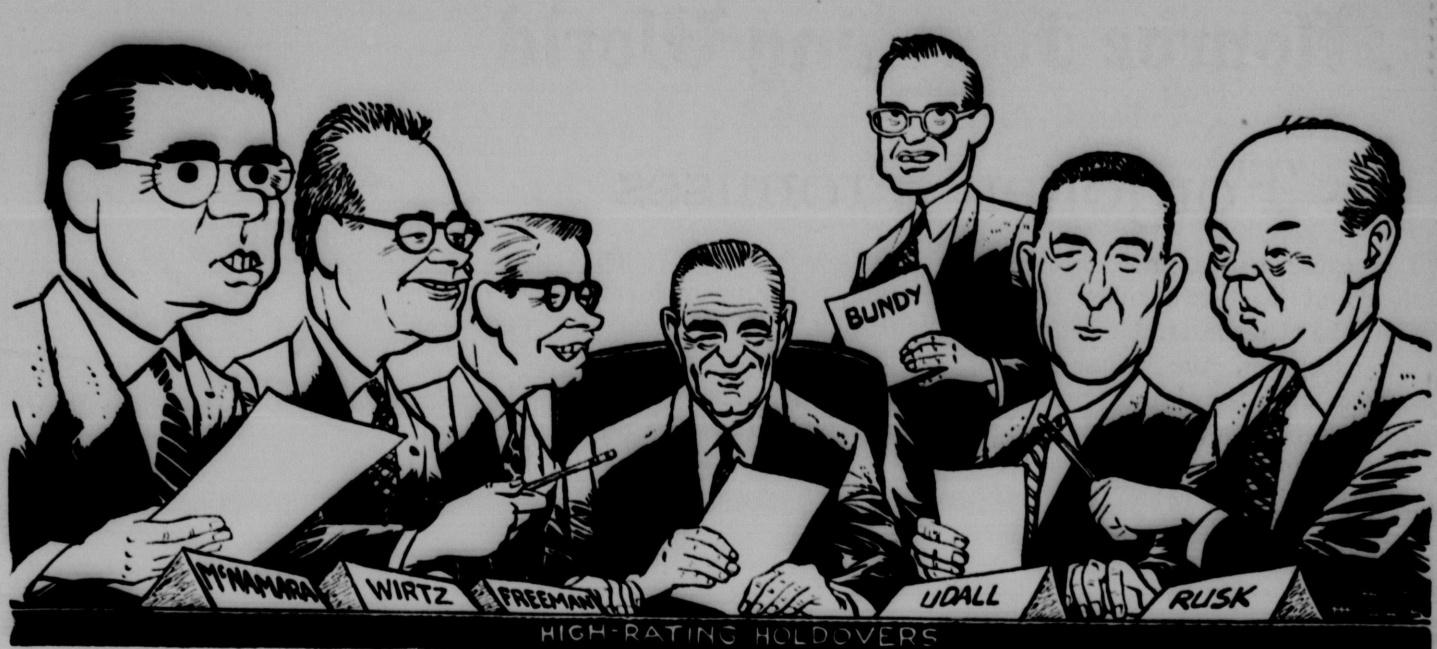
The Johnson Team
LBJ

Some of the Kennedy men still are around, but President Johnson has put his distinctive brand on his cabinet and White House staff. The team — old and young, white and Negro, even Republicans — is marked by tremendous loyalty for 'The Man in the White Hat.'



By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The day after John F. Kennedy was killed, President Johnson asked all Cabinet members to stay in their jobs.

"He told them," Pierre Salinger said, "he needed their help in the time ahead."

Cynics, reasonably enough in the light of history, believed Johnson was merely making a polite gesture. Didn't Harry S. Truman just about clean out, in seven months, the Cabinet he inherited from Franklin D. Roosevelt?

Today, as the Johnson administration heads into its third full year, half the Cabinet is still made up of men he took over from Kennedy.

These durable holdovers, chief among them Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Secretary of State Dean Rusk, have helped make the LBJ team the solidest outfit Washington has seen in many years.

But the White House staff, another vital part of the team, has changed greatly.

Salinger, the press aide Johnson inherited, quit to make a race for the Senate, unsuccessfully. Advisers Arthur K. Schlesinger Jr. and Theodore Sorensen quit to write books, successfully.

AN ORIGINAL

Still, in late 1965, one of the four presidential assistants who count most is an original Kennedy man, McGeorge Bundy. He advises Johnson, as he did Kennedy, on national security.

Bundy, 44, a New Englander, belongs to a quartet otherwise composed wholly of Texans: Bill D. Moyers, 31; Jack Valenti, 44, and Marvin Watson, 40, former state Democratic chairman.

Moyers, LBJ's press secretary and all around troubleshooter, is topmost. This young Baptist minister, whose reputation for good judgment is rivaled only by his ability to get along with others, has Johnson's ear and confidence to an unrivaled degree.

In return, like other members of the staff, Moyers gives the President his full devotion. Around the White House offices there's a prevading sense of tremendous loyalty to Johnson, the man, as well as Johnson, the President, no matter how hard he works his staffers or how vigorously he may criticize them for some shortcoming.

"To all of these people," one qualified observer said, "Lyndon Johnson is The Man in the White Hat, always on the side of the angels."

SAID TOLERANT

"The President, despite what you may hear to the contrary," Moyers said, "is a very tolerant man to work for. He tries to get me to take time off, and with the other people around the White House, it is the same. He wants us to have time for our families and our outside activities."

One of President Kennedy's closest associates was Larence F. O'Brien, now 48, who was something of a genius in selling White House programs to Congress. Johnson liked O'Brien and his work so much he has made him his postmaster general.

Why has Johnson kept on so many "Kennedy men?"

It is evident that he respected them. He spoke well of them as a group even when he was vice president and on the outside of things.

It is also clear that he figured they could give him their loyalty and contribute to his success — success being his ruling passion. They have become his men in the LBJ tradition: It is not a hyphenated Johnson Kennedy team, it is a Johnson team, period.

Right behind Johnson on the team is vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, at 54 three years younger than Johnson, and one of the willingest of workers, a team man publicly and privately.

There has been some gossip that Johnson makes cracks about Humphrey for talking so much, and may be cooling off on him. But most people in a position to judge believe that these two, who have worked together so smoothly so long, will keep on happily together.

Johnson is giving Humphrey a bigger role as vice president than Kennedy ever gave Johnson.

Humphrey told The Associated Press: "I'm constantly being brought up to date. I think that I'm better informed than I have ever been. I have the privilege of being as well informed as any member of the government, save the President himself, and possibly I have the same information as the President."

Johnson's indulgence in little digs at his helpers has extended to McNamara and Rusk.

He has gibed at the slick haired, 49-year-old McNamara as "the guy with the hair oil." He has had fun with Rusk by calling him the Rhodes scholar who takes orders from "a little old graduate of San Marcos State Teachers College."

Johnson is obviously proud of McNamara and finds in him a kindred spirit for drive and determination. McNamara already has been secretary of defense longer than any other man and associates say he has agreed to stay as long as LBJ wants him.

LIMITED TENURE

Secretary of state Rusk, 56, may not serve out the full four year term to which Johnson was elected in 1964. It is understood that last year, when Johnson asked him to remain, Rusk agreed only if it would be just for a year or so.

Meantime, attacks on Rusk seem only to strengthen Johnson's support of him. In July, when Rusk was under fire, Johnson told a news conference: "He ranks first in the Cabinet and he ranks first with me."

To head his United Nations squad, Johnson picked Arthur J. Goldberg, 57, who has served Kennedy as secretary of labor and then on the Supreme Court. Depending on Goldberg's effectiveness at the United Nations, and his contributions to administration policy he has Cabinet status, he may be considered for even higher rank as time goes on.

To speak for America through the United States Information Agency and its Voice of America, Johnson chose two men he knew well.

The new director of the USIA is Leonard H. Marks, 49, who used to represent Johnson owned radio and television interests. To head the Voice, Johnson chose John Chancellor, 38, a personal friend who was White House correspondent for the National Broadcasting Co.

In diplomatic assignments generally Johnson has stuck with experienced men and in most cases professionals. These include Ambassadors David K. E. Bruce, 67, in London; Foy D. Kohler, 57, in Moscow; Charles E. Bohlen, 61, in Paris; Chester Bowles, 64, in India, and Edwin O. Reischauer, 55, in Japan.

In Viet Nam, the hottest spot for any ambassador, Johnson has Henry Cabot Lodge, 64, a Republican who first got the job under Kennedy.

Cabinet legacies from Kennedy, along with McNamara and Rusk, were these other present department heads: Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, 47, and Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, 53.

Larry O'Brien, Johnson's new choice to head the Post Office Department, may be expected to carry on the tradition of political postmaster generals such as FDR's James A. Farley and Harry S. Truman's Robert E. Hannegan.

O'Brien has been described as the most loyal LBJ man of all the men Johnson inherited from Kennedy. At the same time, O'Brien has stayed close to the surviving brothers of the late president, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

LBJ SELECTIONS

Just as he has retained Kennedy appointees, Johnson has also replaced them with men of his own choosing: Secretary of Commerce John T. Connor, succeeding Luther H. Hodges; Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, succeeding C. Douglas Dillon; Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach, who had been the No. 2 man in the Justice Department under Robert Kennedy, and Secretary John W. Gardner, of health, education and welfare, succeeding Anthony J. Celebrezze, named by Johnson to be a federal judge.

Only in the case of Robert Kennedy has there been any talk of disharmony in the departures of John F. Kennedy appointees. Even here, all was placid on the surface.

Johnson waited a long time to announce formally his choice of Katzenbach, 43, but he has backed him warmly, especially when others found fault.

Connor, 51, gave up a large income from the pharmaceutical industry to join the administration and Johnson is proud that he could persuade him to take the job at The Commerce Department.

The Treasury's Fowler, 57, who has had a dozen government jobs, had much to do with getting Johnson's record breaking tax cut through Congress in 1964. That pleased Johnson greatly.

Gardner, 53, of HEW, a Republican, was president of the Carnegie Foundation and an educator. He is still catching up on his Cabinet job duties.

A Cabinet job is a much bigger deal these days than it was under Kennedy.

Johnson gives Cabinet members a greater sense of participation. He believes in the chain of command and doesn't go around his top people, the way Kennedy sometimes did, to get information farther down the line.

Johnson can talk roughly to his Cabinet members, just as to lesser people. For example, he is said to have been almost fierce in one early demand that all the cabinet members cut their budgets — "They'd never been ordered around that way," one awed aide reported.

On a later occasion, he ruffled some feelings with what sounded like a flag command to put more women in the better government jobs, or else.

Johnson raised quite a commotion when a list of outstanding government workers, not including a single woman, was handed him for public recognition.

In public he was calmer but still forceful, declaring: "We men are inclined to think that because we weigh more, are taller and our shoe size is bigger that this is also true of our intelligence and education."

Johnson has been responsible for the appointment of hundreds of women to government jobs paying $10,000 or more, some of them paying as high as $20,000 plus.

'WINDOW DRESSING'

However, some critics have called this window dressing, since no woman except Lady Bird Johnson seems to have great influence at policymaking levels.

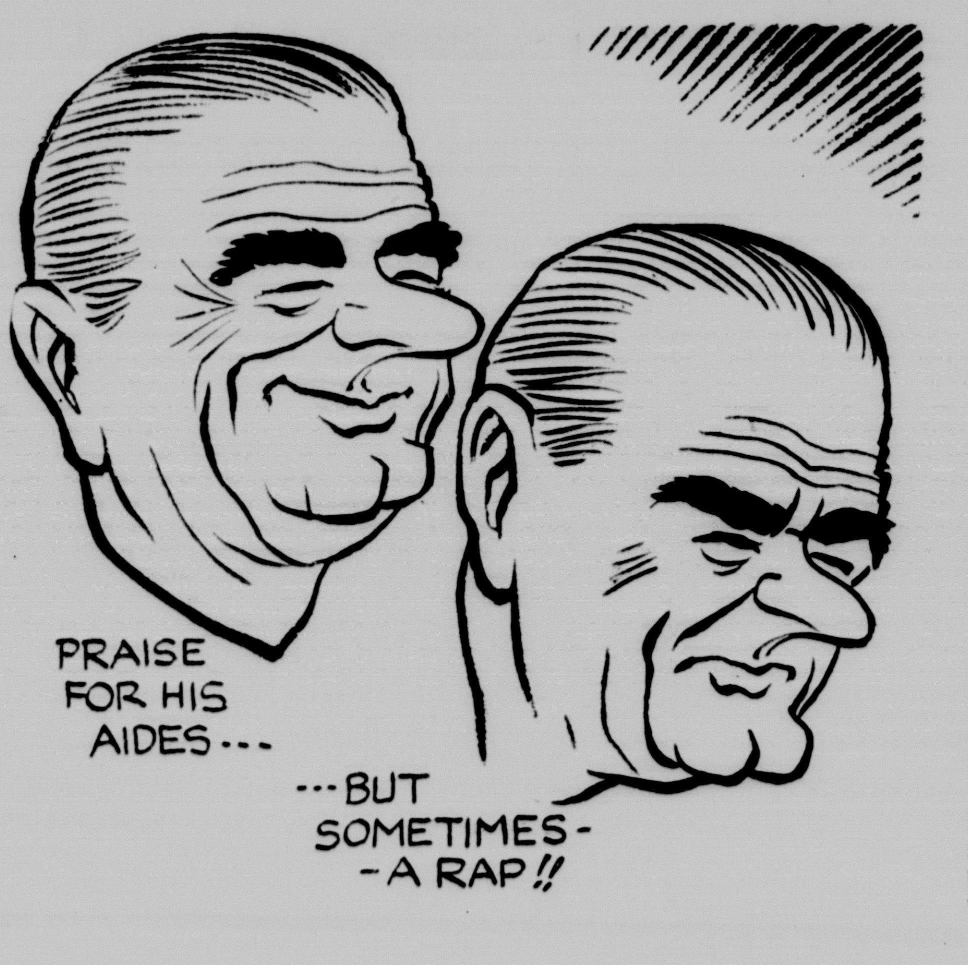
In the appointment of Negroes to high government office, no question of window dressing has ever been raised.

For one thing, Johnson made a Negro, Thurgood Marshall, 57, the government's solicitor general. This post, whose holder represents the government in Supreme Court cases, is now the highest prestige job for a Negro in federal executive office. Also Johnson retained Robert G. Weaver, 57, as administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, to which Weaver was named by Kennedy.

Other Negroes named to high office by Johnson include James M. Nabrit, 64, president of Howard University, to be deputy representative to the United Nations Security Council; Hobart Taylor Jr., 44, to be a member of the board of directors of the Export Import Bank, and Clifford Alexander, Jr., to be associate special counsel to the President.

Maj. Hugh Robinson, 33, named Army aide to the President, is the first Negro to serve on the White House military staff.

Negro women appointed by Johnson include Patricia Roberts Harris, 41, ambassador to Luxembourg, and Charlotte Moton Hubbard, 52, deputy assistant secretary of state. They are both "firsts" in such positions.



President Johnson meets with some of his military strategists.

172 Years Of Wear Put U.S. Capitol Building In Peril

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The architect was a doctor. The building material was soft sandstone. The workmanship was hit or miss.

But the building survived fire, explosion, repeated remodeling and the wear and tear of millions of visitors. It may be one of the most abused as well as most famous structures in the United States.

Now, 172 years after the first stone was put in place, experts say portions of the U.S. Capitol are in danger of collapse.

The trouble, according to engineers who spent more than a year digging around the foundations and drilling into the walls, is in the oldest part of the building on the western side, the face of the Capitol that looks toward the White House.

The solution, according to Capitol architect J. George Stewart, is to extend the building and erect a strong new west front duplicating the existing facade. His free-hand estimate of the cost is $24 to $31 million.

BUILDING CONTROVERSY

The engineering report on the condition of the west front does not appear to be in serious dispute. But Stewart's proposal has kindled a controversy as hot as the fire set by the British when they burned out the Capitol in 1814.

Controversy is nothing new for Stewart, a 75-year-old former Delaware congressman who has been up to his thick-lensed spectacles in it for most of the 11 years he has held the job of architect. His critics are fond of recalling that he was never trained as an architect. But Stewart has been victorious in his two biggest battles: construction of the $86 million Rayburn House Office Building and the $11 million extension of the Capitol's east front.

Having survived those epic rows, Stewart is odds-on to win the latest. The only real question is whether he will be able to do the job as he wants or will have to accept some less ambitious project to protect the west front.

WALLS CRACKED

Even the untrained eye can see the cracks in the walls, the slipped, keystones over many of the windows and the "spalled" or eroded sections of the sandstone blocks.

After all, it is an old building. The initial construction, following the design of Dr. William Thornton, a physician who dabbled in invention and architecture, was started in 1793 and completed in 1811.

How serious are these faults? Dr. Miles N. Clair, president of the Thompson and Lichtner Co. of Brookline, Mass., testified on the condition of the building before the commission for extension of the U.S. Capitol last summer.

Here, with Speaker John W. McCormack and House Republican leader Gerald R. Ford, Mich., asking questions, is a key portion of Clair's testimony:

Clair: As you look at this structure Gentlemen, you will see these cracks extending through the arches, extending down through the structure all the way down.

CONDITION SERIOUS

McCormack: How serious is the deterioration of the sandstone portion of the west front?

Clair: It is very serious. The penetration, even with the paint protection is as much as three-sixteenths of an inch of just weathering. But the deterioration of the sandstone is not just weathering. It is a question of the cracking, the falling of lintels.

Ford: What would be the net result if nothing were done in the situation described here by these pictures?

Clair: It would get worse and finally you would have some of of the stone fall off. Since the walls support the floor arches, these are brick arches, you eventually would have a partial collapse if you did nothing.

Clair went on in his testimony to point out two sections — the entablature above the center porch of the central structure and the building wall on the house side which needed "immediate" attention.

McCormack: What would happen if that wall fell down?

Clair: Somebody might be killed.

McCormack: What would happen to the building? What effect would it have?

Clair: If that wall veneer fell down, the building would not collapse.

WALLS SHORED UP

Asked what repairs were most pressing, Clair replied that the foundations should be underpinned, parts of the old walls replaced and the central entablature removed and rebuilt.

McCormack: What do you mean by "immediately?"

Clair: Next week. I am not kidding. I think this is so serious something should be done at once.

This testimony, along with Clair's five-volume engineering report, impelled the commission to act. It ordered Stewart to have the walls and porch shored up. Within a few weeks, at a cost of $39,000, huge foot-square timber braces were installed in the areas pinpointed by the engineers.

"Retention of the wall as an interior wall of an extended building is recommended as the least hazardous and as causing the least interference with occupancy of the present structure," the report summary said. "A properly designed and constructed extension would also provide desirable lateral support for the west central portion of the Capitol."

OBJECTS TO NEW FRONT

This recommendation, of course, fell into line with Stewart's own solution for the angered critics of the Capitol architect and his works.

Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., was one of the most vocal of this group:

"I believe we would be making a very serious mistake, both historically and esthetically, to spend any money at all in furtherance of the present plans and proposals of the architect of the Capitol regarding the west front.

EXTENSION OPPOSED

"Oh, I will be told that the present sandstone walls are crumbling, of course they are. I have seen them. They need to be shored up and strengthened. And I have seen the engineering report which says that the only way you can save these walls is to cover them up. But engineering reports are like lawyers' briefs. You can get them to prove either side you want.

"I oppose this extension because if it goes through it means that the last remaining exterior facade of the original Capitol building, dating back to 1800, will be forever covered from view. We fought to preserve our historic shrines and buildings, not cover them up with garish imitations."

'Forgotten' Promises

In every battle, there are people on at least two sides. If one wins, the other loses. Almost without exception, the winners are pleased and the losers are disgruntled. So it was with union labor's attempt to get Congress to repeal Section 14 (b) of the Taft-Hartley law, which permits states to enact legislation against forcing workers to join unions. This attempt was defeated in the last session of Congress, but, in all probability, will be tried again at the next session. It is to be hoped it will meet a similar fate then.

Concerning this defeat and other losses, the International Teamsters, magazine of the International Teamsters Union, said in part:

"The first session of the 89th Congress became a Land of Forgotten Promises for organized labor.

"Labor clearly was left holding an empty bag. Its majority slipped through a tear in the bottom of the sack while labor's lobbyists held a clenched fist around the bag's opening at the top.

"Optimistic in the beginning because of the size of the Democratic majority in both houses of the legislature and because of President Johnson's announced interest in measures dear to labor's heart, it looked like a banner year on the legislative front.

"Most of all, President Johnson had called for repeal of Section 14 (b) of Taft-Hartley in his State of the Union message."

Union labor was also disappointed on action, or lack of it, on other measures it sponsored.

It had high hopes of raising the minimum wage from $1.25 an hour to $1.75 or $2 an hour. This undoubtedly would have increased unemployment. It would have meant higher wages for some but dismissal for thousands when their employers could not afford to pay the additional amounts.

Coming up again with the old cry of fear against automation, which, when facts are known, collapses like a toy balloon that has burst, the Teamsters' "special report" said, "With automation breathing the fire of job insecurity down the necks of all industrial workers, labor hoped for a measure which would set federal standards for unemployment compensation." The statement was made in spite of a special report on jobs, which shows there are now 23,000 different kinds of jobs in the United States and that 6,000 of these new jobs have been created in the last 15 years, when automation was making its fastest strides.

Labor also had expected legislation on what it called "situs" picketing, in which picketing of a sub-contractor at a building site would be authorized specifically by federal law.

Because it failed to get approval of repeal of the "right-to-work" law authorized in Section 14 (b), union labor complained of Congress' legislative processes, although it never complains of them when its wishes are granted. It said:

"But when repeal of Section 14 (b) fell victim to the Dirksen filibuster, a 20th Century axiom regarding organized labor proved itself. That axiom? Majority rule is not enough when organized labor seeks remedy in the U. S. Congress."

Although the Teamsters "special report" seemed to feel that President Johnson had not come through on his promise in regard to Section 14 (b), Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz took a different view. He said the administration would take the lead next year in pressing for Senate approval of legislation to nullify state compulsory open shop laws and said he did not feel that there was any letting down in the last session by the administration.

Ordinarily a President does not get as much Congressional support in the second session of Congress after his election as in the first. In the first, Congressmen are remembering the chief executive's recent victory. In the second, they are thinking more about what the people want and more about their own convictions on the matters that come before them.

It is to be hoped that the labor bosses, if they persist in wanting to deprive people of their right to work if they do not join a union, will be as disappointed in the next session of Congress as they were in the last.

Dictators And Religion

No nation's dictator can imagine himself supreme as long as he admits a divine creation and the existence of God and Jesus Christ. Therefore, anyone who wishes to set himself up as the supreme dictator of a nation must first try to drive the divine element out of the lives of his people.

The magazine, Christianity Today, gives some thoughts on what happens to a man when he comes to believe in Christ and of those who try to make themselves appear superior to the Redeemer.

One of these is:

"Suddenly, when a man comes to faith in Christ, the Bible becomes a necessity. The book that before he found closed and remote, he now studies with eagerness and delight."

Here is another:

"Since the focal point of the biblical message is the figure of Jesus Christ, the divine Redeemer of the world, the repudiation of the authenticity of the biblical witness leads inevitably to the repudiation of the authenticity of Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord.

And another:

"If theologians wish to supplant the teaching of the Scripture with their own ideas, they must resist the temptation to use the Bible as a prop for their position."

Stressing the implications of repudiation of the Scriptures and Christ, the magazine said this was amply demonstrated by the consequences of destructive criticism that flourished in Germany prior to and during the regime of the late dictator Adolf Hitler, who tried to create a god of himself. The same has been true in Russia, where the late Joseph Stalin and his predecessors tried to drive out religion and to set themselves up as supreme.

This finally reached the ridiculous stage at which one Russian cosmonaut said he had flown out into space and had not seen God and therefore God did not exist. Of course, the space the cosmonaut saw was not so much as a speck in the universe, and there is the additional fact that a mortal being is not likely to see an immortal being, no matter how far he may travel, since immorality is in another spectrum that supercedes space.

Our discussion of this arises chiefly from the witnessed direction in which nations travel when the leaders try to set themselves up as supreme and deny diety.

And our chief concern is with the United States, in which the right to worship or even to recite prayers in school has been denied but in which the federal government is now openly treading on the Constitutional amendment decreeing separation of church and state by attempting to distribute many millions of churches and other religious organizations.

The neat, well-kept streets of Maldive Islands' capital, Male, are paved with white sand.

Merely a bite or two from the Amanita mushroom, the so-called "destroying angel," can cause violent stomach-ache, breakdown of blood cells and finally death.

Pigeons and their relatives in the Old World sandgrouse family share the unique ability to drink water like a horse, with heads down and bill immersed. Other birds must raise their heads to swallow.

In Defense Of Rhodesia

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

The Rt. Honorable Ian Smith, his cabinet, and the citizens of Rhodesia are to be congratulated for their ideas and courage. The people of Rhodesia are most certainly entitled to unconditional independence and were well within their rights to declare themselves free and a "British Commonwealth" no more.

Now it would only be natural for Harold Wilson, the Prime Minister of Great Britain, to be in a rage of fury over this situation. This matter was of direct concern between those two countries. However, for our beloved president, Lyndon B. Johnson, to involve himself and the United States into this matter is a completely ridiculous and most improper act on his part. To be quite blunt about the matter, the internal affairs of Rhodesia, are of no concern to this nation. It would appear however that the Federal Government, not satisfied with snooping into the affairs of the individual states of this country, has decided to broaden her horizons in attempting to run things in a most improper and haphazardous way. It seems that Mr. Johnson needs a refresher course in American History where he would be reminded that it was Great Britain whom our illustrious forefathers fought so that we might have a free and independent nation based on the free enterprise system. Now, today, Mr. Johnson would not allow Rhodesia her independence because of the government being controlled by a so-called "white minority". It seems that Britain wanted assurances that the "black nationalists" would assume eventual control of Rhodesia. What would have happened, I wonder, had our forefathers agreed to Britain at the time of our independence, that the Indians of this nation would be given eventual control of the government? The same principle applies in the case of Rhodesia. Under the "white minority" Rhodesia has prospered and given rise to a civilized society. Under the rule of the "black nationalists" Rhodesia would surely become another "Congo" with utter chaos and mass hysteria as the order of the day. The "white minority" under the splendid leadership of Ian Smith, is the only hope for Rhodesia. They are capable of maintaining stable government and a sound economy.

Should the United States, through her liberally dominated foreign policy, impose complete economic and political boycott of Rhodesia, she will most certainly be condemning what could be one of her most valuable allies in the fight against Communism. Of course to be Anti-Communist seems so unfashionable in Washington these days. I would say that the real reason behind the President's act would be in the securing of more Negro votes in this country. Apparently the liberal politicians of today don't really care how they get in office, just so they get in and are able to legislate as much misery as possible on their constituents.

Finally, for the United Nations to condemn the nation of Rhodesia, would, in my mind, seem a compliment. Since this organization is composed of ego-maniacs so preoccupied with illusions of grandeur, one could justifiably wonder what they really seek to accomplish. I would say that this body is dedicated to the creation of a world monolithic body which would enslave the whole world under some sort of a "Big Brother" society. Indeed this would make Hitler's Germany seem like "Disneyland".

So to the nation of Rhodesia, I hope that the present government prevails, that the people prosper and that the nation grows with unlimited greatness. Most assuredly, these people have courage and are to be respected for their determination and principles.

Thanks To Sen. Ellender

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

I am certain that many Americans felt a renewed hope for the preservation of States Rights when the United States Senate got some "late in the session backbone" and temporarily shelved the repeal of Section 14(b) of the Taft-Hartley Act. Adoption of the repeal bill would have killed the Right to Work laws existing in 19 states and would have taken, from all states, the right to outlaw compulsory unionism.

Louisiana's senior senator deserves our thanks for helping to stop the "Federal Steamroller"; for having aligned himself with the defenders of Section 14(b). Senator Allen J. Ellender and many of his colleagues believe — as so many of us in Northern Louisiana — that Americans must have the right, but must not be compelled, to join a labor union.

But the battle is not over. The Compulsory Union Membership Drive boys will be back in 1966 with the blessing of the Johnson Administration and Walter Reuther and friends, in an attempt to grab more power and further reduce the rights of States to govern themselves.

"And what can I do?," you ask. Express your thanks to Senator Ellender for his staunch stand. Tell him by letter that you are backing him all the way to stand firm when the 14(b) fight is resumed.

A five-cent stamp and a scribbled note is a cheap price to pay to help preserve our republic.

Orioles And Robins

Oak Grove, La.

To the Editor:

There is a very obvious error in your editorial "New Bird Control" in the November 11th issue. It is true that starlings, blackbirds and crows are crop destroying pests or predators but you include in this list of predators, orioles and robins. These latter two species are very valuable birds in that the destruction of insects, which comprises most of their diet, much more than offsets the slight damage they do to crops. In fact, I believe you will find that both of these birds are among the many birds protected by federal law because they are so beneficial to man.

People should be informed as to the birds which are pests and the birds which are insect eaters, and therefore very beneficial to man, but your editorial is doing just the opposite, it is misinforming them.

If we had a surplus of insect eating birds and beneficial insects such as the ladybug and praying mantis there would be no need of poisonous insecticides being used anywhere in the garden or yard. There is no doubt that as man's knowledge increases in this direction he will eventually entirely eliminate the use of dangerous poisonous insecticides and again balance nature as it was balanced before he destroyed the balance. I suggest that one of your editors read some of the recent information on this subject and editorialize on it.

Lindsay Election Is Seen As Danger

NO LOCAL ELECTION in my memory has received more national interpretation than the recent mayoralty race in New York City.

Many observers view the result as a terrific shot in the arm for the Republican Party, which may be more wishful thinking than anything else. Unfortunately for the party, John Lindsay who won the race was not running as a Republican, was not pledged to Republican principles and did not carry a Republican administration into office. He was endorsed by the city's Liberal Party for being "farther to the left" than the Democrat candidate.

No one wants to see the Republican Party helped more than I do. If the New York election does anything constructive for the party, I will be the first to cheer. What I fear, however, is that its effect can be destructive.

We could all cheer together if Lindsay were or became a Republican with views to the left, say, of mine. But he has detached himself from the entire main body of Republican principles, right or left. He has leapfrogged all of those principles to take positions, as his election campaign emphasized, to the left even of the Democrat Party.

HE DID NOT run as a moderate Republican but as a radical Democrat. And he won, I am convinced, simply because New Yorkers were fed up with the incumbents and welcomed any change, not because of his political position.

Now that he is elected, it would boost Republican spirits if Lindsay had some second thoughts about principles of government and began to move back toward a Republican position, even an extremely leftist one. As long as he commits himself to a position that is even too far left for many Democrats it is difficult to see how the Republican Party constructively can be served.

The thinking in some quarters is that the entire Republican Party should follow the Lindsay defection to the left of the Democrats to ride what seems to be the crest of a collectivist wave.

THIS POSITION makes sense only if the purpose of a political party is to follow the leader. But many Americans view their political parties somewhat differently. They see the two parties as a system of alternatives and the availability of alternatives as a guarantee of freedom. They see freedom is the most important product of a good government.

To remove the alternative, as the Lindsay approach would do, would be to remove the meaning of political parties.

The fact that Lyndon Johnson has so enthusiastically entered into Lindsay's support indicates that both men are of a mind about the political future of the country. Indeed, if Lindsay can "solve" the problems of New York City only by entering into a merger with the federal government, he will have done more than any other local politician to advance Lyndon Johnson's cause of fully centralized government.

The hope for Republicans does not lie in the election of John Lindsay. It lies only in the admittedly dim hope that he will now find some merit in the Republican principles which he has utterly rejected. Such a charge would, indeed, be a Republican victory.

Bail Reform Act Called Good Law

IT GOT ALTHOGETHER lost in the hurly - burly of adjournment, but the Senate on September 21 passed a bill that merits the support of men throughout the nation who stand by the concept of equal justice under law. This is the Bail Reform Act of 1965. It has taken only seven centuries to get this far.

The bill comes to mind just now because of the publication a few days ago of "Ransom," a critique of the American bail system, by Ronald Goldfarb. The book wraps into a single readable and persuasive package a good many years of investigation into the whole difficult problem of bail in our criminal courts. Leaders of local bar associations may be especially interested in inquiring into the injustice, the social damage, and the public expense that result from the bail system which now obtains.

The origins of bail, as a bond to insure a defendant's appearance for trial, appear to be lost in the misty beginnings of the English common law. Magna Carta, in 1215, mentions the role of bondsmen who were "sureties for persons attached for breach of the forest laws." By the mid-fourteenth century, the system evidently was well established. With ratification of our own Bill of Rights, in 1791, a constitutional guarantee was provided under the Eighth Amendment that "excessive bail shall not be required," but the provision seldom has been construed by the U. S. Supreme Court. It was not until August of 1964 that the Congress got around to hearings on proposals for bail reform.

NORTH CAROLINA'S Senator Sam Ervin, principal sponsor both of the bill that died last year and the bill now passed by the Senate, has taken the lead in urging remedial legislation. In his view, present bail procedures "are in sharp contrast with our cherished concepts of equality before the law and the presumption of innocence." In the damage they inflict upon obscure and friendless defendants, these procedures "threaten our system of ordered liberty itself."

Every person who ever has witnessed a session of a police court or covered a magistrate's office has seen the process in action. A person is brought in, under arrest, and in the ordinary case the committing officer "fixes bail" for the defendant's subsequent appearance for trial. In theory, the function of bail is thus limited: The sole object is to insure that the defendant will be present in court when his named is called. But as Goldfarb makes clear in his book, and as the Senate hearings have emphasized, this purpose often gets lost in other motivations.

IN THE DEEP South, a rural magistrate may vent his antagonism against civil rights demonstrators by fixing their bail at punitive levels. Elsewhere, a committing justice may have a personal hatred for drunken drivers of narcotics addicts or peeping Toms. In a New York case cited by Goldfarb, the judge of a Queens County court was fed up with a gang of juveniles brought before him:

"If the parents will voluntarily agree not to bail them, I'll not set real high bail. But if they don't voluntarily agree, I'll set such high bail they won't be bailed out . . . I want these boys to spend one or two nights in jail. Maybe that is the answer. I don't know . . ."

Whatever the considerations may be, the result is that in many thousands of cases, defendants in relatively minor cases are unable to make bail. They are too poor to afford the bondsman's fee, or the bail is simply to high. Thus they languished in jail, at public expense, until they come on for trial. In this period, which may extend for days or weeks, they often lose their jobs; they are unable to consult fully with an attorney; they cannot search out witnesses in their own behalf; they cannot undertake to get a frivolous charge dismissed. And at last they are brought into court on a bailiff's arm, fresh from the cell block, tainted by confinement, humiliated and ill-prepared for trial.

RECORDS OF New York's famed Vera Foundation, and of several bar associations, prove conclusively that defendants who are able to make bail have enormous advantages over those who are kept in custody. It is plain that present bail procedures do not penalize the rich man: The well - heeled gangster can always make bail. In the great bulk of petty cases, defendants can be safely released on their own recognizance: They are not going to run, and add a jail - jumping charge to their troubles; they will show up for trial, and likely as not will be acquitted or released on suspended sentence.

Senator Ervin's bill would provide for general "R.O.R." (release on recognizance) in Federal courts, except where a commissioner felt some surety should be posted or other conditions imposed. In such a case, 10 per cent of a bond could be required, or travel restrictions could be laid down. In serious cases, of course, involving a risk to the community or a real likelihood of escape, bail still could be fixed at deterrent levels.

The Senate bill does not answer all the questions. What of the sex offender in a non-capital case? What of the spy caught in an act of sabotage? What of the hardened criminal who is likely to intimidate witnesses or to destroy evidence if he is released on bail? These are difficult problems that demand further study. Meanwhile, the Ervin bill is a long and needed step toward equal justice for all.

RALPH de TOLEDANO

Bobby Kennedy's Political Chart

IN THE YEAR that Robert F. Kennedy has served in the Senate, he has generated some heat, very little light, and hardly any legislative power. He has been able to put together a machine of sorts, which includes most of the ultra - liberals in the upper chamber, however, and has clearly drawn for himself a rather curious political chart.

Observers here who have given close scrutiny to the Kennedy course are convinced that this has been a deliberate maneuver on Senator Kennedy's part as a prerequisite of his drive for the Presidency in 1972. It is also suggested that he sees this taking of the left ground as the most effective way of making trouble for President Johnson.

Interestingly, Senator Kennedy's most open avowals of his political line have been in foreign policy. In this, he has received aid and comfort from the State Department's middle echelon, which feeds him material and then encourages press comment on it. With Bobby making the grand tour of Latin America's explosive areas, Foreign Service officers are laboring mightily to make the journey a momentous one.

THEY HOPE TO generate massive turnouts for him, particularly of the professional students who are a continual source of trouble in Latin countries. This, they expect, will make headlines and "prove" that he has inherited the mantle of John F. Kennedy. From the middle echelon's point of view, the major corollary of Mr. Kennedy's "success" will be the implication that President Johnson's foreign policy has hurt America's image south of the border.

Already, Bobby has created controversy by espousing higher births in countries whose economies are already suffering from the population explosion. Latin governments are not happy, but they can do little except pray for rain. If reports are true that secret arrangements have been made for meetings between Senator Kennedy and anti - government leftist leaders, that unhappiness will be considerably increased.

Mr. Kennedy, however, has not needed the help of the State Department or fringes in Congress to press for policies and actions which run directly counter to those now in effect. He has urged that the Red Chinese be invited to attend the Geneva disarmament talks. He has vociferously called for "negotiation" with the Communist regime in Hanoi and with the Viet Cong, on almost any terms.

SUNDAY THOUGHT

Three fears weaken the heart: Fear of the truth, fear of poverty, and fear of the devil.

NOW ADD THE COST

Now that the Congressmen have gone home and a lot of them are slapping themselves on the back for a job well done, have you, the taxpayer, added up what they will cost you in the next year?

Well, to start with, the past session of Congress was the most expensive of all peacetime sessions. It appropriated money at the rate of $400 million a day.

Its spending record came close to that of 1942 when we had the job of financing World War II. The national debt climbed higher and the interest cost next year will equal $60 for every person in the U. S. And since everyone will not pay that, it means it will be higher for those who do.

But the money was no object in the headlong rush to the Great Society. In fact, LBJ would have saved us all more if he had left the lights on at the White House and turned off the appropriators — including himself.

SUNDAY POEM

If I knew that a word of mine,
A word not kind and true,
Might leave its trace
On a loved one's face,
I'd never speak harshly.
Would you?
If I knew the light of a smile
Might linger the whole day through
And lighten some heart
With a heavier part,
I wouldn't withhold it,
Would you?

A New Theory

We figured someone would get around to such a theory someday and we figured it would hit like a bomb — particularly at our house.

But I believe it is true—mainly because I've been actually practicing it for years.

At any rate the theory is this:

You, the average man, can be alive six years longer — and you don't have to wait for scientists to unravel the secret of longevity. All you have to do is sleep less.

And the man who says this is Dr. Angalore Pai, a foremost authority on sleep. He is a consultant in psychological medicine at Belmont Hospital, at Sutton outside London, England.

Dr. Pai believes a man is really living only when he is awake. So simple mathematics give the following: five hours sleep a night instead of eight over 50 years of average adulthood.

That adds up to six more years awake.

What you do with the extra six years is up to you. Thomas Edison slept only four hours a night.

"If he had slept more," Dr. Pai said, "the world might have had to wait a lot longer for him to invent his incandescent lighting system."

Dr. Pai began to doubt "the old wives tale" of eight hours sleep a night when he was a boy in India. He came to the conclusion from a study of Elizabethan documents that Shakespeare must have written by lamplight far into the night.

And if a man could turn out deathless masterpieces with little sleep there was obviously no damage to the creative process. So he started corresponding with scientists around the world and gathered a list of great men who found three or four hours a night sufficient for full and active lives.

"It occurred to me," he said, "that just as some persons eat more food than is necessary for the maintenance of good health, others, were, perhaps, taking more sleep than was required for the replenishment of vitality and were thus losing a lot of priceless living time."

Dr. Pai's theories might have remained theories except for the war. Figuring that air-raids would keep people awake and that this — under prevailing medical opinion — would lead to nervous breakdowns through loss of sleep, British authorities converted 14 large institutions into emergency psychiatric hospitals.

The mass outbreak of neurosis never happened.

Despite night disturbances of every type—air - raid sirens, bombings, discomfort, cold, overcrowding and the like — there was no increase in nervous breakdowns or illness.

- In fact there was a decrease although most people were lucky to get three or four hours of sleep a night.
- Dr. Pai recalled how this shattered reigning medical beliefs in discussing his new book, "Conquer Insomnia," in which he claims everybody not suffering from an organic illness can learn to sleep without drugs — and tells them how.

"My idea of sleeping less has a sound historical basis," Dr. Pai said. "Our caveman ancestors had no artificial light so they slept from dusk to dawn. As soon as illumination was discovered people began to find excuses to stay awake — work or study or entertainment or sociability.

"Already many people in this age of good lighting sleep only six hours or less. And I will make this prediction: by the year 2000 A. D. man may be averaging only three hours a night."

Dr. Pai believes nature intended man to arise soon after dawn so the morning hours from two to seven hours after waking are the best for all forms of activity.

Go to sleep later, is his formula, but discipline yourself to get out of bed at the same time.

For example a man who slept from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. would, if Dr. Pai were advising him to go to sleep at midnight — though still arising at 7 a.m. Then, after a period of adjustment to the new schedule, go to sleep at 1 a.m. and so on.

Dr. Pai said children need long periods of sleep up to the age of 12 when 11 hours is desirable. But thereafter the requirement for sleep diminishes although only adults should try to cut down to less than eight hours.

"There is no valid physiological basis to the eight hours of sleep theory," he said. "No one yet knows how much or how little sleep is in fact required for the maintenance of health, but there is no medical evidence that a big reduction in the hours of sleep would cause any appreciable deterioration in physical health or any loss of mental power or reduce the total human life span.

"On the contrary, by spending fewer hours in sleep a man can increase his effective life span."

ANOTHER FROM VIET NAM

From West Monroe, Mrs. Thad Wilcockson of 815 Johnson street passed on a letter to us from her son in South Viet Nam. Written from Bein Hoa, Viet Nam on Nov. 7 this year, the letter said:

"Dear Mr. Editor:

"My name is Jerry Wilcockson. I am a Private First Class serving in the Army in South Viet Nam. I am writing this letter concerning the people who protest the war in Viet Nam. I have always been taught to love my fellow man, but I find it hard to believe that American men and women really object to U. S. Servicemen being in Viet Nam.

"If these people who parade, protest and tell us we're fighting a useless war had to live without their freedom, they would change their mind.

"Perhaps these people don't care about the men in South Viet Nam, but if the U. S. troops were to move out of here, the trouble would never end. In a few years we may be fighting this so - called "useless war" on our own soil. One of the most important things in the world is freedom. Without this, we have nothing.

"In February I will be a father and I want my child to live in a world of freedom. Freedom to learn of a real and true God.

"Mr. Editor, I, like thousands of other servicemen, have dreams of seeing our families and loved ones again, but freedom is more important than this.

"I do not want to die here, but I do not fear death. I know my God is real and my trust and faith are in him.

"I, like Nathan Hale, regret that I have but one life to give for my country."

AIN'T IT SO — Too many people think honesty in government is a great thing — until you start getting personal about income tax returns, jury duty, etc.

MEMO TO COOKS

A Washington state health official has charged that several hundred thousand Americans a year contract salmonella poisoning from eating spray - dried and frozen eggs "unfit for human consumption."

The official — Dr. Ernest A. Ager — also claims many of the contaminated eggs and egg products are distributed by the Agriculture Department to school lunch programs, state hospitals and welfare agencies. Official figures show that last year the U. S. had 21,000 cases of salmonella (a bacteria) poisoning and 100 deaths from it, but Dr. Ager believes this is a "very small proportion" of the real total.

About 1.5 per cent of all eggs produced, he says, are cracked and have salmonella - containing manure on the shell (which then seeps through the egg membrane).

The Food and Drug Administration claims the poisoning has not been recognized as a problem but admits it has made several dozen seizures of salmonella - contaminated egg products.

Meanwhile, the Agriculture Department says 16 per cent of all unpasteurized egg products have salmonella bacteria and admits it has not insisted on pasteurization of these egg products because commercial processors have been opposed. However, this situation is expected to be corrected soon.

THIS REALLY happened—so they say: A New York college student found a letter from the electric company when he got home the day of the great darkness in the Northeast U. S. several days ago. The letter told him he had not paid his bill and the electricity would be shut off. Fifteen minutes later everything went dark — and just about everyone knew what happened. But unperturbed, the student went to sleep and only next morning learned that the 30 million other Northeasterners had shared the darkness.

Twin Cities Week In Review

Hunters Seeking News Or Ducks

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

Everybody hunts something, and whether one's inclinations are to deer, ducks or news, the week past was one to prick the ears of Twin City hunters.

To begin with, the recent controversy over duck hunting regulations on the parish's Cheniere Lake reached an apparent end—albeit an uneasy one. Meanwhile, deer hunters all over the area continued a running debate on the advisability of doe shooting.

TYLER

Official hunters in the City of Monroe contended their quarry had been found in one hunt—for the cause of noxious odors on the city's southside — while another hunt of long standing — for industry — was entering a new phase.

No one seemed quite certain what West Monroe utilities employee Tom Hobgood was hunting when he donned steel helmet and bulletproof vest, armed himself and took over the city's main water pumping station. Police, however, did quote him as talking of "little green men" during the siege.

Other hunts during the week concerned the West Monroe Chamber of Commerce, seeking the answer to the alleged problem of operating dual school systems, and the Monroe City School Board, looking for and preparing to receive further bids in its $6 million expansion program.

This corner went a-hunting itself, and in the order we've established, some of the details found on the items above, plus others, are served on our Sunday blueplate as follows:

COMMISSION OVERRODE

When the Ouachita Parish Police Jury Monday night threw out proposed bans on hunting ducks from boats and post-1 p.m. shooting on Cheniere, it deliberately overrode the recommendations of the commission it formed to run the lake.

The vote, following a lengthy public hearing, was no contest, with jurors roll - calling 14-4 against the restrictions, leaving the lake open to boat hunting and all-day shooting. The prohibitions, conceived in 1960, had been waived for the past three years.

All the same, commission member Andy Anders, who's president of the Ouachita Wildlife Unit, said the jury action represented "the first big step to destroying the commission."

Juror Arlan Rawls, later in the week, issued a public reminder on local aspects of the growing swirl of comment over doe hunting this season. Though the Louisiana Wildlife & Fisheries Commission has permitted opening day hunts, Nov. 26, on state-owned properties — such as the Russell Sage Game Management Area in Ouachita—the police jury here has joined those which are not allowing doe shooting on its lands.

Off the hunting spoor for a while, the jury Monday also passed a record operating budget totalling $1.8 million. It included $575,556 to the general fund, $1,190,160 to road maintenance, and $38,649 for operation of the Green Oaks Detention Home.

ON THE SCENT

Monroe officials meantime were close on the scene of those southside odors, of which residents have complained so vocaly in recent months—since installation of a sewage plant. Mayor W. L. Howard and Commissioner H. W. McSherry indicated findings that gases forming through the backup of sewage, thence escaping, were the culprits. McSherry said the experimental addition to sewage of chlorine at the 14th and Texas station seem to confirm the cause. Installation of a second chlorinator early this week, he expects, will eiminate the problem altogether.

The hunt for industry took an urbane turn during the week as the city commenced its first national advertising campaign with a page-ad in the influential Wall Street Journal. Still a fledgling, the campaign could grow eagle wings if the ad pays off substantially.

UNDER OBSERVATION

At last report, West Monroe's Tom Hobgood was being held for observation at the Ouachita Parish jail, but his reported capture of the city pump station, and holding of same for over half an hour, made sensational reading. After Hobgood entered the station and fired several shots into the ceiling, another employee rushed a call to police, who subsequently found the man barricaded in a closet. Officers said he had been seeing the green men for about 18 months.

SCHOOLS UNLIMITED

The week's next broad heading might best be tagged Schools Unlimited, so rich was the harvest from the vineyards of education.

Political activism among teachers was reaching the boiling point as school people braced for this week's Louisiana Teachers' Association convention in New Orleans. One of the items they'll grapple will be the proposed formation of L.C.I.E. (Louisiana Council for the Improvement of Education) — a "political wing" to air voting records in the legislature on education matters.

Speaking in Monroe, LTA President Joe Martina called the wing a "matter of survival."

At the same time, the West Monroe Chamber's scheduled forum on dual (City of Monroe and Ouachita Parish) school systems, was moving toward its staging Monday night, 7 p.m., in West Monroe High School auditorium. Featured speaker will be Sen. Jamar Adcock of Monroe, while other officials will outline for public comment their ideas on the situation, brought into contention by a Chamber report Sept. 2.

The Monroe School Board, the while, was going ahead with a $6 million expansion program, letting the contract Thursday for 18 new classrooms at Carroll High, and setting eight firm meeting dates to study or open bids on other phases. The successful bid on the Carroll work was $221,428.

SADDENING LOSSES

The Twin Cities were shaken and saddened during the week by the loss of two well-known figures—Ouachita Parish School Board member Roy Cash of Ward 5, and former Monroe police chief J. D. Busby, 73. The board quickly adjourned its Tuesday meeting out of respect for Vice President Cash, a member since 1962. The popular energetic West Monroyan, 57, succumbed at a football banquet Monday night from the effects of his second heart attack in some three months. Former Chief Busby, who died Wednesday at his Monroe home, also was the victim of a heart attack. Chief for three years under Mayor H. H. Benoit, he was a force member for 24 years, and after retirement was associated for eight years with the Louisiana Training Institute.

Though the parish boardman had three years remaining on his term, officials speculated that, with an election coming next summer, Gov. John McKeithen will appoint an interim successor until that time.

MOVING TARGET

The most effective way to hit a moving target is by loading with scatter shot. The Twin Cities' week was moving at a gallop, but taking aim at the pages of the Morning World, these items of interest were arrested:

United Givers' Fund general campaign chairman J. C. Loftin issued Tuesday an urgent appeal to workers for an extra push in helping the current fund drive to a Thanksgiving windup. The showing in Friday's sixth report meeting on the effort was much improved — listing 71.4 per cent collected of the $284,934 goal — though Loftin noted a long road still ahead. The week's total — $203,471 — was nearly $18,500 better than the week before.

James W. Moore and John Sherrouse of Monroe returned from an eight-day South American industry and shipping quest, in company with Gov. John McKeithen, and Moore called the trip a success.

The governor himself sallied through the Twin Cities briefly early in the week, flying with Olin Mathieson Chemical Corportation President Gordon Grand of New York. The pair had dedicated an ammonia plant in Lake Charles. Grand and his party inspected Olin's West Monroe facilities, while McKeithen proceeded to conferences in New York.

Mrs. Ada Gruber of West Monroe was re-elected president of the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Louisiana.

Student actors at Northeast Louisiana State College offered three performances of Arthur Miller's morality play, "The Crucible," set during the time of the New England witch hunts.

West Monroe City Clerk Harold Hill underwent surgery to correct a torn cartilage in his left knee, injured while officiating at a football game several months ago. He came through the operation fine.

Three local speakers got big headlines during the week: Agriculture Commissioner Dave Pearce talked to the Monroe Kiwanis Club, biological researcher and college professor Sayed el-Sayed, a native of Egypt, described the wealth of food in Antarctic waters to the South Arkansas Section of the American Chemical Society, and Lt. Gen. David Wade of the Strategic Air Command appeared before the Monroe Rotary Club. Gen. Wade, a native of Minden, commands the bomber and missile-proficient Second Air Force, headquartered at Barksdale Field. He and fellow officers offered a look at defense plans and preparedness.

Dr. Buckley Qualls of Northeast State College was installed as new chairman of the Ouachita Valley Boy Scout Council's central district, succeeding Robert Hanna of Monroe.

The World's Week In Focus

Reds Rebuffed, But How Long

By Oland Silk

AFTER READING THE week's news, one could marvel at the courage of 73-year-old T. J. Call of Busch, Arkansas, who has been living in a cave in the Ozark woods for 30 years. Flushed from his mountain Shangri-La, Mr. Call mused, "Oh, I've missed some things. But it's been quiet."

IT WAS A WEEK marked by a mixed bag of diplomatic-legal wins and losses by the International and home-grown Reds; a continued seesaw diplomatic battle between Britain and rebel Rhodesia, and another government metal crackdown. The White House also put to rest any thoughts that next January's Congress session will be a subdued one. The President announced sweeping civil rights action on education and jury justice will have "first priority."

Communist Candidates Next?

THE SUPREME COURT held unconstitutional a law requiring members of the Communist Party to register with the federal government. In a 11-page, unanimous decision, the court said forced registration under the Subversive Activities Control Act of 1950 is inconsistent with the Fifth Amendment guarantee against self-incrimination. Gus Hall, national communist leader, hailed the decision as opening the way for increased Communist activity. He said candidates for office will now be offered wherever possible.

But he was in for a surprise.

GUS HALL

The ruling left the Justice Department's 15-year fight against Red subversion in an abyss of frustration. The department has been trying to force registration of the party and its members since the 1950 law was passed.

The only ray of hope: the ruling was restricted to the registration of individual members. It left open the question of actual party registration. The Justice Department continued to prosecute its 3-week-old case against the party for failure to register as an agent of the Soviet Union. After two hours of deliberations, the Washington jury found the party guilty. The judge levied the maximum penalty, a $230,000 fine. The defense will appeal.

Senator Eastland (D-Miss.) was clearly unhappy with the earlier decision. Eastland is chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee. Said he, "It is not the first time the Court has overthrown a provision of the law enacted by the Congress as protection against subversion. Either our government has the power to protect itself against subversions, or it faces inevitable destruction."

Whether or not the party-must-register ruling will hold remains to be seen. The appeal will go to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals which reversed the party's 1962 conviction on the same charge.

U. N. Cliffhanger, Rhodesia Wrangle

FOR WHAT APPEARED to be the last time, Red China was barred from the United Nations. The U. S. was able to get its two-thirds approval rule accepted, which paved the way for keeping Peking isolated. The vote in the 117-nation General Assembly was 47 to 47 with 20 abstentions. In comparison with the last assembly vote in 1963 the opponents of Peking dropped 11 percentage points. It was the 15th time the Assembly had voted on the issue. Voting to recognize the Mao regime were American allies, France and Britain, although the latter supported the two-thirds rule.

JUST WHAT THE U.N. planned to do in the case of Rhodesia's breakaway government was uncertain. Nor was it clear how successful Britain was going to be in suppressing the rebel regime of Premier Ian Smith. But no one could say it wasn't trying.

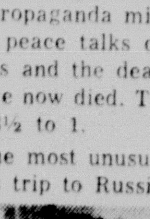
GIBBS

At week's end, Queen Elizabeth awarded Sir Humphrey Gibbs her personal order of knighthood, making him a Knight Commander of the Royal Victorian Order. Gibbs is (or was) the loyalist Governor of Rhodesia, who stands alone for British rule. Ordered out by Premier Smith, Gibbs has refused to leave. Smith stripped Gibbs' Government House of all office trappings, even snipping his phone wires. The distinguished Sir Humphrey was forced to contact the crown via secret radio. In fact, all normal communications between the colony and mother country have broken down. British Prime Minister Harold Wilson took to short-wave radio to warn Rhodesians "not to lay a hand on Gibbs." He also urged Rhodesians to do nothing to further the rebellion, and warned them the U.N. might use force to put down the revolt. Meanwhile, as decrees imposing sanctions on the colony zipped through Commons, Rhodesia raised prices on spirits and tobacco. Native Africans stirred ominously in some areas, and the outcome was far from settled. Britain has ruled out force, but just - passed laws empowered it to rule Rhodesia by decree. The crisis expanded to gun-point tension.

Bitter Fighting, "Peace Mission"

WAR AND PEACE — the real gut issues — remained unchanged. But there were portents, the meaning of which could hardly be assessed by mortal mind. Troops of the First Air Cavalry confirmed 1,207 Communist dead in bitter 6-day fighting. U.S. losses, always termed "moderate", were believed to be the heaviest of the Viet war. North Vietnamese committment was so heavy, U.S. officials believed they badly wanted a victory to bolster their morale, feed their propaganda mills and move to a position of strength in case peace talks develop. It was "no retreat" for the Americans and the death toll rose accordingly. Well over 1,000 men have now died. The ratio of VC and our dead remained about 3½ to 1.

There were flurries of peace conjecture. The most unusual step underway was Senator Mike Mansfield's trip to Russia.



MANSFIELD

He and his delegation stopped off in France where he talked with De Gaulle, on to Poland and Moscow. Mansfield, Democratic Majority leader, was sent by President Johnson. His ultimate destination is South Viet Nam. Whether he has an oral message to the Russians from the President wasn't known. But Mansfield described his talks with Gromkyo as "very interesting." The delegation also met with Premier Kosygin. The secrecy surrounding the mission indicates the delicacy of the Viet Nam situation for the two Great Powers. It boiled down to politics. The Kremlin must be cautious in reaching a deal lest other Communist nations construe it as treachery. The Johnson Administration fears a deal could be attacked as giving unnecessary concessions — and for not fighting the war to a successful conclusion. The Kremlin has maintained that it cannot alone determine on what terms the North Vietnamese will stop fighting.

There was little doubt the mystery-wrapped Mansfield trip was a peace mission. The Montanan said his purpose was "to see, to observe, to note facts and to report them when we return home."

MAGAZINE and correspondent reports that Hanoi has made peace bids that were rejected by the U.S. ruffled the war-peace waters even more. The ghost of Adlai Stevenson was conjured up to blame Defense Chief McNamara for refusing in the fall and winter of 1964 to accept a Hanoi offer. McNamara made a blistering denial. However, it was generally accepted that U.N. Secretary U Thant failed to get the U.S. to agree to send a representative to Rangoon for secret talks with a Hanoi envoy. Reasons for refusing: the U.S. did not believe Hanoi was sincere, the U.S. position was weak at the time, and secret talks would have undermined the shaky Saigon regime.

Peace feelers are in constant circulation on both sides. But officials are keenly aware that there is no obvious room for compromise. Many observers feel a negotiated end to the conflict may never be — that rather than risk humiliation of surrender, the VC may just quit.

Club On Copper Less Bruising

THE GREAT ALUMINUM War which the government won hands down was hardly over before the copper industry felt the gentle tap of White House censure. The decision: 200,000 tons of copper released from strategic stockpiles. Johnson said he did so on the recommendations of his economic advisers. Buford Ellington, LBJ's Director of Emergency Planning, made the action a defense matter. Many observers felt this tack would eliminate the angry charges from the copper folk. Indeed, they seemed to swallow the new pill without complaint. Senator Dirksen (R-Ill.) didn't like it, however.

McNAMARA

"It is federal price control," he said, "without the requisite of legislation on the books to authorize it. If it isn't retaliatory price control — an effort to sink the market — then I ought to climb back in the woodwork."

House minority leader Gerald Ford said he wished the Administration would "go to the root of the inflation problem and do something about its irresponsible fiscal policies rather than pick on industries.

THE ACTION SHOWED once again that no business can stand up against the government. Just who will be next and what weapon will be used — persuasion, a club, threats, or a public bawling out — is uncertain.

It was interesting to note that President Johnson again did not comment publicly on the "anti-business" action. McNamara made the announcement, as he did on aluminum. Whether or not the administration's honeymoon with business was over, it did seem the bride had her bags handy for departure.

Rights Front To Boil Soon

IF JOHNSON was playing it coy with business, he was blatantly open on civil rights. In his most sweeping message since June on that issue, he called for passage of a bill to "prevent injustice" to Negroes at the hands of all white juries. He alerted all federal agencies that racial justice must be sought actively. The President spoke at a meeting of 200 rights leaders in Washington. He will direct the Civil Rights Commission to make a broad study of the problem of race and education in hopes of aiding local governments to "build a school system that is color blind."

On a new jury bill, the President directed the Justice Department to produce legislation that will take racial discrimination out of the jury box at all levels of government. One legal officer said, "we're faced with a whole batch of problems in coming up (with a bill) that will do the job without violating the constitution."

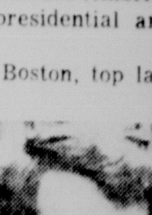
A. PHILIP RANDOLPH, president of Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, followed LBJ's speech with a demand for "a vast freedom budget — a nationwide plan for the abolition of ghetto jungles in every city, even at the cost of $100 billion."

Down South, demonstrators centered their activities in Greenville and Selma, Alabama. They mixed some schools and held protest marches.

Spitting Reds, Gangland War

U.S. VISITORS SOUTH of the border got a mixed reception. Secretary Rusk was spat on — he termed it an "unconventional" greeting later — by a leftist in Uruguay. The man was conked on the head and hauled off to a hospital. Rusk was unshaken by the incident at a wreath-laying ceremony. He was en route to Rio for a foreign ministers meeting.

Senator Robert Kennedy, lately of New York, also received a similarly moist reception in Chile. Leftists students at the University of Concepcion spat on him, and tossed garbage, eggs, orange peels and stones. Only the spitter was on target. Kennedy managed to get a few words in at a rousing rally. The dissenters were in a minority. Elsewhere in Chile he and wife Ethel were received warmly. The tour of South America is designed to lend prestige to Kennedy's presidential ambitions.



KENNEDY

MEANWHILE, BACK in Kennedy's native Boston, top law officers laid out a blueprint for ending the gangland warfare which has claimed 28 lives in the Greater Boston area in the last 20 months. Gov. Volpe held police meetings at the state house. Gang feuds and loan shark operations have been blamed for many of the killings. Most of the victims have been shot in the back of the head—the gang trademark. Latest victims were a bartender, and an Irish-American who went into the Mickey Mouse bar to buy cigarettes, and an ex-convict.

Boston police ordered a roundup of every known hoodlum for booking, mugging, and fingerprinting.

Appointment Fuss, Hijacker Arrested

THE APPOINTMENT of Lawrence Chehardy as Jefferson Parish assessor by Gov. McKeithen stirred up a hornets nest in New Orleans. Office holders and editorials denounced McKeithen's choice. Main gripe: the appointment was made over the recommendations of Jeff Parish legislators and other officials. They wanted Roy Wilty to fill the post. Gus Weill, McKeithen aide, said Chehardy was named on the advice of Orleans Parish District Attorney Jim Garrison. Some officials were wondering how he got mixed up in the case. Chehardy pledged cooperation with all parish officers.

A brilliant, addled 16-year-old Texas boy, Thomas Robinson, attempted to hijack an airliner over the Gulf, forcing it to Cuba to help foes of Castro. The boy, fired five or six rounds into the floor of the DC8 carrying key officials of the Gemini space program.

He was disarmed when an icy-nerved electronics executive distracted him with a handful of gold coins. The terrified passengers were en route from New Orleans to Melbourne, Fla. Robinson was ordered held for possible grand jury action.

THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL intends to work up proposals to extend legislative sessions to 90 days. The council, official research arm of the Legislature, also agreed to prepare agenda proposals to consolidate House and Senate committees by reducing the number and curbing multiple committee appointments. Legislators are unhappy with the 30-day and 60-day sessions, terming them inadequate to handle legislative business.

A member of former Gov. Sam Jones executive branch study group said the group may propose the budget-making powers of the Legislative Budget Committee be given to the Division of Administration. Much controversy has centered on fiscal powers recently. Sen. Jamar Adcock, chairman of the powerful budget committee, has expressed concern the committee would be abolished.

In Mississippi, Ku Klux Klansmen convinced Greenville police Negro Muslims had buried guns in a grave. The coffin was unearthed. No guns. Police declared the whole affair a hoax. Klansmen claimed they had been watching Negro burials for years. Hodding Carter, crusading Greenville editor, lambasted the KKK in an editorial, comparing them unfavorably with jackasses. He praised Sheriff Earl Fisher and his deputies for their work under pressure.

‘Little Black Box’ Goes Along With President

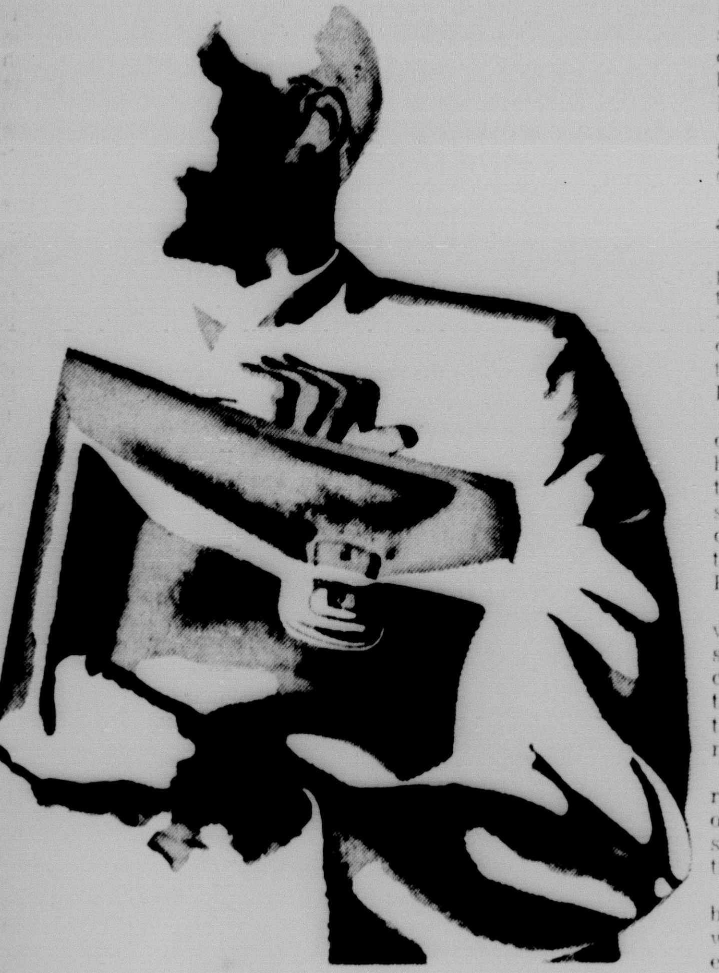
Shadowy Man Of Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — At 1 p.m. on Nov. 22, 1963 a quiet man from Washington named Ira D. Gearheart was in Dallas, Tex. His assignment was vital, and it was secret.

So far as the official record goes, there is still nothing to show he was even there.

But while President John F. Kennedy lay dying in Trauma Room One at Parkland Hospital, Gearheart sat outside in the lobby, unobtrusively guarding a brown leather briefcase someone had nicknamed the "football."

Inside the case were coded messages by which the president could order nuclear missiles and bombs against any enemy.



Gearheart's one assignment that day: keeping the case within quick reach of the commander in chief.

He had flown with Kennedy into Dallas and was riding in the downtown motorcade that suddenly became a race to the hospital.

Moments after 1 p.m. with word that Kennedy was dead of an assassin's bullets, Gearheart picked up the briefcase and strode past the emergency room desk into a surgery suite where, behind drawn shades, sat Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

With those few steps came the first real, if not formal, transfer of presidential power.

Gearheart was now following a new leader.

"I can't describe how the vice president looked when I entered the room," Gearheart says, "and I've never been able to decide what my feelings were at that moment. But it was a day I'll never forget."

Gearheart was one of the quiet, faceless individuals who have been entrusted to carry the "football," or the "message", or "black box", as the codes have been called, when the President leaves the White House.

All are Army warrant officers who have been cleared for top security classification. These couriers alternate at carrying the case, although no regulations cover their secret assignment.

Their cargo is a national security portfolio of cryptographic orders the President would send his military chiefs to authorize nuclear retaliation.

The orders can be dispatched by telephone, teletype or microwave radio. All three means are established for the President wherever he goes by the little-known White House communications corps.

The courier is attached to this agency, once part of an Army Signal Corps group but now part of the Defense Communications Agency at the Pentagon. The DCA rides herd on a worldwide military communications setup which links the Pentagon with such key security installations as the North American Air Defense Command in Colorado Springs, Colo., and the Strategic Air Command headquarters near Omaha, Neb.

The President can be in touch with any or all three installations in a matter of seconds — and the courier must be present with the coded orders to meet any emergency.

The courier is armed and usually wears civilian clothes to resemble just another of the men who go with the President. When the President stays overnight at a hotel, the courier usually sleeps in a room on the same floor. If a military safe is available, the briefcase, secured by a combination lock, may go there.

Lt. Col. George J. McNally, chief of the White House communications agency from 1946 until he retired a few weeks ago, recalls the system was first instituted late in the Eisenhower administration.

Before then, presidential aides carried the documents. They still do around the White House.

"Communications was our area, though, so logically it seemed we should be responsible for forwarding the 'message'," McNally says. The Secret Service gave its blessing to an unwritten agreement, and the system was formalized.

The couriers are trained to know what the messages contain and how they are to be used — but they are powerless to use them.

"It would be impossible for anyone other than the President to give the word to use the bomb," the silver-haired, mustached McNally said in an interview at his Rockville, Md., home. "The Pentagon would merely disregard a message from anyone else."

This, then, makes any loss of the briefcase less critical.

For one thing, McNally says, the messages are coded and would be meaningless to a person lacking the code key to interpret them.

"Visualize the thing as a dollar bill torn in half," McNally says. "The President has one half, the Pentagon the other. Only when the President sends his half will the two pieces key together, or fit."

Second, he adds, the procedures of putting the nation's emergency defense plans into action involve too many people — among them the President, the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the secretary of defense.

"The idea of one man pushing the button and starting World War III is just a phony idea that grew up in the atomic age," McNally says.

No one has ever tried to steal the football.

"During presidential travel the courier is secluded from outsiders," he says. "Everywhere, the President is heavily guarded. Security is too tight."

No public record exists of the courier role played by Gearheart the day of the assassination. The Warren Commission which examined all facets of the crime questioned neither Gearheart nor McNally, nor Maj. Gen. Chester V. Clifton, Kennedy's military aide.

But the commission quizzed 552 other persons ranging from Mrs. John F. Kennedy to housewives and teen-agers.

One month after the assassination, Gearheart retired from the military as scheduled, completing 30 years in the Army, including three at the White House. Now 55 years old, he lives in Palm Bay, Fla.

Still the secret man, Gearheart will talk only cautiously about his assignment that Nov. 22, where he was trailing Kennedy through Dallas.

Gearheart said in a telephone interview that he was riding about 10 cars back in the motorcade, and couldn't see the black presidential limousine as it moved past the Texas School Book Depository building. The radio set was on.

"Suddenly, we heard something like, 'He's been shot,' " Gearheart recalls. "We didn't know, but we suspected who it might be."

"Next thing we heard a Secret Service agent or someone in the president's car say, 'Get to the hospital.' The motorcade took off.

"When we got to the hospital, I helped other communications people open up telephone lines to the airport. Then Secret Service agent Roy Kellerman told me to stick by."

In Trauma Room One, doctors worked over the body of the president. Down the lobby in the surgery suite, Vice President Johnson and his wife were rushed quickly inside under guard.

As people scurried about, Gearheart checked with Gen. Clifton, then stationed himself near a desk at the entrance to the emergency room. He knew no more than the nurse at the desk about Kennedy's condition.

At Dallas' Love Field, where the presidential jet waited to resume the Texas trip, McNally had been thinking how smoothly the stop was going.

"We had been warned we might have a bad reception in Dallas," McNally says, "but it turned out the crowds were friendly. Since this stop involved only the motorcade and the luncheon speech, I stayed at the airport. We have to move fast when the president is ready to go. I figured this one was duck soup."

McNally had accompanied Presidents Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry S. Truman and Eisenhower on previous campaign trips. He went to the cafeteria for a bite.

"I had just stepped up to pay the bill when I noticed the cashier, about 55 or 60, sitting there with a glazed look, staring in space. She was talking to herself — 'He's in the hospital. . . He's been shot' — then about that time the public address system ordered all personnel to their stations," McNally says.

"I shoved her the money and we ran to Air Force 1. There was such excitement you'd think the Russians had attacked.

"Within 15 to 20 minutes we got word this wasn't just a shooting — he was dead," McNally says.

A vast communications network was poised for whatever crisis the nation now faced.

As a matter of routine, McNally's communication teams had connected Air Force 1 with two telephone lines, one for presidential use, another for the pilot and crew to keep in touch in case of last minute schedule changes.

Thus, with immediate access to long distance operators, the presidential party had the means to reach the White House and Pentagon, nerve centers of the nation's worldwide communications net.

A few minutes after 1 p.m., presidential assistant Malcolm Kilduff officially told newsmen that the president was dead.

With the announcement, Gearheart carried the "football" to the suite where Mr. and Mrs. Johnson sat. He said nothing. The briefcase remained locked.

Quickly, secretly, Secret Service agents escorted Johnson to a waiting police car. Gearheart and agents followed close behind.

At 2:40 p.m., in stifling heat, Air Force 1 rose in a clear sky and headed for Washington. Among its passengers: a newly sworn President, a blood stained widow and one silent man carrying a brown leather briefcase.

Progress In War On Poverty

In the world's richest nation there are about 35 million people who live in or at the edge of poverty. President Johnson declared war on poverty and here is a progress report.

By BEM PRICE
Associated Press Writer

In the fall of 1964 the nation's antipoverty warriors mustered and marched off to war, their progress marked by communiques of hope and good intentions.

The initial attack by the Office of Economic Opportunity has been blunted by reality and the troops are now entering the trenches.

President Lyndon B. Johnson has warned it is going to be a long, tough struggle.

He outlined OEO's goal in January 1964 when he said: "Our aim is not only to relieve the symptoms of poverty, but to cure it and, above all, prevent it."

Walter Heller, then chairman of the Council of Economics Advisers, later interpreted the President's war declaration: "The essence of the President's attack on poverty is the creation of new economic opportunities, a chance for the poor who are able to do so to earn their way out of poverty."

Some idea of the war's magnitude can be gleaned from the fact that there are 9.3 million families in the nation, about 35 million people, who have annual incomes of less than $3,000. There are 1.1 million families with annual incomes of less than $2,000.

Some economists account these 35 million people as deprived on the grounds that they lack the basic necessities of life — medical and dental care, adequate diets, housing and sufficient clothing.

Another 45 million Americans are classed by these economists as poor in that they have enough income to acquire the necessities, but not enough to partake of the luxuries associated with "the American way of life."

The antipoverty war is now entering its second year.

How is it going?

On June 30, 1965—the last date for which reliable figures are available—OEO had obligated $790 million; that is, OEO had committed itself to spend that much.

OEO had actually spent, however, only $195 million.

The Job Corps is behind schedule and has other problems besides.

The domestic Peace Corps, known as Volunteers in Service to America or "Vista" is also lagging.

The programs for community action are just coming into operation at the grass roots level in most of the 1,199 participating communities. These programs call for a coordinated attack on the causes of poverty at the local level using all available antipoverty weapons, public and private. The community programs are the very heart of the war.

Two programs — Project Head Start and the Neighborhood Youth Corps — are classed by OEO as unqualified successes although NYC has been having some problems with communities that have employed children of the non-poor.

There are political overtones to the wrangling in some communities over who is going to control the poverty program, especially who is going to get the credit for helping the poor help themselves.

The law calls for "maximum, feasible" participation of the poor at all levels of the poverty program — administration, policy making and as workers.

What is "maximum" and what is "feasible" has been a headache from the outset, with OEO sitting as judge and jury in each case. At the local level politicians have expressed fear that this imprecise franchise in the law could be used to organize the poor to fight City Hall.

On Nov. 5 the Bureau of the Budget, which often expresses White House policy, suggested to OEO that less emphasis be placed on establishing the poor in policy making positions and more attention to be paid to employment of the poor at the operational level.

OEO objected strenuously and publicly to the suggestion. The White House denied that the Budget Bureau had acted on its instructions. It was an OEO victory and OEO remains wedded to the idea that the poor should be involved at all levels.

Finally there is the matter of long range planning to provide the poor with jobs, medical care, decent housing and improved schooling.

OEO has within the past six months begun to assess the size and shape of its long range problems. Joe Kershaw, chief of the planning and evaluation section, agreed in an interview that jobs were the key to the program's success and said the goal was a national unemployment rate of 3.5 per cent. It is presently 4.4 per cent.

To reach this goal, he continued, American industry is going to have to become a full-fledged partner in the antipoverty war by opening doors to the poor job seeker.

In Los Angeles, the executive director of the newly formed poverty board is Joe P. Maldonado, a tough product of the Mexican-American community.

"As I see it," he said, "the primary aim is to prevent another generation from developing in poverty while doing what is possible for this one."

Kershaw agreed: "Basically, we've got to break into the circle so the kids don't grow up in poverty. You take a man, who is now plowing a mule in some rural area, who is 50. He is immobile. There isn't much you can do for him except maybe make the last 10 years of his life more comfortable.

But," Kershaw continued, "God knows we've got to get the kids out so they don't become equally immovable, half-starved and living in shacks."

OEO, which is operating on a budget of $1.5 billion, is directed — without pay — by Sargent Shriver, brother-in-law to the late President John F. Kennedy and to two Democratic senators, Robert F. Kennedy of New York and Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts. He is also director of the Peace Corps, a job for which he is paid $30,000.

As of Aug. 14 — the latest date for which firm figures are available — OEO had 1,303 employes and of these, 825 earned less than $9,500 annually. Ninety nine earned between $9,500 and $12,500 while 379 earned more than $12,500.

Shriver originally estimated his first year administrative costs would be $3.5 million. He spent $6.1 million.

The six top executives just below Shriver were hired as $100 a day consultants, worked full-time and remained on the payroll for nine months to more than a year.

All the top six have resigned or are in the process of resigning. The resignations began Aug. 15 and the last of the six leaves Feb. 15. Shriver said replacements had been found and he did not believe the turnover rate was higher than in other government agencies, or even in private industry.

Only within the last couple of months has OEO shown signs of shaking down into some form of stability with employes beginning to acquire civil service status.

As matters now stand, however, city officials complain it takes OEO five to nine months to process an application.

There are, of course, the usual red tape complaints.

Chicago, for example, enrolled 23,525 children in the preschool training program, Head Start. Chicago asked for and got permission to draw its own medical examination forms. OEO sent out 75,000 federal forms anyway.

There were 10 evaluation and progress reports required for each child enrolled in Chicago's initial, eight-week program — more than one every five days.

There have been charges, often leveled in Congress, that OEO is curing poverty mainly by hiring people to work on the antipoverty operations.

Another charge is that those running the programs at the state and community levels were picked on the basis of political patronage.

In a survey of 15 cities, The Associated Press found the annual salaries for poverty war directors ranged from $25,000 in Los Angeles to $10,000 in Memphis.

In 46 of the 50 states, directors' salaries varied from $25,000 in New Jersey to $8,500 in Nebraska. Some states have not yet picked directors.

In any case, the poverty program generally by passes state involvement and is arranged on a community-federal government basis.

With only rare exceptions, each city involved in the program had picked administrators with long and well established records in the antipoverty field.

The selections at the state level, however, were something else.

Twenty-three of those appointed to state posts had been active politically on behalf of the incumbent governor. Some were without experience in welfare work. They included real estate men, a building contractor, a novelty manufacturer, unsuccessful candidates for Congress, lawyers and political science professors.

Again, except for a rare exception, none of the state appointees was given a startling increase over what he had been earning.

As to specifics about the major programs:

The Job Corps planned to enroll 40,000 youths the first year in camps offering basic educational courses and work training. It enrolled 12,981.

Much has been made in Congress about the dropout rate in the camps. OEO befogged the issue by saying it was only 3 per cent for corpsmen. This was technically true since an enrollee wasn't classed as a corpsman until he had been in camp 30 days. OEO now calculates the true rate at 13 per cent.

There have been five well-publicized incidents at Job Corps camps — Astoria, Ore., Lewiston, Calif., Breckinridge, Ky., Battle Creek, Mich., and St. Petersburg, Fla.

OEO's investigation of three characterized them as minor and exaggerated.

At Battle Creek, the FBI arrested four corpsmen who were reportedly running a protection racket — kickbacks to avoid physical abuse.

OEO insists that only one incident — that at Breckinridge — was worthy of much attention. This was apparently a fight, with racial overtones, among 100 or so youths which started in a mess hall.

As a result of the incident at Breckinridge, near Morgantown, Ky., the camp's contractor, Southern Illinois University, announced that 227 of the 578 employes would be dismissed.

The university's spokesman said the reduction reflected an end to camp construction plus the need to economize. Enrollment at the camp is down to 374 from a high of 600.

A great deal of publicity did accompany charges of disorders at the women's camp in St. Petersburg, Fla. OEO said this was not attributable to those enrolled, but to neighborhood youths.

To date the jobs corps has graduated 318, half of whom got jobs. OEO said the others returned to school or planned to enter the armed services. Three of the graduates got white collar jobs — the first reported — with Consolidated American Services in Washington, a private enterprise.

As for Vista, OEO says the original enrollment goal was 2,000 volunteers to work with the poor in communities and on Indian reservations. There are statements, however, indicating the original goal was between 3,000 and 5,000 volunteers.

OEO says 1,315 are "in training or in the field." Of those selected originally, 204 dropped out — 175 from training, 29 from actual projects.

Shriver said Aug. 11, 1964 the community programs should reach 600,000 directly and 930,000 indirectly. This, however, was before the Head Start program and the Neighborhood Youth Corps got under way to any extent.

OEO originally planned to enroll 100,000 children in Head Start. It actually enrolled 561,000.

The original goal for the Youth Corps was 200,000. It wound up the year with 277,000.

But the Youth Corps has had some troubles.

Its aid to Memphis was suspended after, OEO reported, an investigation showed that youths there were being required to kickback part of their earnings to hire an additional supervisor.

OEO is investigating the NYC program in Carlinville, Ill., where 269 youths were put to work at $40 for a 32-hour week. The charge is that the youths are among the non-poor and all were the children of Democrats.

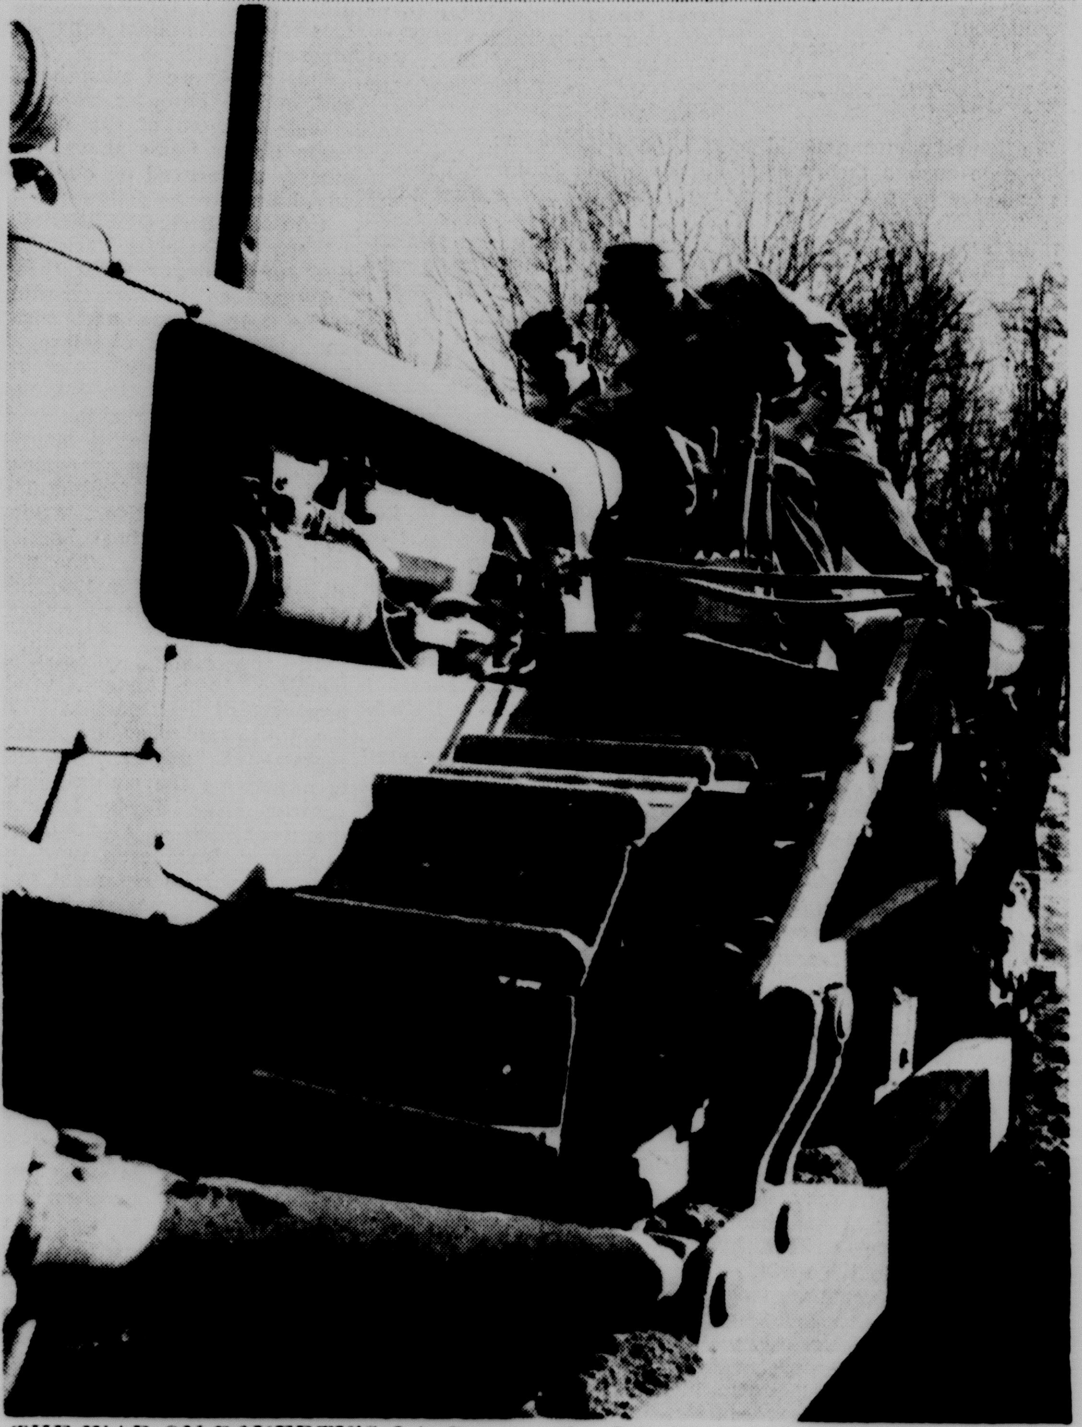
Somewhat similar investigations are underway in Kansas City and Providence, R.I., where children in the nonpoor classification reportedly were hired.

But of all the headaches facing the poverty program in general, none quite matches that to be found in New York's Harlem.

The poverty program has been called "Harlem's last hope."

As matters now stand, the Harlem program, which antedates the national, is apparently an administrative mess. OEO has shut off federal funds — $1 million — until it is straightened out. New York has subpoenaed the program's books to find out what happened to $800,000 which had been mixed in a sort of common pot.

The Harlem program as originally planned was to be free of any taint of politics. It was to have an organization separate from the city's. And it does.



THE WAR ON POVERTY'S Job Corps has had a rough initiation during its first year. With a planned enrollment of 40,000 in training camps, it enrolled 12,981. The drop-out rate is estimated at 13 per cent, and publicized incidents developed at several camps. As of now, the Job Corps has graduated 318, half of whom got jobs. WITH A NATIONAL unemployment rate of 4.4 per cent, War on Poverty planners aim at a cut to 3.3 per cent. Some think a massive public works program will be needed to supply the jobs. One of them, objecting that this "implies roads and dams," thinks in terms of a "public employment program." Here newly trained young Job Corpsmen split logs as they repair flood damage to a recreation site at Alsea, Ore. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

THE SLUMS AND shacks in which the poor grow up and live are among the conditions which make it harder to break the pattern of poverty, as seen by experts. Long-range housing programs are included in plans of the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEC). Sub-standard housing is found in cities and rural areas. These shacks are on the east side of Los Angeles, where many Mexican - Americans live. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

There's A Church Home For You in the Twin Cities . . .

Give thanks to the Lord.

Anyone desiring to know the location of a church of any denomination in the Twin Cities and the time of its Sunday services may call The Morning World at 323-2070, FA 3-3660, FA 3-0501 and ask for the church service directory. We'll be glad to supply you the information.

Dimitrios Most Venerated Saint

By CHRIS ELIOU

SALONIKA, Greece (AP) — Greece has many local saints but none more venerated than Dimitrios, the "sweet-smelling," patron saint and protector of Thessaloniki (Salonika).

Dimitrios was born to a wealthy Thessalonikan family in the second half of the Third Century, during the reign of a Roman emperor, Dicletian, noted for his persecution of the Christians.

Accounts vary as to the time of Dimitrios' conversion to Christianity. According to some authorities, he became a Christian while still a youth.

According to other accounts, the conversion came toward the end of his service as an officer in the Roman army. But this version, has him engaging in missionary activities while still an army officer dedicated to preservation of the pagan beliefs of Rome.

Inevitably the moment came, in the year 303, when his Christian beliefs came into conflict with his army duties. Refusing to carry out orders of persecution, he was called before the emperor. He confessed that he no longer believed in the Roman gods and would not renounce his faith in Christ.

PRETEXT

He was thrown into jail, and shortly afterward put to death. The pretext was the killing of a wrestler.

Laios, one of the stars of that year's games at the Salonika stadium, was a wrestler whom records describe as "massive and of immense strength." Few responded to his challenges. Thessalonikan youths were afraid that to do so meant defeat and death.

Finally, the challenge was accepted by a youth named Nestor, a Christian and a friend of Dimitrios. Resolved to face his "Goliath" in the arena, he went to the jail and consulted Dimitrios.

Records are unclear on what occurred at that interview but all, agree that as Nestor left Dimitrios encouraged him, making the sign of the cross on his forehead, wishing him victory, and sending him to the arena "full of faith and confidence."

Nestor wrestled Laios, defeated and killed him, to the rage of Emperor Maximilian, who was present at the games that day. He ordered the immediate execution of Nestor and also of Dimitrios, who was tortured and then dispatched by a "lance in the side."

Believers retrieved the body of Dimitrios and buried it within the precincts of the prison. Almost at once, the miracles began, and the reputation of the saint as a healer began to spread beyond the bounds of the city.

So well known were the stories of cures performed by Dimitrios that Leontios, prefect of Illyricum, in the year 412, traveled to Thessaloniki in search of treatment. On being cured, he commissioned the building of a basilica — the first of a series of churches of St. Dimitrios — on the site of the baths and stadium where the saint had been tortured and slain.

PERFORMED

At once, according to legend, a fountain under the apse of the basilica began to eject perfumed healing oil which attracted many pilgrims and caused St. Dimitrios to become as "Myrovlitis" "the "sweet-smelling." The oil, it was said, originated from the actual sepulchre of the saint.

The attendant of the modern Church of St. Dimitrios will show visitors to the dungeon where the saint was imprisoned, executed and buried. From there a corridor leads to catacombs and the original church. This crypt came to light after a fire in 1917.

CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

The first anniversary of the Calvary Baptist Church in Goodwill will be observed today with a Harvest Day program. Organized with 26 members, the church now has 80 members. A holiday dinner will be served following the morning worship. At 1:30 p.m. there will be a special Thanksgiving program and singing. The Rev. James P. Hayes is pastor.

JIMMY ALLEN

Jimmy Allen To Conclude Lectureship

A well-known lecturer, author, and Bible teacher, Jimmy Allen, will be featured speaker today on the concluding programs of the First Annual Northeast Louisiana Lectureship of the Churches of Christ being conducted at the White's Ferry Road Church Building, 3201 North 7th St., West Monroe.

The series of studies deals with the topic of "Stewardship."

Allen, at 35, has gained recognition as a world evangelist, program officials said. He covered more than 29,000 miles on one world excursion this year. In early 1964, his travels carried him through the Middle East and parts of Europe, including Lebanon, Egypt, Syria, Iraq, Israel, Jordan, Greece, Italy, France, and England.

RECENT CAMPAIGN

In one of his most recent efforts this year, he campaigned in Brisbane, Australia. In 1964 he spoke to more than 125,000 people in one preaching campaign in Dallas, Texas. In the immediate future he has cooperative meetings scheduled in 17 major cities of the United States.

Officials said that in 1964 in 19 gospel efforts, more than 1,600 persons responded to the invitation of Jesus Christ, and to date in 14 meetings he has been instrumental in bringing about more than 2,000 responses. He has addressed more than 250,000 persons this year.

He will speak at the 10:30 a.m. regular worship hour today at the White's Ferry Road Church of Christ on the subject, "American Youth in Danger," at 3 p.m. today he will speak to an area gathering there on the subject of "Total Commitment."

The Pastor's Corner

Thanks Unto God For Our Blessings

By REV. LEA JOYNER, Pastor
Southside Methodist Church, Monroe

REV. LEA JOYNER

As we come to the season of Thanksgiving, as Americans we are reminded to be grateful at an officially designated time . . . As Christians, we should be grateful continually, remembering the admonition of St. Paul in I Thessalonians 5:18: "In everything give thanks."

On this national holiday both church and state contribute to its significance, for even the first Thanksgiving, as you recall, was religious. The true character of the church when she is wholesome and faithful to her tradition, is to give thanks, to be willing to sacrifice and show concern for others. The "thread of thanks" links us with the everlasting, eternal, and infinite. When strong enough to take the strain of life and dedicated enough to give all, then God makes us useful day by day and in His good time draws us gently home to Him. Yes, "In everything give thanks." With great vision, great faith, and grateful hearts, mighty souls are produced. We, with the courage and faith of our country's founders, are able to face the problems of everyday living. Only God can give us a thankful heart, a thankful life, and an attitude of thanks.

OFFER THANKS

Today, let us thank God for the blessings overlooked, forgotten, and ignored. Most of us can be divided into two classes — those who take things for granted and those who take things with gratitude. The right thing to do is to be grateful for, to accept benefits from God or man without a thought or a word of thanks is mean, contemptible, and underminds faith in human nature. The least we can do is to say "thank you" for as the story goes, "Even a dog will wag its tail when something good comes his way." To be grateful puts us in a constant state of happiness and good will, and we are able to thank God, as we grow in the Christian faith even in pain and suffering, for his blessings. So often we overlook the common blessings of life, but what a "blessed" people we are today. Truly we are the objects of God's love and how sad it is when we remember Him only when He delivers us. When we take time to say "thank you" to others, it pleases God, for He sends many of His mercies by the hands of other people. He wants his agents, you and me, to give thanks.

UNSEARCHABLE RICHES

Then we can thank God for his goodness to all of us. How wonderful it is that we can celebrate the goodness of God by counting our blessings. We do not count our blessings as the materialist or as the rich man in Jesus' parable in Luke 12 or as the egotist using the personal pronoun profusely. We can count our blessings when we are truly thankful that we have a God to thank. Think for a moment of the unsearchable riches that we enjoy: release from guilt and fear, deliverance from sin, forgiveness, capacity to forgive, serenity of spirit, comfort of heart, and love unending. We can remember God's goodness and thank Him for it by remembering the blessings given. We celebrate the goodness of God by taking our blessings seriously. We take our blessings seriously when we accept them as stewards. To use our blessings for self is to become parasitical. To accept them in trusteeship and share them with others is to become channels of God's grace. Thus, let us give thanks for the goodness of God.

VICTORY IN CHRIST

Thank God for victory in our Lord Jesus Christ. In our gratitude we voice the reality and presence of God in human history and beyond. Jesus is the Lord of love drawing near to save us and give us eternal life. We can hardly imagine what our life would be without Jesus. Grateful are we for this victory that the faithfulness of His love is more dependable than the faithfulness of our fears for with Jesus we conquer the insecurity of fear.

Thanks be unto God —

—The length of His love outlasts the stubbornness of our sin;

—The strength of His purpose is more durable than the straying of our aimlessness;

—The rest in His peace is more real than the restlessness of our conflicts;

— The height of His hope erases the depths of our hopelessness;

— The promises for they are more safe than the struggles of our doubts;

— The freedom of His service gives more liberty than our own willfulness

— The assurance of life after death.

Yes, thanks be unto God for victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

To thank God for blessings overlooked and ignored, to thank God for His goodness, and to thank God for victory in our Lord Jesus Christ is to experience the real meaning of Thanksgiving. To exercise this grace of gratitude brings power to share, softens and regenerates human nature, replaces self-pity with courage, peace, and assurance. It gives a balance to life and harmony in everyday living. Do you want to be happy — useful. Then try being thankful, for this is the will of God in Christ for each of us. "In every thing give thanks."

Churches Join In Thanksgiving

Several union Thanksgiving services are scheduled in Twin Cities churches under sponsorship of the Ministerial Alliances.

The union services Thursday on the north side of Monroe will be held at 10 a.m. at the First Presbyterian Church, 1200 Stubbs, with the Rev. Fred Flurry, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist Church, delivering the sermon.

Other churches participating in the service will be Temple B'Nai Israel, St. John's Christian Church, Covenant Presbyterian Church, and Westminster Presbyterian Church. Grace Presbyterian Church of Sterlington, and Woodlawn Presbyterian Church of Bastrop have been invited to join in, officials said.

Several downtown Monroe churches will join in a union service 10 a.m. Thursday at the First Christian Church, 401 St. John, with the Rev. Walter G. Mangham, assistant pastor of the First Baptist Church of Monroe delivering the sermon.

In West Monroe, a union service will be held 10 a.m. Thursday at Memorial Presbyterian Church, North 4th and Mill, with the Rev. James White, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church, delivering the sermon. The Rev. Doyle Whitesel, pastor of Welcome Home Church of God, will preside. The choir of West Monroe First Methodist Church will be in charge of special music.

The West Monroe service was planned by the Ministerial Alliance program committee composed of Rev. Hugh Bradshaw, pastor of Memorial Presbyterian Church, Chaplain Don Weininger of Glenwood Hospital, and the Rev. Kenneth McDowell, pastor of the First Methodist Church of West Monroe.

Many churches will take note of the Thanksgiving season at midweek services Wednesday, and some will follow this theme in services today.

Thanksgiving eve services will be held Wednesday at Southside Methodist Church, 1623 S. 4th St., Monroe, starting with a family night supper at 6:30 p.m., to be followed by a program around the supper table in the Fellowship Hall starting at 7:30 p.m. There also will be special music.

A special Thanksgiving program will be held at the evening worship hour, 7 o'clock, today at Emmanuel Baptist Church, N. 5th and Breard, Monroe.

The program will be narrated by the Rev. Fred Doolittle, pastor. Others speaking on the program will be three intermediates, Susan Yorks, Ronnie McBeth, and Jackie Wiggins, and Mrs. Ann Creel and Miss Luna Livingston.

Background music will be provided by the Adult Choir under direction of Howard Jackson, and accompanied by Mrs. Marie Moncrief.

The program was planned by the music committee of the church, with Mrs. Barbara Watson as chairman. Church officials said that it is designed to give the secular and scriptural meaning of Thanksgiving.

GUEST SPEAKER

A layman from Highland Presbyterian Church of West Monroe, D. C. Frantom, will be guest speaker at the 11 a.m. service today at Westminster Presbyterian Church, 200 Selman Drive, Monroe.

Presbyterian Youth Plan Convocation

Presbyterian high school age youth from throughout Louisiana will hold a convocation in Baton Rouge at the First Presbyterian Church, December 28-30.

This was announced by the Rev. George H. Ricks of Baton Rouge, regional director of christian education for the Presbyterian Synod of Louisiana. He said convocation director will be the Rev. William O'Neal, pastor of Broadmoor Presbyterian Church of Baton Rouge. The Synod Youth Council headed by Albert Meyerer of Baton Rouge, moderator, will work with Rev. O'Neal in planning the convocation. Dr. John W. Melton is host pastor.

ON COUNCIL

Other Baton Rougeans serving on the youth council are Mary Taylor and Dale Worsley. Other youths serving on the council are Allan Derr of Alexandria, Margaret Baird, Minden; Christy Kennedy, Shreveport; Cynthia Gladney, Homer; Cynthia Hebert, Hammond; John Bergeron, Thibodaux; Bob Reynolds, New Orleans, and Leppaine Chiphe, Frierson.

The program will include three major addresses from out of state leaders, panel discussion, a film, and 20 discussion groups led by Presbyterian ministers and adult leaders of youth from all parts of the state.

Rev. O'Neal announced the following chairmen of convocation committees:

Rev. John Bradshaw, Denham Springs, finances; Rev. and Mrs. Marion Reynolds, Baton Rouge, local arrangements; Rev. Ed Stock Jr., Memphis, Tenn., publicity; Rev. August Schmitt, New Orleans, advance study material; Rev. George Lankford, New Orleans, chairman of film discussion; Rev. William Hatcher, Ruston, and Miss Margaret Hunter, Monroe, chairmen of counselors.

Denomination Budget Goal Record Level

The Church of God, seeking a record $1,800,000 World Service budget for 1965 - 66, has announced its United States congregations established an $11.82 per capita giving for national and world causes in the past year.

Total congregational giving, however, exceeded $21,500,000 with a per capita index of $154.70, according to Paul A. Tanner, executive director for World Service, general fund-raising arm of the church at general offices in Anderson, Ind.

World Service underwrites, in part, work of the church's seven national agencies, including Anderson College, Warner Pacific College at Portland, Ore., home and overseas missions endeavors, church extension and evangelism, Christian education, the international Christian Brotherhood Hour radio program, church service and free literature.

ALASKA LEADER

Alaska is out front in per capita World Service giving with $24.67. Others on the "challenge level" are Wisconsin, $18.93; North Dakota, $18.67; Minnesota, $17.49; Indiana, $17.40; and South Dakota, $16.62.

Ohio took the lead from Indiana during the past year in total World Service giving with $233,927 compared to the Hoosier state's $228,146.

Tanner said at the close of the 1964 - 65 fiscal year the Church of God has established a new World Service level of giving totaling $1,650,010.

Revival Team Will Appear At Area Church

Temple Baptist Church of Winnsboro will present the revival team of evangelist Dr. E. J. Daniels of Orlando, Florida starting Sunday, November 28 and continuing through December 5.

Dr. Daniels is author of 22 books and editor of a religious magazine. He has spoken in many sections of the nation and in many foreign countries. The New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary is honoring him by establishing an evangelism center in his name.

Music for the revival will be under the direction of the Rev. Lowell Leistner, soloist, and John Bos, organist. The Rev. Joe Mongle is pastor of the church. Sunday services will be at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., and week day services at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. A nursery will be open during all services.

New Era Seen In Church Ties

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A rebuilt foundation, whose construction was troubled by tensions, delays and confusion, exists today for a full-scale restoration of the bonds between Judaism and Christianity.

Although the ties go deep into a common spiritual ancestry they have been widely disregarded for centuries. But now a firm basis is ready for revitalizing them.

And concrete steps are under way for doing so.

It has been a gradual, sensitive process, climaxed recently by the Vatican Ecumenical Council's formal promulgation of its new affirmation of Roman Catholicism's Jewish roots and its desire to foster this relationship.

"A turning point in 1,900 years of Jewish-Christian history," says Morris B. Abram, president of the American Jewish Committee. He called it a launching toward "a new era in relations between Catholics and Jews."

There are close to a billion Christians in the world, nearly 600 million of them Roman Catholics, and about 13.5 million Jews.

NEW COMMISSION

In the United States, Roman Catholic bishops immediately set up a new commission, headed by Bishop Francis P. Leipzig, of Baker, Ore., for strengthening links with Judaism.

He foresaw "a new era of friendship and cooperation with our Jewish brethren for the benefit of all men."

The Vatican action was only the latest major step of a general development, involving other Christians as well, and it came after some strained analysis in Rome and considerable misinterpretation elsewhere.

One of the most widely reported misconceptions was that the declaration "cleared," "absolved" or "exonerated" Jews for Christ's death, falsely implying they previously were blamed for it — which is contrary to Christian doctrine.

REPUDIATION

What the document actually does, as the Rev. Thomas Stransky of the Vatican unity secretariat points out, is to repudiate that baseless prejudice which has been circulated against Jews by people in and out of the Church.

"As the Church has always held and holds now," the declaration states, "Christ underwent His passion and death freely, because of the sins of mankind and out of infinite love in order that all may reach salvation."

Hitting at the slur against Jews, the document asserts that the specific carrying out of the Crucifixion cannot be attributed "to all Jews without distinction then alive, nor to the Jews of today."

In fact, the declaration points out, Christ, the Virgin Mary, the 12 apostles and most of the early apostles were Jews, and all Christians since are spiritual "sons of Abraham," as stated in Galatians 3:7.

Since this "common spiritual patrimony . . . is so great," the declaration says, studies, work and "fraternal dialogues" are urged to reinforce it.

Similar affirmations of this joint heritage came earlier from other Christian bodies, including the World Council of Churches, embracing most major Protestant, Anglican, Old Catholic and Eastern Orthodox denominations.

Its 1961 general assembly also denounced the notion ascribing Christ's death to Jews. It pointed to the basic Christian kinship to them, noting Jews were the first to accept Christ, and not the only ones who don't today.

With the recent Roman Catholic action, all the major branches of Christendom now stand committed to revivifying the ancient brotherly ties.

As Church scholars have observed, much of the impulse for these moves grew out of the Nazi period and the atrocities against Jews, when rabbis, priests and ministers often shared prison cells.

LONG DELIBERATION

Final issuance of the Roman Catholic declaration followed three years of intermittent deliberation, beset with frictions, redraftings, postponed votes and small, but intense opposition, some of it from churchmen in Arab lands.

One revision, which at first stirred considerable Jewish misgivings, was the deletion of the word "Deicide" (God-killing) from the section repudiating the idea of Jewish responsibility for Christ's death.

However, the term was cited in a footnote, saying it and others like it such as "Christ-slayer" must "disappear completely from the Christian vocabulary." Some bishops considered it so insidious that it should be kept out of the formal text; others thought its use there might imply Christ was not Divine.

In any case, after explanations were aired and after the final text became available with other phraseology making the point, some Jewish leaders who had voiced doubts about the changes modified their reactions to firm approval.

A Protestant theologian, the Rev. Dr. James William McLendon, of Golden Gate Baptist Seminary at Mill Valley, Calif., summed up the matter this way: "The Christian doctrine is that Christians are truly Jews — adopted into Israel by the work of Christ, the Jew who is our Savior . . . no Christian should ever say, 'The Jews killed Jesus,' without immediately adding, 'And I am a Jew.' The only race guilty of His death is the human race."

Gospel Concert Is Scheduled

Three singing groups will be featured at a gospel concert starting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, December 2, in West Monroe High School Auditorium, under the sponsorship of Wesleyan Missionary Church, Inc., of West Monroe.

Featured on the program which will last about 4½ hours will be Jake Hess and the Imperials, the Plainsmen Quartet of Baton Rouge, and the Happy Goodman Family of Madisonville, Ky. Advance tickets are now on sale.

St. Paschal's Series Slated For 2 Weeks

A two weeks mission — spiritual revival — will be conducted starting today at St. Paschal's Catholic Church, 711 North 7th St., West Monroe, it was announced by the Rev. Vitus Duschinsky, pastor.

The first week of the mission, extending to November 28, will be for the women of the parish, including high school students. The second week, extending through December 5, will be for men, including high school students.

There will be two masses every morning, at 6:15 and 8, and special services every evening at 7:30.

Thanksgiving Day services all will be conducted in the morning.

The two home missionaries taking part in the series, Father Albert Schlubek of Chicago, and Father Joseph Benedict Hagen, St. Louis, Mo., are specialists in conducting missions, said Rev. Duschinsky.

Youth Work Revitalizing For Church

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) —St. George's Episcopal church in the West End of Louisville was on its last legs.

It had opened in 1912 and by 1945 had 250 members, mostly white. Then the whites began moving to the suburbs. Membership shrank to 20 and the church was put up for sale.

One night in May 1964, Negro teen-agers broke into the gymnasium. That incident sparked a new life for St. George's.

The Urban Mission Council, newly formed of priests and laymen from city churches, saw an opportunity for service.

A council member said, "Coming at a time when we of the inner-city churches were literally praying for direction and guidance in our mission and ministry, this seemed to be a real call."

St. George's became a council project.

REFURBISHED

The gym and adjoining yellow-brick church were refurbished. Youths now play basketball there, often without supervision.

"We've never had any trouble," says the Rev. Charles B. Tachau, the minister. Dances are held each week. They had to be stopped for a while because the gym could accommodate only 300 and 600 were attending.

A Boys Club for 70 youths, aged 8 to 14, meets in the basement which, with help of the Salvation Army, has been equipped with pool tables, table tennis and handicraft facilities. Rooms adjoining the gym, used for church school and coffee hours on Sunday, are sites for story hours for younger children on Saturday mornings.

Above them is a large room used by the Volunteers in Service to America, the domestic Peace Corps, and a community organizer for the federal anti-poverty program.

DEDICATION SLATED

Dedication and opening of the West Carroll Revival Center, about three miles west of Oak Grove on the Old Dummy Line Road, Highway 587, will be conducted Sunday, November 28. Services will start at 10 a.m. and dedication will be at 2 p.m. There will be special singers and guest speakers on the program. The Rev. Roy Stockstill of Baker will be evangelist for a revival series starting opening night at the center. The Rev. R. C. Matheny is pastor of the center.

BOTH THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks and the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials declined this week. The Associated Press average closed Friday at 354.0 from 355.2 from a week ago. The weekly loss in the average was the largest since last July. The Dow Jones average dropped to 952.72 from 956.29 last Friday. (AP Wirephoto Charts)

Pressure On Copper Buffets Stock Mart

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was buffeted last week by pressure on copper stocks as the government moved to halt rising prices of another metal.

The market, measured by the popular averages, showed a marked decline over a week ago, although there was strength in spots.

The administration's move in copper, following last week's rollback of aluminum price increases, probably had as much psychological as practical impact, brokers said. Washington's decision to release 200,000 tons of copper from the federal stockpile dropped some averages Thursday to their sharpest setbacks in months.

Generally, economic indicators remained favorable. Automobile production hit a 1965 weekly high and sales for early November were the biggest in history for the period. Steel production inched up. Corporate profits gained again in the third quarter and cash dividends showed a 10 per cent increase over 1964.

Blue chip issues largely marked time or declined. American Telephone was bouyed briefly by a 10 per cent increase in the quarterly dividend but the pressure of an FCC rate investigation appeared to continue to outweight the additional yield.

The Associated Press 60-stock average dropped 1.2 to 354.0. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 3.57 to 952.72.

The margin of losers over gainers was fairly narrow, however—701 to 689. Volume for the week increased to 39,703,380 shares from 31,935,361 the previous week.

Treasury bond prices were mixed during the past week, but corporate and municipal bond prices drifted lower. Some early strength in the treasury bond market was dissipated by a wave of new corporate and municipal bond issues.

The volume of new issues tended to weigh prices down, as in the municipal bond market, dealers said. Lows for the year outnumbered highs 92 to 39. The volume of trading totaled a par value of $69.4 million.

SENATORS TO TRAVEL

TOKYO (UPI)—Seven members of the U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee, led by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., will arrive in Japan next week to confer with members of this country's legislature.

A U.S. Embassy announcement said the Senators will spend next weekend in Kyoto, former capital of Japan. After leaving Japan, they will fly to India to take part in a similar program of informal meetings with legislators and government officials.

12 Permits For Construction Approved Here

Construction of $27,500 worth of building projects was approved with the issuance of 12 building permits in the office of Dale B. Martha, coordinator of building, plumbing and electricity in the City of Monroe, during the past week.

All applications were for remodeling purposes, both to residences and to business firms. Three permits were issued to move a residence. One residence will be demolished.

Those issued grants for moving and alterations were the following:

Moving — Lennon Foster, from Jackson and Oak Streets to 3002 Barlow; Thames and Company, from 6110 DeSiard St., to West Monroe; and I. F. Bennett, from 207 Cole Ave., to 705 Mississippi St.

Residential alterations — Lillie May Elwyn, 1003 N. 7th St.; G. W. Miller, 804 Florida St.; Ed Johnson, storage, 1902 Griffin St.; William Scott, 3912 Gayton St.; B. M. Carr, carport and storage, 3017 Lee St.; Frank Anzalone Jr., 1302 Speed Ave.; R. L. Pohl, 602 Filhoil Ave.; and Daisy Moss, storage, 2605 Oak St.

Demolition — Victoria Williams, 2200 Oak St.

Commercial alterations — Pepsi - Cola Bottling Co., brick office building, 1700 S. Grand; Boatright Construction, brick offices, 320 and 320-A DeSiard St.; Jack Dew, brick store, 339 DeSiard St.; and Donald and Kitchens, brick office, 600 N. 5th St.

Three Area Parishes Report Completions

There were no fields completed in Ouachita Parish this week in the Monroe Oil and Gas District, but three other parishes reported numerous completions.

The weekly field report issued by the office of Duncan S. Cook, district director, for the week ending Thursday, shows 82 locations, with 36 active and 72 inactive. Ten wells were completely abandoned and one well expired. There were two re - completions.

This week there were 25 wells completed and 17 new locations.

Completed wells were reported in Catahoula Parish, one; Concordia Parish, five; and Morehouse Parish, 19.

There were 17 permits issued during the week for new locations in six parishes: Catahoula, four; Concordia, six; LaSalle, one; Morehouse, two; Rapides, three; and Tensas, one.

Federal Stockpile Is Used As Weapon

NEW YORK (AP) — The government used its stockpile again during the week as a weapon against advancing prices.

This time the move was aimed at the copper industry. The previous week the target was the aluminum industry.

However, the parallel between the two moves wasn't exact.

The government's prime objective in threatening to release 300,000 tons of aluminum from its strategic stockpile was to roll back a price increase. Throwing that amount of aluminum into industry channels would have glutted the market. The move was successful and producers rescinded their increase.

In the past two weeks all U.S. copper producers except No. 1 ranking Kennecott had boosted their prices to 38 cents a pound from 36 cents to meet the world quotation.

On Wednesday night, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, repeating his role as government spokesman in the aluminum showdown, announced plans to release at least 200,000 tons of copper from the strategic stockpile.

The government said its aim was to nip the climb in copper prices and to ease a world shortage.

The big difference between the copper and aluminum situations was that there is a shortage of copper, whereas aluminum is in reasonably good supply. Prices of copper sold by nonproducers, such as suppliers, has rocketed to nearly 70 cents a pound.

The Western world used 5.3 million tons of copper in 1964 and produced 4.4 million tons. The balance came from scrap.

The government's stockpile now holds 810,000 tons with 775,000 tons estimated as a necessary reserve for war.

In addition to releasing metal from the stockpile, the government proposed:

—To control exports of copper and copper scrap to conserve domestic supply.

—To ask Congress to suspend the 1.7-cent-a-pound import duty on copper.

—To ask the New York Commodity Exchange to curb excessive speculation in copper trading by raising margin requirements.

Initial reaction from the copper industry was favorable.

Phelps Dodge Corp., one of the major producers, said, "We welcome the government's decision to sell stockpiled copper."

It added that, "The additional supply should tend to bring down the very high prices which have been charged by nonproducers."

The company called the other proposals by the government "constructive."

But it declined comment on whether the government's action might lead to a rescinding of the price boost by producers.

The curtin came down on the government-aluminum industry controversy when they agreed on sales of stockpiled aluminum. The agreement called by the producers to buy 150,000 to 200,000 tons from the 1.4-million-ton surplus next year and 100,000 to 200,000 tons annually thereafter.

Limited Price Ranges Cited On Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Minor and mostly counterbalancing influences held the grain futures market generally within limited price ranges last week.

Trade on most days was rather light with small bulges attracting the rather meager commercial demand along with some reinstatement of speculative commitments.

Trends seemed never decisive or convincing. Hedge selling of corn and soybeans was a little more than the demand could withstand at times but analysts expressed belief that taken as a whole the factors probably favored the long rather than the short side of the trade.

The lagging corn harvest was a steadying factor much of the time. The movement to market has not been up to the volume of a year ago, probably because of the high moisture content of the grain.

Oats derived a spurt of speculative support about midweek from a report that a good export demand might develop later. Soybeans had support from soybean oil and indications that processors are running at capacity.

At the end of the week, wheat was ¼ cent a bushel higher to ⅜ lower than a week ago, December $1.64; corn ⅝-¼ lower, December $1.15⅝-¾; oats ¼-⅞ higher, December 69⅝ cents; rye 2⅛-3¼ lower.

Record Crude Oil Mark In U.S. Reached

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—More crude oil now is being produced in the United States than ever before in history.

Last week's production averaged a record 7,980,510 barrels a day. It was only the third time in history for a weekly average to exceed 7,900,000 a day.

There is indication the record will climb even higher by the end of the year.

Texas has increased its December production allowable. The increase will be rather modest but it will boost the state's current output of 2,814,650 barrels a day, the highest average since early 1959.

The healthy year-end trend indicate 1965 production may exceed 7,750,000 barrels a day, compared to a record 7,657,000 in 1964.

One of the industry's top spokesmen has estimated the 1965 increase at 110,000 barrels a day and believed 1966 output will jump another 300,000.

J. Ed Warren, president of the Cities Service Co., says 1965 domestic crude output has not fully reflected the growth in product demand in that some demand was met through downward adjustments of crude oil inventories.

"Hence the forecast of a healthy gain in the order of 300,000 barrels a day in 1966," said Warren, who retired Nov. 10 after two years as board chairman of the American Petroleum Institute.

In reporting more realistic or workable inventories, the institute estimates the domestic industry had a 78 day supply of crude and products on hand Oct. 31, comared to 84 days a year earlier.

Warren said the adjustments have resulted in the soundest inventory position the industry has had in several years.

Grambling Tigers Take SWAC Title

GRAMBLING (Special) — All American fullback Henry Dyer scored the opening touchdown and started the Grambling Tigers to a 34-14 victory over Southern University and the Southwestern Athletic Conference title.

A crowd of 29,310 was on hand for the crown battle, including numerous Jaguar fans that didn't expect to see their team in a title scrap before the seaon.

Dyer hit paydirt from 34 yards out in the first quarter to give the Tigers a 6-0 lead after the kick had failed.

Leroy Carter got the first Tiger score in the second frame on a one yard burst and Westley Bean booted the conversion.

After Sli Smith crashed over from the nine later in the period, the Tigers took a comfortable 20-0 lead into the dressing room at halftime.

The third went scoreless and the Bengals got another seven-pointer before giving any ground to the Jags.

Charles Washington plunged over from the two and Anderson ran the PAT before Southern's Robert Holmes cashed in on a seven yard run.

Carter picked up another tally for the Tigers on a 10 yard spurt before Elmo Maples hauled down a 19 yard scoring pass from Rhome Nixon to end all scoring.

Dyer, a top pro prospect, hammered out 152 yards for the afternoon.

Grambling will face Lincoln University Thanksgiving Day in New Orleans in the Sugar Cup Classic.

Demons Beat Southeastern With Guidry

HAMMOND, La. (AP)—With freshman quarterback Donald Guidry passing for three touchdowns, Northwestern State's Demons beat Southeastern Louisiana 38-22 in a Gulf States Conference game Saturday.

NSC rocked SLC with two quick first quarter touchdowns and was in command the rest of the way.

The first score came when Harold Petrie plunged over from the one to cap a 58-yard drive. After the kickoff, SLC halfback Gary Borgeron fumbled to NSC on the SLC 27. James Aymond got the touchdown on the first play—a gallop around end.

Guidry, a slender youngster who runs a slick option play, kept NSC in front of the hard charging Lions.

Petrie caught a 21-yard Guidry touchdown pass that made it 24-14 at the half. Guidry also hit Bobby Parker with a five-yard scoring pass and Monte Ledbetter with a 17-yarder.

The most spectacular throw of the game was lofted by SLC's Lester Smith — a touchdown throw to Butch Poe with the play covering 66 yards.

SLC freshman end Duane Floyd snagged eight passes to boost his total for the season to 28—a record for the school.

Smith hit on 13 of his 18 throws for 254 yards. But by the time the Lions took to the air in their effort to catch up it was too late.

NSC ended its season with a 5-4 record over-all and 2-3 in the GSC. SLC is 4-4 over-all with 2-3 in the loop.

SLC has one more game—against Appalachian State here Nov. 27.

Pott Takes Over Lead In Dark's Invitational Golf

LAKE CHARLES, La. (AP) — PGA tour star Johnny Pott vaulted to the lead in the $10,000 Alvin Dark Invitational Golf Tournament Saturday, firing a four-under-par 68 for a 54-hole total of 205.

That gave him a two-shot lead over the field.

Two veterans and a young touring pro were tied at 207. John (Buster) Cupit shot one of the day's best rounds — a 68 — to nail a share of second place, along with venerable Dutch Harrison and Richard Crawford.

Crawford came in with a three-under par 69 over the 6,705-yard, par-72 Lake Charles Country Club course.

Harrison, 55, continued his sturdy play with a 70.

Bob Panasiuk, the leader for two days, faltered to a 74 and was three shots off the pace at 208. Tied with him was Jay Hebert, who had a 72.

Among baseball celebrities competing, Kansas City's Ken Harrelson led with a 227 total after a round of 79.

Ralph Terry of the Cleveland Indians and host Alvin Dark also had 79s. Terry's total stands at 229, Dark's at 231.

Actor Robert Sterling was at 239 after a 74 and former major league coach Al Vincent stood at 247.

New York Yankee star Mickey Mantle had a 255 total and Gene Freese of the Chicago White Sox was at 269.

Former St. Louis Cardinal great Stan Musial teed up but did not complete the round.

Furman Routed

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The Citadel closed its most disastrous football season in 11 years on a high note Saturday, routing favored Furman 28-0.

The victory was the second in 10 games for the Cadets and left them with a Southern Conference record of 2-6 against 2-3 for Furman, which finished 5-5 for all games.

Masters, Screen Fire Aroused Tigs

BY JACK GATES

News-Star—World

BATON ROUGE—Billy Masters, the towering strongback from Olla, and quarterback Pat Screen, who played for the first time this season with all of his old quickness, fired Louisiana State to an amazing 62 to 0 victory over Tulane Saturday night and a Cotton Bowl date with Arkansas on New Year's day.

Athletic Director Jim Corbett announced a few minutes after the game that LSU had accepted the bid to meet Arkansas, the Southwestern Conference champion.

The Cotton Bowl meeting will be the 34th game between Arkansas and LSU in a series that began in 1901. By virtue of 10 straight victories, LSU holds a 21-12-1 advantage in the series.

The Tigers, 7-3 for the season, last appeared in the Cotton Bowl in 1963, defeating the University of Texas, 13-0. Incidentally, LSU has never been defeated in the Cotton Bowl, although they were tied 0-0 by Arkansas in the event in 1947, the only previous time the two teams have met in a bowl game.

YARDSTICK	Tulane	LSU
First downs	11	29
Rushing yardage	87	332
Passing yardage	93	165
Passes	9-31	10-16
Passes intercepted by	0	4
Punts	6-44	4-42
Fumbles lost	2	0
Yards penalized	0	34

The bowl bid put a thrilling climax on a season that started out good, then dropped alarmingly when the Tigers dropped two in a row before flashing back against Mississippi State a week ago.

It was generally known that LSU would get the Cotton Bowl bid before the Tulane game, provided it won and it did in convincing fashion. Arkansas had become the host team earlier in the day with a 42-24 win over Texas Tech and run its unbeaten string to 22 victories.

It was the final regular game of the season for both the Tigers, which finishes with a 7 - 3 record, and the Green Wave, which waltzes out of the Southeastern Conference to the tune of a pounding by LSU.

Although just about everyone but the water boy scored in the Tulane rout, it was Masters, the 6-5 junior, and Screen who shown brilliantly offensively.

Masters scored three touchdowns, and picked up 68 yards rushing on five carries, while Screen scored one touchdown but set up a number of others and also tossed for a two-point conversion. In all, he completed 8 of 10 passes for 136 yards as LSU amassed an offensive total of 497 yards to 180 for the near-hapless Greenies.

Others scoring touchdowns were quarterback Billy Ezell, end Doug Moreau, Sammy Grazaffi, Jim Dousay and Don Schwab.

In all the Tigers, gained 165 yards passing and 332 yards rushing and a total of 29 first downs to 11 for Tulane, which only penetrated the LSU end of the field twice during the night.

Almost from the start, it was obvious the Tigers had come to play football. They scored at the rate of more than a point a minute and scored 21 points in the first 10 minutes of the first period.

It tied the previous all-time scoring record set against Tulane, once in 1958 and again in 1961.

In all, the Tigers recovered two Tulane fumbles and intercepted four passes.

Defensive back Mike Vincent set up the first LSU score when he grabbed Tulane quarterback Bobby Duhon's pass on the Tulane 41 and returned it to the 31. Six plays later, Screen, on a fourth down play, swept to his right and cut in from four yards out for the score. Moreau's kick was good.

On the next series, the Tigers started at their own 42 and quickly moved to the Tulane 25. There the 225-pound Masters took a pitchout and swept right end for 25 yards and a touchdown, blasting two defenders from his path at the five. Moreau again booted true and the Tigers led 14 to 0.

A short time later, Spike Pierce intercepted another Duhon pass at the 48 to set up the third touchdown. This one was scored by Ezell who went five yards and again Moreau kicked good.

On the second play of the series after the kickout, Bill Bass, a Tiger linebacker, grabbed a Duhon pass at the Tulane 30, however, the Greenies held and Moreau missed a field goal attempt at the 37 but the Tigers were not to be denied. On the first play from the Tulane 20, Duhon fumbled and Ernest Maggiore pounced on it for the Tigers at the Tulane 20. Two plays later Screen tossed to Moreau in the end zone for the score with less than a minute left in the first period. Moreau's kick was good and as the period ended, LSU held a 28-0 lead and a total offense of 155 yards.

The tempo let up somewhat in the second period as the Tigers scored only one touchdown. After Tulane couldn't move, it punted to the LSU 12 where Grezaffi returned it to the LSU 49. Two plays later from the 45, Screen hit Masters on a 45 yard scoring play. Again the big Olla back ran over would-be tacklers on his way to the goal line after taking in the pass at the Tulane 30. Moreau missed the point, but no one was worried as the Tigers led 34 to 0. That is the way the first half ended although later in the period, Moreau tried another field goal, but missed. A 16 - yard Ezell to Larry Fambrough pass had aided the drive to the Tulane 15.

The Tigers turned on the steam again in the third period. Grezaffi started it when he flashed 78 yards on a punt return for a Tiger touchdown. Taking the ball on his own 22, he swept up the field with big George Rice throwing the key block at the Tulane 30. This time Moreau's kick was good.

A few minutes later, Rice recovered a Tulane fumble at the Greenie 41 yard line. Masters picked up 14 yards, then Schwab seven. Then from the 19, Masters again headed goalward and scored standing up on a right end sweep. Moreau's kick was good.

The two final LSU touchdowns came in the fourth period. Dousay scored one on a four - yard plunge, and Schwab got the other on a one yard buck over the line, after two Screen to Moreau passes had set it up, with a 14 - yard jaunt by Joe Labruzzo.

On the first fourth period touchdown, Ezell tried the extra point with Moreau holding, a switch, but he missed. Then on the final touchdown, Screen tossed to Moreau for the two pointer to make it 62 to 0.

The deepest penetration the Greenies made was to the LSU 38 and never once threatened a score.

Masters was the Tigers ground gaining leader, followed by Gawain Dibetta with 62, Schwab with 50 and Labruzzo with 49. Ezell completed 2 of 6 passes for 29 yards and another 18 scrambling on the ground.

After the game and after the Cotton Bowl bid, coach Charles McClendon said. "We are thrilled that the selection committee of the Cotton Bowl has extended us this invitation. Their faith in our team is gratifying and it will be a real challenge to our team to meet Arkansas. We have a good football team and I know that they will give a good account of themselves on New Year's Day."

Corbett said, "We have an excellent football team and a colorful one, and we are happy that the Cotton Bowl authorities have given us the opportunity to show this against possibly the best team in the nation. I am proud of our team. Coach McClendon and his staff, and I feel that this pride is shared by Tigers fans everywhere."

This will be the Tigers fourth consecutive bowl appearance since McClendon took over four years ago.

USL Tops 'Pokes To Gain GSC Tie

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Southwestern Louisiana staged a strong second half comeback to defeat McNeese State 14-7 and grab a share of the Gulf States Conference championship Saturday night.

The victory enabled USL to split the title with McNeese—each finishing with a 4-1 GSC record.

Trailing 7-0 at halftime, USL scored twice in the third period, then held off a McNeese drive late in the game to post a fifth straight victory. USL's season record is now 7-2, with one game to go. McNeese ended the year 6-4.

McNeese received the opening kickoff and marched 79 yards in 15 plays for its touchdown. The payoff came on a 1-yard plunge by tailback Merlin Walet, top GSC scorer this season. The extra point was kicked by Richard Guillory.

Early in the third quarter a short McNeese punt gave USL possession at the Cowboys' 41. On second down USL quarterback Bill Bayard heaved a 41-yard scoring pass to end Kent Finley. The tying conversion was kicked by Joe Landry.

Moments later, a McNeese fumble was recovered by guard Nolan Snaron to give USL possession at the McNeese 21. Seven plays later O'Neal Weber scored from the 3 on a keeper for the deciding touchdown. Landry again converted.

With eight minutes left in the game, McNeese drove from its 20 to the USL 13, but the Bulldog defense took over on downs with just three minutes left to play.

The leading ground gainer was McNeese's tailback Merlin Walet, who picked up 112 yards in 25 carries. Bayard was USL's offensive leader, completing four of four passes for 73 yards and rushing for 21 more.

This is the most victories in one season by a USL team since 1938 when it had an 8-2-1 record. And it's the second time in the 18-year history of the GSC that Southwestern has shared the championship.

USL will play Chattanooga on Thursday to end the season.

Houston Battles Seminoles For 16-16 Deadlock

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida State and Houston missed a total of three chances to score in the final minute and 13 seconds and battled to a 16-16 tie Saturday night.

Florida State missed two field goals and Houston one — all from within the 30-yard line.

The two teams were tied through most of the second half, and FSU sophomore Pete Roberts got a chance for a field goal from the 17-yard line with only 1:13 left.

On Houston's first play from scrimmage, halfback Dick Post fumbled, and the Seminoles got another chance. This time Roberts' attempt from the 27-yard line was wide.

Houston quarterback Bo Burris brought his team down to the Florida State 21 with two long passes giving the Cougars a last-second chance, but a field goal attempt by Ken Hebert from the 28 was short and wide.

Florida State controlled the ball through most of the second half.

Delta State Tops La. College 30-7

CLEVELAND, Miss. (AP) — Delta State trounced Louisiana College 30-7 Saturday night to wind up its season with eight victories and one loss.

Mike Vincent passed for one touchdown and ran another, and Payne Spence booted three conversions and a 46-yard field goal and caught a 37-yard pass from Bob Bain.

Vincent opened scoring with a two-yard run, and passed seven yards to Billy McMullan for another. Spence then booted his long field goal and Delta led 17-7 at the half.

In the third quarter, George Chesser ran a one-yard touchdown to cap a 77-yard drive by Delta, and later in the period Bain connected with Spence.

Louisiana College briefly tied the score in the first half on Carroll Hymel's 14-yard end run and George Fields' conversion.

Laird, Davis Break Marks In Last Game

By KEITH PRINCE
World Sports Editor

RUSTON — Louisiana Tech's Billy Laird and Wayne Davis capped brilliant careers with record breaking performances here Saturday night to lead the Bulldogs in a 54-7 rout of Northeast State in the season football finale for both schools.

With the triumph, Tech avoided a losing season by finishing 4 - 4 while Northeast ended at 1 - 8 after going winless following a season opening victory back in September.

From the opening kickoff, when Tech's Robert Brunet raced 93 yards to score, it was fairly evident that the contest would provide plenty of opportunities for Laird and his favorite receiver to conclude their careers in record - breaking fashion. It did and they did.

YARDSTICK	Northeast	La. Tech
First Downs	7	25
Rushing yardage	12	249
Passing yardage	95	253
Passes	7-22	15-26
Passes intercepted by	3	4
Punts	6-39.3	2-38.0
Fumbles lost	3	0
Yards penalized	20	107

Laird, already holding Tech career completion, touchdown, and yardage marks with his golden passing arm, added another to the list in his last collegiate game by breaking his own season completion mark.

Needing six pass completions to snap his 1964 total of 106, Laird — who was used only sparingly — hit on eight of 12 tosses for 150 yards and two touchdowns to finish with 109 completions this year.

And the Woodlawn product added a bit of Hollywood luster to his finish by completeing the last aerial of his career for a 37 yard touchdown with just four seconds left.

Meanwhile, Davis was catching six passes for 84 yards. On his second pass reception he broke Jerry Griffin's season mark of 45 receptions and finished the year with 50 catches for 611 yards.

Even with the heroics of Laird and Davis, Tech's biggest clog in its unstopable scoring machine was Brunet who set the pace for the entire evening with his opening runback.

The sophomore from LaRose-Cutoff, collecting 82 yards on eight rushes, scored three times in the first half when Tech was rambling for a 33 - 0 lead and he had another second half TD scamper nullified by a penalty.

Although Tech turned in a devastating performance, it received plenty of unneeded assistance from Northeast, which was playing its worst game of the year.

In the first half, when the game got out of hand, Northeast fumbled away the ball four times and allowed two pass interceptions.

The Tribe's only bright spot of the night was its scoring drive early in the fourth quarter. With Steve Mansur quarterbacking, Northeast drove 58 yards to score in nine plays.

Mansur's arm provided the punch on the Tribe's drive. The little freshman southpaw completed four passes on the march, including a fourth down TD toss to Floyd Gibblin from four yards out.

Sophomore end Kenneth Holland caught three passes on the scoring drive, good for 28, seven and four yards. As a result he finished the game possessing a seasonal school pass reception mark.

The Denham Springs ace hauled in four passes during the game and finished with 19 receptions during 1965 for 257 yards, breaking Charlie Barnes' mark of 17 catches in 1960.

Defensive halfback Alton Thomas, who was outstanding all night, intercepted one pass and grabbed a share of a Northeast mark by totaling three interceptions this season.

Mansur also recorded two marks with his effort. His 21 pass attempts brought his total to 98 for the year, topping the 88 thrown by Bob Randall in 1959, and his total number of offensive plays for the season finished at 190, snapping the 176 by Johnny Garrison in 1964.

After Brunet got the Bulldogs off to their flying start, there was no slowing them down.

Mansur fumbled on Northeast's second offensive play of the night and Tech's Claude Carrigan pounced on it at the Tribe 26. Two plays later Brunet sped over from 12 yards out for a 12-0 lead.

Tech failed to get anything going for the remainder of the first quarter but behind frosh quarterback Phil Robertson it hooked up on three TD marches in the second stanza.

First came a 67 yard affair that took eight plays. Buzz Clark picked up 36 yards rushing on the drive before fullback Richie Golman finally carried over from 10 yards out.

Fumbles lost	0	1
Penalties	0	56

Arkansas, outplayed and trailing 17-14 at the half, took the lead for the first time by marching 53 yards after the second half kickoff with tailback Bobby Burnett punching the final yard. Burnett rushed for 83 yards in the third period alone.

The Razorbacks iced their 22nd consecutive win with a 21-point flurry in the final period. Quarterback Jon Brittenum passed 10 yards to end Richard Trail and 24 to end Tommy Burnett for scores and Bobby Burnett added his third touchdown of the day on an eight-yard run. The Burnetts are brothers from Smackover, Ark.

Texas Tech jumped to a 10-0 lead before Arkansas ran its first offensive play of the game. The Red Raiders scored on their first three possessions, but they were shut out after the Razorback defense adjusted to stop the passes of Tom Wilson and the running of halfback Donny Anderson.

The Raiders took the opening kickoff and moved 68 before settling for a 29-yard field goal by Bob Bearden. The ensuing kickoff was fumbled by Arkansas on its 32. Wilson hit three passes for 28 yards and Anderson plunged for the touchdown.

Arkansas finally got a chance with the ball and moved 72 yards in a drive that did not end until the second quarter. The score came on Bobby Burnett's four-yard run. Ronny South kicked his first of six extra points.

Texas Tech came right back to score on a 75-yard drive, capped by Wilson's 40-yard strike to end Jeff White. Bearden kicked his second extra point.

After that, it was all Arkansas until the closing seconds of the game when Anderson capped a 67-yard march with a one-yard dive.

Texas Tech won the battle of statistics with 27 first downs and 439 yrads in total offense, compared to Arkansas' 22 and 430 yards. Brittenum completed 14 of 21 passes for 232 yards and Wilson hit on 26 of 43 for 319.

Laird, Davis Cap Careers In Big Win

Only minutes later Tech took over at Northeast's 33 on Mike Mowad's fumble recovery and again tallied in eight plays on Clark's one yard plunge. Speedy Campbell converted for a 27-0 lead.

Robertson, who completed seven of 13 tosses for 103 yards, and Brunet teamed to cap the first effort with a 35 yard scoring pass just 1:31 before intermission.

In the second half Tech added three more touchdowns and a few razzle-dazzle plays to help its seven seniors close out great careers.

Maurice Greer, who nabbed four tosses for 62 yards, scored on a 25 yard pass from Laird midway in the third frame, fullback Tommy Linder tallied from two yards out early in the fourth, and Laird added his final touch to Tech record books with his 37 yard scoring heave to Jim Jones four seconds to play.

Following the last TD, the Bulldogs went for two—the long way. Campbell took the snapback as it appeared the Bulldogs would kick, however, instead he sprinted left, stopped and threw back to Tom Robertson, who then drew to Greer in the end zone for a two-point conversion.

Minutes earlier Tech had surprised the packed house when it used Davis as a tailback and Laird at split end on a pass pattern. However, Davis' throwing failed to rival his receiving as his pass was picked off by Charles Rohner.

Defensively for Northeast Thomas and Rohner were each in on 10 stops. Linebacker Wayne Cunningham was credited with eight tackles.

Golman had 69 yards on the ground for Tech in 11 trips and Clark netted 51 striped on eight carries. Tech finished the night with 502 yards total offense and 25 first downs. The Bulldogs had 249 rushing and 253 passing.

Decons Upset

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Wake Forest all but dashed Memphis State's bowl hopes Saturday with a 21-20 upset that ended a five game Tiger football winning streak.

Memphis State lost it with less than two minutes to go when a two-point conversion pass attempt was batted about the end zone before falling to the ground. A two-point pass by Wake Forest minutes before had clicked and spelled victory.

The Tigers were on the rise after three early season losses and were considered a cinch for the Liberty Bowl if they had beaten the Deacons and the Quantico Marines next week.

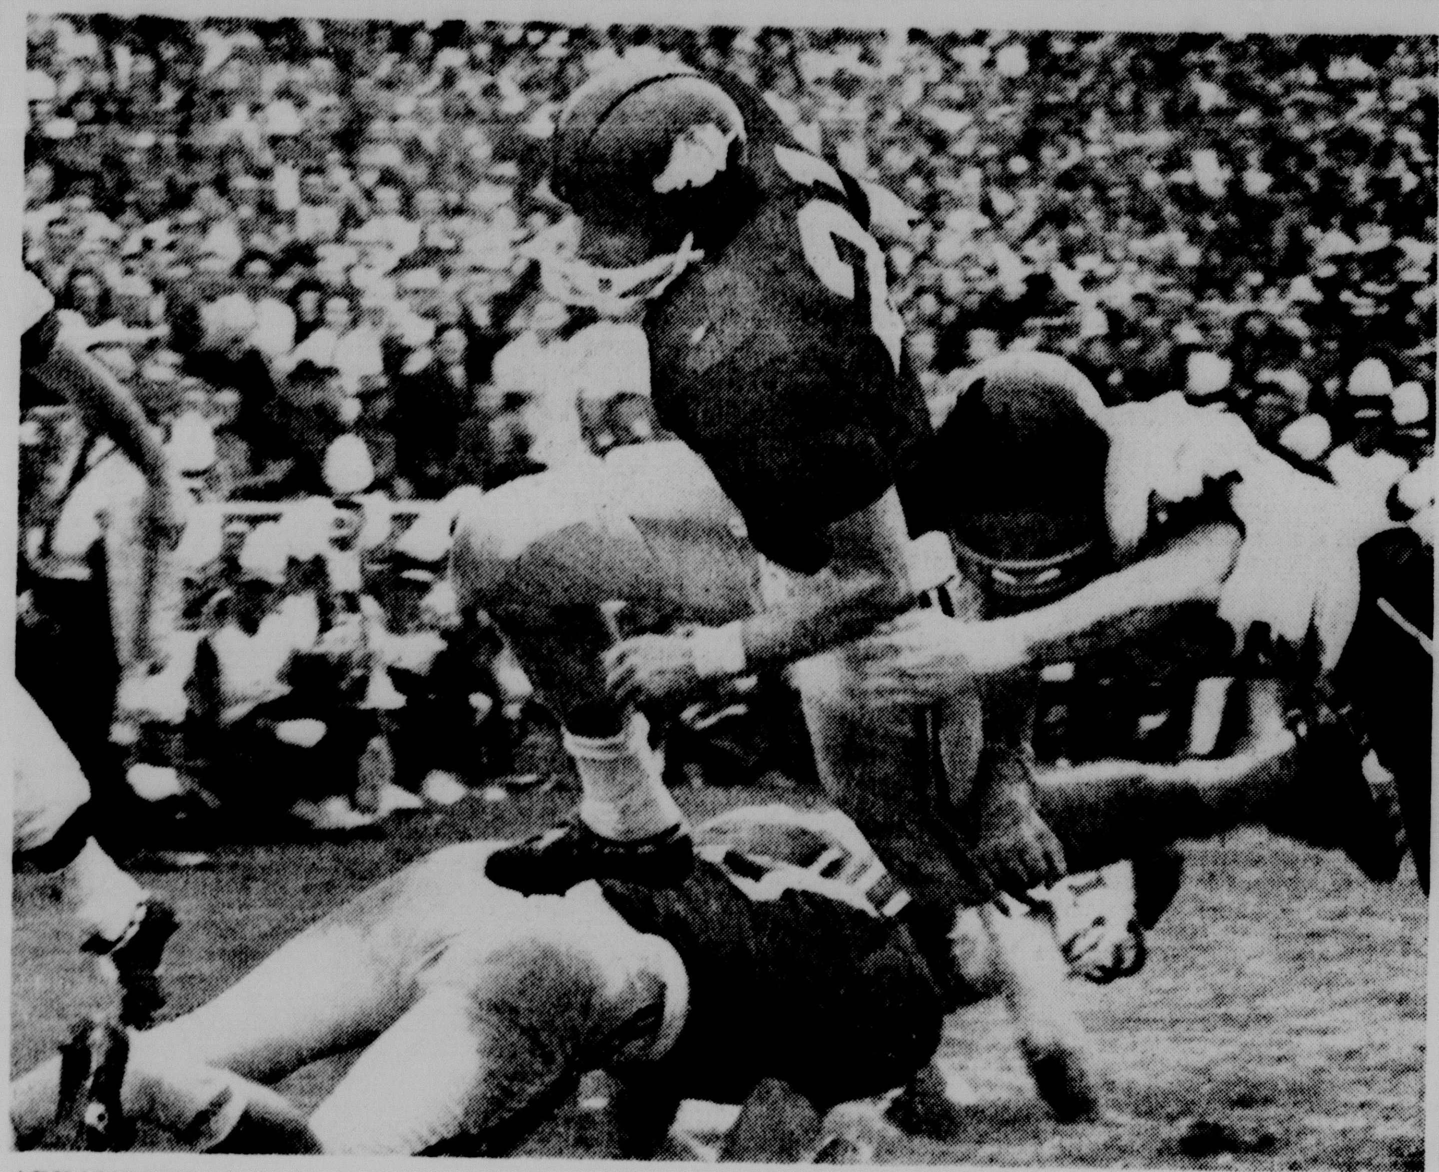
Beard Passes Get Ivy Title

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Unbeaten Dartmouth, powered by the passing of Mickey Beard, snapped Princeton's 17-game winning streak and captured the Ivy League football championship Saturday with a 28-14 victory.

The defeat, the first since Dartmouth beat them in the final game of the 1963 season, spoiled the Tigers' chances of posting two consecutive 9-0 seasons. Dartmouth completed its first perfect year since 1962.



ARKANSAS'S Jim Lindsey (21) picks up yardage in Saturday's game against Texas Tech at Fayetteville, Ark. Hal Hudson (42) of Texas Tech makes the tackle. The Red Raiders jumped off to an early lead over the Razorbacks but the highly ranked Hogs came on strong in the final half to win their second straight Southwestern Conference title. (AP Wirephoto)

Spartans Snare Irish In Wall Of Steel, 12-3

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Michigan State's vaunted wall of steel paralyzed the legs of Notre Dame's modern Four Horsemen Saturday and the tense Spartans rallied for 12-3 victory that added polish to their No. 1 college football ranking.

The hard running Irish quartet of Bill Wolski, Nick Eddy, Larry Conjar and Bill Zloch was held to a minus 12 yards.

Falling behind 3-0 on a fumble and a 32-yard field goal by Ken Ivan in the opening minutes, the big, talented Spartans snapped back for two lightning touchdowns in the last half on a three-yard plunge by Clint Jones and a 19-yard pass from quarterback Steve Juday to Dwight Lee.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP)—Statistics of the Michigan State-Notre Dame football game:

	Mich. State	Notre Dame
First downs	16	3
Rushing yardage	215	-12
Passing yardage	71	24
Passes	6-12	2-11
Passes intercepted by	3	2
Punts	8-42	9-37
Fumbles lost	2	2
Yards penalized	35	5

Jones, a flashy runner, ripped through the Irish defense all day and set up the first score early in the third period with a 20-yard dash after a punt runback by Jess Phillips gave the Spartans the ball on the Notre Dame 39.

The second score came with four minutes, two seconds gone in the final period. It was a quickie that followed a Jim Summers' interception on the Irish 19 of a pass by Bill Zloch, the frustrated Irish quarterback.

The weather was ideal for the classic which pitted the No. 1 and No. 4 teams of the land in a head-on clash. The stadium which holds 59,000 had been sold out since August, and tickets on the black market went as high as $50 each.

Michigan State's two conversion attempts failed. Dick Kenney's placement try after the first touchdown went wide, and quarterback Jim Raye's two-point pass attempt was long.

It was the 10th straight victory for Michigan State, the undisputed Big Ten champion which last week got a call to the Rose Bowl.

It was the second defeat in nine games for Notre Dame, just a shadow of the team which gave the Spartans a 34-7 clobbering a year ago.

It was a triumph mainly for Michigan State's defensive five-man line, made up of a massive 286-pound middle guard, Harold Lucas, a 268-pound end, Bubba Smith, plus tackles Don Bierowicz, 231; Buddy Owens 221, and Bob (The Midget) Viney, 214.

After Ivan's field goal in the first four minutes, Michigan State seized the initiative but found itself hopelessly thwarted at every turn by Notre Dame's alert defenders during the first half.

In the first half, the Irish recovered two fumbles, intercepted two passes, with defensive back Tom Longo figuring in two of these key plays.

With Juday passing to Washington and Jones whipping off slashing gains, the Spartans moved the ball freely in the early stages but failed to score.

In the closing moments of the opening half, they marched 72 yards to the Notre Dame nine only to lose the ball when linebacker Dave Martin intercepted a Juday pass in the end zone and ran it out to the three.

Early in the second period, the Spartans drove from their own seven to the Notre Dame 30 but stalled when the Irish stiffened and held on downs.

UCLA Shocks Southern Cal; Apparent Spartan Opponent

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Sophomore quarterback Gary Beban bombed Southern California with a 52-yard touchdown pass with two minutes, 39 seconds remaining to give UCLA a 20-16 victory over the Trojans Saturday and apparently cinch a Rose Bowl appearance Jan. 1.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Statistics of the UCLA-Southern California football game:

	UCLA	USC
First downs	12	21
Rushing yardage	162	345
Passing yardage	127	79
Passes	5-11	7-9
Passes intercepted by	1	2
Punts	5-40	2-36
Fumbles lost	2	5
Yards penalized	15	55

Seemingly outplayed and trailing 16-6, the unpredictable Bruins sent their followers in a packed coliseum crowd of 94,085 into a frenzy as Beban connected with his winning throw to Kurt Altenberg.

Just moments before, Beban hurled a 34-yard scoring strike to Dick Witcher to put UCLA in a threatening position, trailing by two points, 16-14. Beban threw a two-point conversion on this one to Byron Nelson.

Southern California had been favored by five points.

The triumph left the UCLANS with an over-all record of 7-1-1 and a 4-0 season in the Pacific Athletic Conference and knocked the Trojans to all intents out of the running with a 6-2-1 over-all and a 4-1 conference record.

With Washington State, the other Rose Bowl contender, losing to Washington 27-9, it would appear that a meeting of the conference directors to select its bowl representative to play Michigan State would be a mere formality.

'Bama Takes Bid To Play In Orange Tilt

TUSCALOOSA, Ala (AP) — The University of Alabama accepted an invitation Saturday to meet Nebraska in the Orange Bowl New Year's night.

It will be the seventh straight bowl trip by an Alabama team coached by Paul Bryant. The Crimson Tide has played in 18 previous bowl games, a national record.

Alabama has played in the Orange Bowl at Miami four times, defeating Boston College 33-21 in 1943, trouncing Syracuse 61-6 in 1953; blanking Oklahoma 17-0 in 1963 and dropping a 21-17 decision to Texas last Jan. 1.

Jonesboro Bengals Drill For Bi-District

JONESBORO (Special) — The Jonesboro-Hodge Tigers and the Jesuit Flyers, who have met the past two years in the bi-district playoffs in basketball, will be meeting on the football field at 8:00 p.m. Thanksgiving in State Fair Stadium at Shreveport.

Coach C. O. Brocato's Flyers, top rated AA team in the state with an 8-1 record, will be favored over Coach Bobby Stone's Tigers, who were second in District 2-AA despite a 7-1-1 season record.

The Tigers missed by the margin of two first downs winning their third consecutive district title in Stone's three years as head coach, playing to a 14-14 tie with the Ruston Bearcats Friday, but dropping the decision on first downs, 9-7.

Each team has an explosive offense and stubborn defense, but the Flyers show an edge in both. Jesuit has scored 211 points to 47 for their opponents, while Jonesboro-Hodge tallied 205 to 61 for the opposition.

On offense, Stone has the two leading scorers in District 2-AA, James Earley and Leslie Mize, at halfbacks. Earley scored 66 points, carried 101 times for 469 yards and a 4.6 average, had a 38.4 punting average, caught 15 passes for 239 yards, and was credited with 40 unassisted tackles at corner back. Mize has scored 54 points, carried 79 times for 479 yards and a 6.1 mark, and caught 9 passes for 131 yards.

Quarterback Randy Phillips has hit on 30 of 61 passes for 49 per cent and 484 yards. Jack Branch and Bobby Earle have alternated at fullback, Branch having 378 yards in 79 carries for 4.8 and four touchdowns, Earle 316 yards in 53 trips for 6.0 and two scores.

Randy Toms, at one offensive end position, has caught four passes for 67 yards, while Tommy Wilson, Junior King, and Butch Adams have alternated at the other end post. Mike Sears and Mike Holder are the tackles, with Gary Williams and Ronnie Flurry at guards, and Don Tichenor and Ronnie Vail alternating at center.

Defensively, linebacker Don Tichenor leads the team in individual tackles with 43. Corner backs James Earley and Jack Branch, and middle guard Bubba Peel have 40 each. End Randy Toms has 39, tackle Gary Harper 38, linebacker David McConathy 34, tackle Tony Rockhold 32, halfback Dalton Abercrombie 29, halfback Wade McBride 27, end Junior King 25, and linebacker Jimmie Williams 21.

Everyone familiar at all with high school football knows of the exploits of Jesuit's famous backfield quartet of halfbacks Tony Papa and Terry Bryant, quarterback Gary Kaposta, and fullback Robert (Bad News) Bovenzi.

Papa has gained 770 yards in the Flyers' first eight games, with his speed and power, and is a certain repeater as All-State. Bryant is a "tight-rope" type runner, and the Tigers had a chance to see in a pre-season exhibition scrimmage just how dangerous he is. With Kaposta's passing and roll-out ability, and Bovenzi's power, Brocato has about as well-rounded a backfield as any coach could want.

But the Flyer line, although not as well publicized, has been praised by almost every opponent they have met. There is not a 200-pounder in the starting lineup, but they hit hard, have fine pursuit, and are famed for their "gang tackling."

Open Deer, Quail Hunts This Week

With Paul Martin

Louisiana's deer and quail hunters are preparing this week for the opening of their gun season. Quail hunters go into action Thursday — Thanksgiving Day — and the deer hunters get busy Friday.

All sections of the state offering legal deer hunting will open at the same time, but the length of seasons in many areas will vary.

The quail hunters will have until January 10 to seek out their game. The daily bag limit is ten and the possession limit is 20.

DEER HUNTERS are advised to study the "blue folder" of regulations obtained with the purchase of licenses to study the state's regulations, length of the season for the various zones, plus regulations that will govern game management areas.

TAKING OF DOE is not legal anywhere in the state outside certain game management areas. Some GMAs have any - deer seasons, some permit taking of bucks only, and some are closed entirely to deer hunting. Again you should check your "blue folder" on this.

As far as the north Louisiana hunter is concerned, the zones of hunting fall into two major areas outside the GMAs.

ZONE 2 has a split 33-day season of Nov. 26 to Dec. 2 and Dec. 18 to Jan. 2, with or without dogs. The area takes in Morehouse, West Carroll, East Carroll, Madison, east part of Franklin, Tensas, east and south part of Catahoula, Concordia, south tip and northwest tip of LaSalle, northeast part of Rapides, Grant, most of Winn, a small part of Bienville, south Jackson, and small parts of Caldwell.

ZONE 7 has a split season of 21 days from Nov. 26 to Dec. 5 and Dec. 18 to Dec. 28, also with or without dogs, and takes in all of Ouachita, Union, Claiborne, Webster, most of Bossier, Caddo, DeSoto, Red River, Sabine, Bienville, Caldwell, north part of LaSalle, Jackson, Catahoula, Franklin and the west part of Richland.

There is an area closed entirely to all deer hunting that takes in east Richland, north central Franklin and southwest West Carroll.

Where bucks only are allowed, the deer must have antlers not less than three inches. The hunter limit is one per day, three for the season. A big game license must be purchased in addition to the basic hunting license.

The Game Management Areas will be controlled by officials of the Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries who will set up check stations to issue permits and account for the deer kill.

NO DEER hunting will be permitted in north Louisiana's Concordia, Soda Lake and Saline GMAs. Bucks only can be taken in Caldwell, East Carroll, Caney and Bodcau; first day any-deer will be permitted in Russell Sage and Georgia Pacific but bucks only thereafter, and wildlife officials will regulate the any-deer take of 350 up to five days in Jackson-Bienville, 100 and five days in Union, 1,200 in five days in Chicago Mill, 350 and five days in Catahoula, 250 in five days in Red Dirt, 100 and five days in Sabine, 300 and three days in Fort Polk where military permit may also be necessary. Most GMAs will have short seasons starting Dec. 18 for bucks only.

Dogs are not permitted in the GMAs.

Bowhunters close their special big game season today. They can choose their weapons — bow or gun — for the regular gun season and on any game legal for the gun.

Until quail join the list Thursday and deer on Friday, only legal gun hunting current is for rabbit until Feb. 15, squirrel to Jan. 10, and geese to Jan. 14.

Good hunting. Be careful.

Bussey Practices Management

Upon recommendation of Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries biologists, the water level in International Paper's Bussey Brake reservoir is now being lowered. This statement came from John L. Oswalt, Jr., manager of the company's Louisiana Mill.

Drawdown of the water in the 2,200-acre reservoir is being done to kill undesirable grasses and weeds and to control certain species of fish. Fishing will continue in the lake, first opened to the public April 30, 1960, during the estimated 45 - day operation.

Bussey, located seven miles north of Bastrop, has attracted more than 65,000 persons during the past year. It was constructed in 1957, filled and stocked with game fish in 1959. The reservoir, built as an emergency water supply for the company's plants in Bastrop, was lowered in November 1963, upon the advice of the state commission.

Fluctuation of the water level will definitely help fishing in the lake, according to Fisheries Biologist Jim Davis. The drawdown will pull shad and small bream from the grassy areas and concentrate them for game fish — bass and white perch. Shallow spots in the lake will be exposed, thereby killing such obnoxious plant life as pond weed, water lily, and musk grass.

Refilling of the reservoir will begin in late winter, Oswalt said. Average water depth at the present time is about 11 feet.

'Waterfowl Tomorrow For You'

"WATERFOWL TOMORROW," a most comprehensive book on migratory waterfowl of North America, is fresh off the presses for the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife to be distributed to the public for the United States Department of Interior Fish and Wildlife Service through the Superintendent of Documents at Washington, D.C.

It's a hard bound book of 784 pages, an interesting addition to any sportsman's library, for all who have heard the wild goose call or the whistling wings of mallards over Black Bayou, Wham Brake, Cheniere or anywhere else on a cold drizzly day in which only the duck hunter is happy.

The 103 authors from all parts of the country describe 48 species of geese, ducks, and swans on the North American continent, the lands and waters that sustain them, plus numerous pencil sketches and photographs.

Tom Evans, public affairs assistant to the commissioner of U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, says "Commercial publishers have valued the book at up to $12. It is sold by the U.S. Superintendent of Documents at $4 per copy.

Orders, accompanied by check or money order, should be made to "Supt. of Documents, Govt. Printing Office, Washington, D.C., 20402" for Waterfowl Tomorrow, catalog No. I 49.4:177, at $4 per copy.

Pot Shots Here And There

WAYNE PARKER, who has let business take him away from the water more than he'd like, got into action with the big bass at Black Bayou Lake the other afternoon. Results? Thirteen bass that totalled 33 pounds, five ounces. The largest went five pounds, six ounces; the smallest a pound and ten ounces.

MR. and MRS. C. E. FROST, West Monroe, are testifying to improved crappie fishing in D'Arbonne Lake after good catches the past week, including one "speck" taken by the West Monroe building inspector that hit four pounds.

JUSTIN FOGLEMAN and TRAVIS MAXWELL are the latest additions to successful bowhunters we've heard about. Both got their deer Wednesday evening in Chicago Mills Game Management Area.

Lake Providence was tapped for some good catches of white perch by Lake Providence residents. MRS. MORRIS COLEMAN had a tally of 40, MR. and MRS. SAM FOUTZ counted 33 with some additional cat and bass, and a couple of days later MRS. FOUTZ went back for 28 more specks, and CLAUDE RINICKER made a short trip for 20. VACEL RAZER showed six nice bass. P. A. GILL brought seven bass out of Hollybrook.

GENE NEWMAN, Ferriday, took the crappie limit at Big Horseshoe at Monterey.

Northeast Cagers In Action Monday

Northeast State's basketball team will attempt to hand Lenny Fant his 100th victory as the Indian coach Monday night when it opens the 1965 - 66 season here against Arkansas A&M.

Tipoff time is 7:30 in Brown Gymnasium. A freshmen game will begin at 5:30.

Fant's eight previous Northeast squads have won 99 games and lost 96. The major portion of those loses came in Fant's first for seasons while he put together the combination that crashed through with a 17-8 record and the Gulf States Conference title in 1961 - 62. His teams since then have been winners also and last season's club had the best record in Northeast history — an 18 - 4 mark — and won another GSC crown.

For his full career as a college coach, Fant is 167 - 127 in the won - lost department.

As far as this year's club is concerned, the Northeast coach feels it should be very similar to last year's but whether it can match the 1964 - 65 record depends on how many rebounds it can grab.

"There's not a great deal of difference between this year's team and last year's," says Fant. "We have three starters back and our style of play will be about the same. How well we do will probably depend on our work on the boards. We lost two good rebounders and we'll be smaller than nearly all of the teams we play. So we must hustle under the boards if we're to have a successful season."

All - GSC Tommy Enloe (5-9), who averaged 19.8 points last year, second team all-GSC Glynn Saulters (6-2 and a 19.9 average) and Paul Thompson (6-4 and the GSC's No. 2 rebounder with a 9.3 average) are the returning starters. Thompson averaged 9.0 points.

Joining this trio as regulars are Billy Brooks (6-2) and Chris Rhodes (6-3). Enloe and Brooks are seniors, Thompson is a junior and Saulters and Rhodes are sophomores.

Brooks averaged 4.0 points as a reserve last year while Rhodes appeared in only seven varsity games but led the freshmen team in rebounding.

The top reserves should be seniors James Brian (6-3) and Albert Krause (5-11), junior Mike Vining (6-1) and sophs Rich Bailey (6-2) and Ronnie Suggs (6-3).

The Indian regulars, who average slightly over 6 - 1, will meet a big team Monday night. A&M will probably star Tommy Key (6-10); Danny McCauley (6-5), Louis Sansevero (6-0), Dick Pickens (6-0) and Kelly Ward (5-9).

Coach Shorty Beard's Boll Weevils opened their season Nov. 15 with a victory over Little Rock University and played the same team again Thursday night.

Last year A&M was 6-19 and lost a 63-55 decision to Northeast.

Joe Canal (5-11), Jeff Foster (6-2), Buster Toms (6-3), Ricky Peel (6-3) and Tommy Stevenson (6-4) are the likely starters for the Indian freshmen in their game.

Tuesday night Northeast will play its first road game, a meeting with Southern State in Magnolia, Ark.

Ruston Will Meet Homer's Pelicans

RUSTON (Special) — The odds will be against the Ruston High School Bearcats when they host the Homer Pelicans here Friday night, 7:30, at James Field.

The Pelicans defeated the Bearcats 13 to 7 during the regular season when they intercepted a pass in the final seconds of play for their winning TD. Homer's only loss of the season was a 7 - 19 loss to Jesuit on the 15th of October.

Both teams defeated Haynesville. Homer won over two teams, Minden and Springhill, but Ruston lost to these two teams. Homer's record for the season is 9-1 while the Bearcats finished with 4-5-1 record.

The highlights of Ruston's season was their 25-0 win over West Monroe, their great 27 to 7 triumph over Neville and their 9 to 7 first down victory over Jonesboro - Hodge in their 14 - 14 tie game. This first down victory over J - H gave them the No. 1 spot in District 2-AA and the right to host Homer, the No. 2 team in District 1 - AA.

The Bi - District playoff between Jesuit No. 1 team in District 1 - AA and Jonesboro-Hodge, the No. 2 team in District 2 - AA will be played Thanksgiving night at the State Fair Stadium.

Coach Hoss Garrett, dean of the North Louisiana coaches, is well pleased with the steady progress and improvement during the season. Coach Moose Phillip's line has been exceptionally good in the last few games. The Bearcats backfield will average 176 pounds and the front wall 183.

Ruston has two big men in his backfield who can pick up yardage through the line in Jack Love and Bruce Jackson. Jimmy Leonard, a real open field threat and excellent defense man tips the scales at 160. Quarterback Billy Bahm is the lightweight in the backfield at 155 but makes up for his weight in running, passing and tackling. Coach Garrett has two backfield aces in the hole in Allen Shorey, the leading scorer and Wayne Smith who can pick them up and lay them down.

Ruston's line has shown marked improvement in their last few games. Jerry Hodges, who carries the largest poundage at 214 played the best game of his career against J - H and the same can be said of Ruston's other starting tackle 190 pound tackle, George Gillum, Paul Nolan at 185 and Gary Hammond at 190 have played consistent ball during the entire season. Robert Lewis, Ruston's 165 center has starred in all the games, mostly on defense. Chalres Langford and David Kelly along with Bobby Rich have done well on the terminals. Tom Sumrall has been very effective on defense.

Hurricanes Rally With Crushing Ground Attack To Upset Florida's Gators 16-13

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Miami Hurricanes, shoved all over the field in the first half, came back with a crushing ground attack Saturday night to upset Florida 16-13 and inflict the season's third defeat on the Sugar Bowl bound Gators.

A homecoming crowd of 67,762, the second largest in Miami history, saw the Hurricanes exact sweet revenge from a Florida team that knocked them out of an Orange Bowl bid with an upset victory in 1959.

Florida, which has been offered a bid o the Sugar Bowl game against Missouri, has a 6-3 record and one more game to play with Florida State.

Miami's sophomore quarterback, Bill Miller, ran eight yards for a third period touchdown, and Don Curtwright kicked a 24-yard field goal for the winning margin in the final period.

Florida totally dominated the first half, outgaining the Hurricanes 203 yards to 65, but Miami held twice inside its 10-yard line and the Gators took only a 13-6 lead into halftime.

It was all Miami in the second half as the Hurricanes moved easily overland on the running of Pete Banaszak and sophomore Doug McGee.

Miami's game-tying touchdown was set up when a bounding punt by Art Zachary bounced off Dick Kirk and was reconvered by McGee at the Florida eight. Miller went in for Curtwright's conversion made it 13-13.

Steve Spurrier's passes and the running of Alan Poe and Jack Harper kept 10th-ranked Florida in command of the first half. Spurrier had great protection while the Gators were pouring in relentlessly on Miller, forcing him to hurry all his throws.

Florida scored early in the first quarter on a 34-yard aerial strike from Harper to Charles Casey.

The Gators needed to go only 45 yards for the second touchdown when a reverse bounce on a Zachary punt gave them position at the Miami 45.

Allen Trammell's fumble of a Miami punt, recovered by Bernie Yaffa at the Gator 37, allowed Miami to move in for its first touchdown.

Banaszak scored it from the one, but the Hurricanes still trailed 7-6 when Don Curtwright missed an extra point for only the second time this season.

Vols Whip Cats, Take Bluebonnett

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Tennessee turned two second-half pass thefts into touchdowns in a four-minute outburst that turned back Kentucky 19-3 Saturday and sent the Volunteers into the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Bluebonnett officials invited Tennessee to play in the post-season football game at Houston, Tex., Dec. 18, and the Volunteers quickly accepted.

Sophomore quarterback Dewey Warren, making his first start, scored the two touchdowns for Tennessee which broke a 3-3 defensive duel between the Southeastern Conference rivals meeting for the 61st time.

The scores came after interceptions of passes thrown deep in Kentucky territory by Wildcat sophomore quarterback Terry Beadles, defensive specialist playing offense for the first time in place of passing whiz Rick Norton, out with a knee injury.

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Statistics of the Tennessee-Kentucky football game:

	Team	Ky.
First downs	15	10
Rushing yardage	134	34
Passing yardage	130	59
Passes	10-21	7-14
Passes intercepted by	2	1
Punts	5-38	7-47
Fumbles lost	3	0
Yards penalized	53

Doug Archibald picked off one pass and returned it 18 yards to the Kentucky two, where Warren plunged over with 3:20 left in the third quarter. Warren scored again on the first play of the fourth period after Tennessee linebacker Frank Emanuel grabbed Beadles' pass and ran it nine yards to the Kentucky 21.

Tennessee widened the lead to 19-3 later in the fourth quarter when Beadles was chased 27 yards back into the Kentucky end zone and tackled by Derrick Weatherford for a safety.

The victory boosted Tennessee's season record to five victories, a loss and two ties. The Vols still must meet Vanderbilt and UCLA before playing in their first post season game since the 1957 Gator Bowl.

The loss in its last game left Kentucky with a 6-4 season mark and practically ended Wildcat hopes for an invitation to a bowl.

Playing without Norton for the first time in three years, Kentucky never was able to generate a sustained offense and got its only points on a 35-yard field goal by John Andrighetti.

That second quarter kick matched a 37-yard field goal by Tennessee's David Leake in the first quarter. The teams brawled defensively on even terms until Tennessee shot ahead late in the third quarter.

Tennessee, with regular quarterback Charlie Fulton out with a leg injury, never was able to put on a long march, but Warren guided them capably in the winning surge.

Bulldogs' Quintet Improves Steadily

RUSTON — Improved rebounding has been one of the highlights of the week for the Louisiana Tech basketball squad which tangles with the Bulldog freshmen here Monday night.

The opener is slated Wednesday, Dec. 1 against Little Rock University here, with Harding College due to provide opposition on the court here the next night.

Coach Scotty Robertson said the squad made good progress during the past week, especially in their play on the boards. "They seem to be firing up with the opener only a short time away now," he said.

Robertson cited a junior and sophomore for excellent play during the week. Dan McCormick, 6 - 5 junior from Many, and George Stone, 6 - 3 soph from Ruston, were especially impressive. McCormick was hitting consistently from outside and his defensive play showed great improvement.

Lettermen, besides McCormick, include 5 - 10 guard Jim Pruett of Shreveport Fair Park; 5 - 10 guard Leon Barmore of Ruston; 6 - 4 guard Malcolm Smith of Monroe Neville; 6 - 2 forward Jon Pat Stephenson of Shreveport Woodlawn and 6 - 10 Bob Waton of Logan, West Va.

Other squad members are 6-11 Richard Peek, junior transfer from Pensacola, Fla.; 6-3 Billy Ray Stokes, junior transfer from Yazoo City, Miss.; returning squadmen Tom Gregory, 6 - 6, of St. Joseph; 6-5 terry Ewin of Jonesboro, and Stone.

Robertson has switched to a double post offense this season, with starting centers likely to be 6 - 11 Peek and 6 - 10 Watson. Stephenson, Barmore, and Smith will probably round out the starting team.

The Techsters finished 11 - 11 for the season last year but were 6 - 4 in the conference, tying Southeastern for second place. One handicap for the Canines is a lack of experience since none of the lettermen have earned over one award. There is not a senior on the squad.

City Recreation Schedules Final Cage Meetings

Missouri's Tigers Defeat Jayhawks

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Missouri's Sugar Bowl-bound Tigers needed all the talents of Johnny Roland, Gary Lane and Charlie Brown to subdue fired-up Kansas 44-20 Saturday in the 74th renewal of their bitter football rivalry.

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) —Statistics of the Missouri-Kansas fiotball game:

	Missouri	Kansas
First downs	20	16
Rushing yardage	305	157
Passing yardage	163	121
Passes	9-17	8-18
Passes intercepted by	1	0
Punts	3-21	6-36
Fumbles lost	1	1
Yards penalized	15	15

The eighth-ranked Tigers trailed twice in the first half as Kansas scored with the help of a blocked punt and deflected forward pass. Missouri got the lead for the first time 20-13 on Lane's 19-yard run, seconds before the half time gun.

Brown's 86-yard bolt up the middle in the third period moved Missouri out of reach. The Tigers, second to unbeaten Nebraska in the Big Eight, will take a 7-2-1 record to New Orleans, La. Kansas finished 2-8, its worst season in 11 years.

The 207-pound Roland, a tremendous two-way performer and prime All-America candidate, intercepted a pass and recovered a fumble on defense and scored three touchdowns on the attack. He set up one touchdown with a 35-yard punt return.

Lane hit eight of 16 passes for 155 yards, including a 39-yard touchdown shot to Monroe Phelps 16 seconds before the final gun. Lane had 215 yards total offense and became the eighth player in Big Eight history to reach 3,000 yards in career total offense. He had 3,203.

Brown, the Big Eight rushing leader, had 158 yards in 18 tries.

Kansas linebacker Mike Swetman blocked a punt to set up Dan Miller's one-yard plunge for an early 7-0 lead.

The Jayhawks went ahead again 13-7 on a 51-yard pass from Wally Hinshaw which Roland deflected into the arms of Halley Kampschroeder. Bobby Skahan ran and passed Kansas 84 yards to its last TD, making it 33-20, but Missouri's Bill Bate kicked a 33-yard field goal before Lane threw his scoring pass to Phelps.

Boilermakers Get Past Indiana, 26-21

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Purdue hung on desperately after rolling up a 20-point lead in the first period and beat Indiana 26-21 Saturday on the passing of Bob Griese and the hard running of John Kusniewski and Gordon Teter.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Statistics of the Purdue-Indiana football game:

	Purdue	Indiana
First downs	28	17
Rushing yardage	255	110
Passing yardage	169	193
Passes	14-22	13-23
Passes intercepted by	1	0
Fumbles lost	2	2
Yards penaliezd	40	39

The Boildermakers needed everything they could muster to take the Old Oaken Bucket in their season ending football game.

Indiana's inspired underdogs kept Purdue on its heels with a touchdown bomb combination of Frank Stavroff to Bill Malinchak and the end runs of sophomore Terry Cole.

Stavroff completed 13 of 23 passes for 193 yards, half that yardage coming on two scoring passes to Malinchak.

Griese, staying mostly with the short bullet pass, completed 14 of 22 for 169 yards.

Griese had to go without his favorite receiver, Bob Hadrick, who was unable to play because of a knee injury.

In a surprise move, fullback Randy Minniear, just back from the injured ranks, replaced Hadrick at end and caught three passes for 27 yards.

Purdue had a big edge on the ground, rolling up 255 yards to Indiana's 110. Kusniewski had 105 yards in 24 carries and Teter 97 in 23 tries. Cole got 58 yards in 14 runs.

Kuzniewski and Malinchak scored two touchdowns each, Griese, Cole and Teter one each.

Purdue 20 0 6 0—26
Indiana 0 14 7 0—21
Pur—Kusniewski 6 run (Griese kick)

Blue Devils Bop North Carolina; Murray Resigns

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke exploded for 22 points in the second period and rolled to a 42-7 victory over arch rival North Carolina Saturday.

Immediately after the game, Coach Bill Murray resigned as boss of the Blue Devils to become executive chairman of the American Football Coaches Association.

The victory, coupled with South Carolina's 17-16 victory over Clemson, put Duke into a tie for the Atlantic Coast Conference championship with the Gamecocks. Both teams finished with 4-2 conference records.

Murray had been coach of Duke for 15 years. After a brief moment with the players, he opened the dressing room to well wishers of his decision. In the background, the players could be heard singing, "For he's a jolly good fellow."

Eight of North Carolina's starters had been released overnight from the infirmary after suffering virus attacks. All of them played, however, and coaches said they showed no apparent ill effects from two days of illness.

Duke looked razor-sharp as the Blue Devils blasted the Tar Heels for 28 points in the first half behind the running of fullback Jay Calabrese, a 212-pound sophomore from College Park, Md., and the passing of quarterback Todd Orvald. Calabrese scored three touchdowns.

Nicholls State In Cage Win

THIBODAUX, La. (AP — Nicholls State led all the way to beat Henderson State Teachers 94-83 in a basketball game Saturday night.

Stanley Beaubouef, of Nicholls was high man with 20 points.

The top scorer was Havis Hyatt, who had 30 points for Henderson.

Nicholls is now 2-0 for the season and Henderson is 1-2.

Colgate Romps

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Ray Ilg's 42-yard run with an intercepted pass and halfback Marv Hubbard's running powered Colgate to a 24-10 football victory over Rutgers Saturday in the final game for both teams.

With Rutgers leading 7-3 in the third period, Ilg picked off a Jack Callaghan pass and went for a touchdown. Hubbard gained 122 yards in 22 carries.

Great Scot

There was no summer stock and really not enough preview time. The show never hit the road before it opened, and so the young producers and writers hardly knew what to expect. Broadway can be a brutal place, a desperate life or death jungle for those willing to gamble their fortunes aganst the critics. Hopes and dreams many times dash against the theater page of the New York Times, sweeping against the rocks of criticism and rolling back to sea, drowned and crushed under the harsh words of those who have the power to decide. Other times, there are the sunny tides — the calm seas of happiness when the critics smile, and there is another hit.

Broadway is not a happy place this autumn. There have been no new hits, no scores by Rogers and Hammerstein; and the old regulars who seem to score year after year must have stayed wherever it is they stay. "Hello Dolly" booms on, and "Generations" is excellent. Radio City Music Hall will have a beautiful Christmas program, and the ice skaters still swirl at the RCA rink. At night New York is the same, a tinsel world which at times seems almost unreal. But there are really no new hits.

Over on 55th Street, just off 9th Avenue is Theater 4. This is considered "off Broadway" because it's several blocks off the main theater stream and an extra twenty - five cent cab fare. Theater 4 is not the Music Hall, not even the Majestic. "South Pacific" could hardly have been accommodated on its stage. Yet, it's a pleasant theater, and recently it became a delivery room in the great hospital of Broadway.

"Be there at 7:30 sharp," she said. "You have 11th row center in the orchestra!" In the language of Broadway, this was not unlike Stalin being able to enjoy coffee and a Danish with St. Peter at a sidewalk cafe just inside the main gate. At 7:25 p.m. Theater 4 was a hornet's nest of activity. Gowned and plumed, they were, eager, amost desperate for the hit they hoped was there. A smattering of white ties and tails ambled penguin-like through the lobby. At the refreshment stand was the usual "Time" lemon drink, stacked in orderly fashion like so many platoons at the Marne. The house lights dimmed, and the culmination of work, thoughts, plans, and cold hard cash was ready to go, almost rocket-like, into action. Too late to turn back, no more rehearsals, no chance to change a weak spot in the score; as the lights went down, the music went up.

There is a man in the next seat, determined and strong, obviously master of what he surveys — a critic! Lord, a critic! A real, live, breathing critic with your friend's plan in his strong hands.

The overture dies, and the curtain rises! Applaud as long and hard as you can, because the music is good, and one extra clap of the hand might send the right vibration to this man's heart. Suddenly, there is the marvelous and resonant voice of David Bruce with a touch of heather in his burry phrase. He is Robbie Burns at Ayr, conqueror of the ladies and worker of words. Beautiful Joleen Fodor plays the minister's daughter who becomes Burn's paramour, victim of the wily poet. Jack Eddleman is superb as Burn's publisher, convincing and very debonair. Bright and interesting scenes make it difficult to believe you're not in old Scotland.

"Wonderful play, don't you think?" you say to the next seat, and the words bounce back as sonar beams off a sunken galleon. Intermission comes, and there is much applause. "You've got a hit!" they cry, and nobody dares glance down critic row. The final act comes, Burns moves to Edinburg, Joleen bears his twins, and he returns to Ayr for the happy ending. There is more strong applause, and still, no one looks to the elders.

"Meet us at the party, at Roseland," the writer says, so full of hope and good cheer.

Walking down 55th Street by the old RCA station post office, there are the glittering lights of Broadway. Jilly's is booming, and silver-touched couples leave another theater. A shiny Mercedes is parked in front of a Rolls Royce, and there comes to mind the notice in the New York papers: "Off Broadway; a new musical by Greg Dawson, "Great Scot!" starring David Bruce, Joleen Fodor, and Jack Eddleman. Theater 4, 55th Street at 9th Avenue."

The tumult and shouting dies; the captains and kings have departed, and along Broadway blows a fresh, cold wind. Across town, the Newsweek Building shines as a cathedral of light in the night. "Cloudy, possible showers, and cold," the Times Building says, and for "Great Scot," the critics' sifting begins.

Settlement Of Dispute Seems To Be Far Away

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India and Pakistan swiftly silence any Kashmiri voice bold enough to suggest independence for the Himalayan state which both seek to control.

The New Delhi government, which in the 1940s agreed to hold a plebiscite in Kashmir but never got around to it, now says Kashmir has become part of India. In the beginning, India said Pakistan's army had never permitted enough stability in the area for there to be a plebiscite.

Pakistan pledges to fight to the death to secure a plebiscite and says a third choice — independence — could not be considered in any vote held among the Kashmiris.

A mood for independence was seen by this writer during travels in Indian and Pakistani-held sides of Kashmir during the recent fighting. The movement is difficult to assess, but Indian, Pakistani and Western experts estimate one-third of the five million Kashmiris would vote for independence.

They say one-third would opt for Pakistan and the other third for India. A hidden factor is how much the Moslem religion of 77 per cent of the Kashmiris would influence them toward Pakistan in a vote.

Dozens of Kashmiris, including some of the state's prominent leaders, are held on both sides of the international border for making the mistake of thinking their state shouldn't accede to either country.

Among those who have lost their freedom (and who have never had a trial) are K.H. Khrushid, first president of Pakistan's Azad (Free) Kashmir, and Sheik Mohammed Abdullah, former premier of indian-held Kashmir.

After the 1948 war between India and Pakistan over Kashmir, Pakistan set up what it billed as an autonomous Azad Kashmir government with its capital in Muzaffarabad. This government, at least on the surface, ruled independently over the 1.4 million people and 40,000 square miles of Kashmir west of the cease-fire line agreed to after the fighting.

India always tried to treat the 3.6 million people and 40,000 square miles on its side of the line as another Indian state. New Delhi has built roads, communications facilities, and extended a railroad: It has pumped funds into Kashmir's economy and subsidized the handicraft industry — all in an attempt to tighten the links between the vale and India's plains to the south.

Whenever a political figure in Kashmir fails to show his gratitude and talks of accession to Pakistan or of independence, the Indians put him out of circulation on vague charges or by invoking the Defense of India Rules (DIR), legislation passed in 1962 during the border war with China.

Abdullah, the 60-year-old "Lion of Kashmir," has spent more than 12 years in Indian jails.

The sheik was deposed from the premiership Aug. 9, 1953, and put in jail. He was committed for trial in January, 1962. That August he was allowed to plead innocent to charges of conspiring against the government of Kashmir in order to facilitate its annexation to Pakistan. In 1964 he was released.

Thanksgiving Firsts

Above: Origin of Thanksgiving holiday is attributed to a festival held by the Plymouth Colony in 1621 in celebration of a bountiful harvest and to render homage to the spirit who caused the crops to grow. Reenacting the first Thanksgiving when early Pilgrim settlers and native Indians shared the bounty of the land are these third grade pupils of Mrs. Paul Bauer, teacher at Jack Hayes School. Proclaimed the only truly American holiday, the first Thanksgiving proclamation was issued by President Washington in 1789. Dressed in costumes of the Pilgrims and Indians in the era they portray are from left to right, standing Randy Hicks, Mary Baker and Mark Walley and seated from left, Jeffirey Yarbrough, Lisa Crow and Pamela Mitchell.

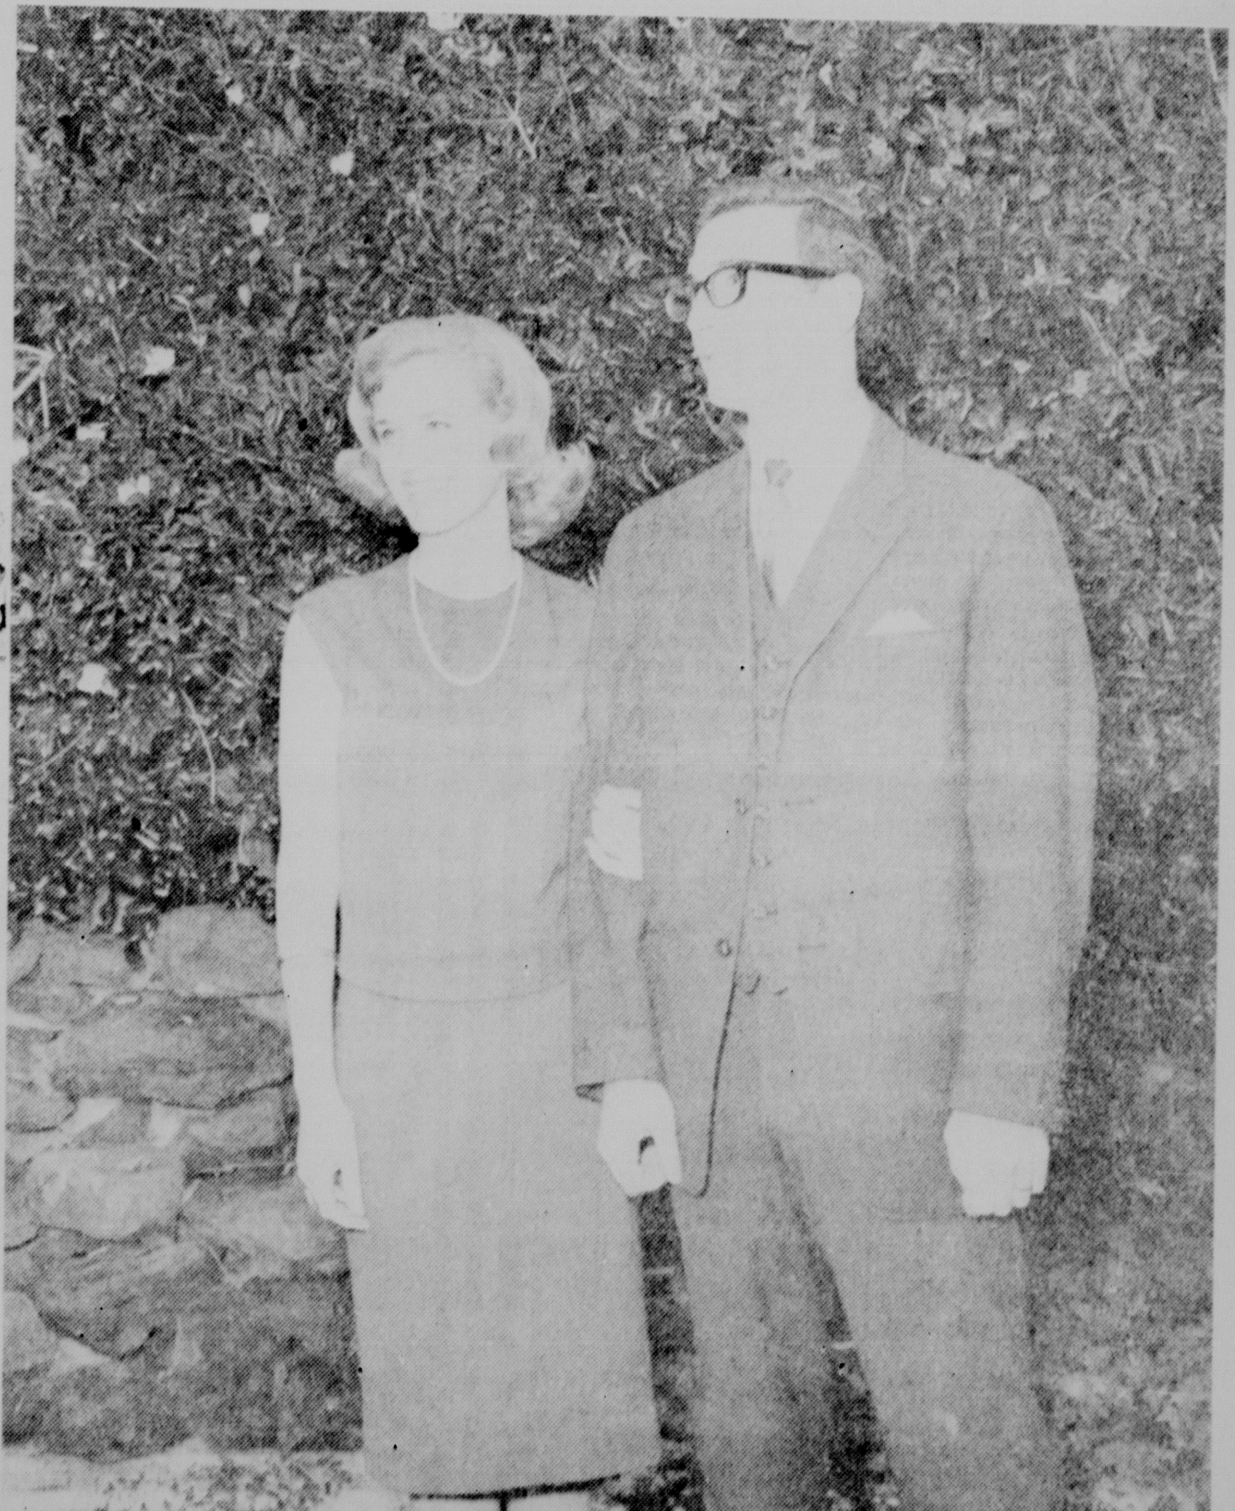
Below at left: A joyous Thanksgiving is in the offing for Mr. and Mrs. Curtis A. Cook Jr., 2105 Valencia, sharing the occasion with the newest member of their household, their six month old daughter, Sophie Anne. Mrs. Cook and Sophie Anne are pictured with Mrs. Cook's nephew, Daniel Wadley, son of the Donald Wadleys, 2010 Valencia, also an adoring fan of the newest Cook family member.

Below: Spending her first Thanksgiving in the South is Mrs. Don Frederick Marx, pictured with Mr. Marx in the garden at the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Fred Marx, 2120 Pargoud Blvd. A resident of Monroe since their marriage in August, Mrs. Don Marx is the former Judith Ann Fleischer of Canton, Ohio. The young couple resides at 3511 Hippolite St., in Monroe, where Mr. Marx is attending Northeast Louisiana State College.



MISS MARY WINFRED LOVE

Mary Winfred Love, Lt. Courtland Gray III Plan December Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. James Marvin Love of Starkville, Mississippi, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter Mary Winfred to Lieutenant Courtland Prentice Gray III, United States Marine Corps. He is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Courtland Prentice Gray Jr. of Monroe.

The wedding is planned for the evening of December 20 in the Chapel of Memories in State College, Mississippi with the Rev. D. C. Applegate officiating.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of James Irvin Love of Eupora, Miss., and the late Mrs. Love and the late Mr. and Mrs. William Walne Richey of Starkville. Lt. Gray is the grandson of Mrs. Courtland Prentice Gray and the late Dr. Gray of Monroe and the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fletcher Ormond of Meridian. His mother is the former Miss Betty Eastland Ormond of Forest, Miss.

Miss Love was an honor graduate of Starkville high school and obtained her B.A. degree in June from Mississippi State University. In May of last year she was named to represent the State of Mississippi in National scholastic competition, after having been selected as one of the nation's twelve most outstanding college women.

Miss Love, who has reigned National Carnation Queen for Phi Mu sorority, was Miss Mississippi State University, Featured Beauty and a Homecoming Queen. She is a past president of Phi Mu at Mississippi State, member of Cardinal Key National Honor Society and was tapped for membership in Alpha Lambda Delta, national scholastic fraternity and is listed in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

A graduate of Neville high school, Lt. Gray was graduated with merit from the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, Maryland in June. As a midshipman, Lt. Gray was commander of the Color Company and was a member of the Color Guard. He was a Superintendent's Scholar and was elected to captain Navy's 1965 indoor track team.

Lt. Gray has been installed in the Academy's Hall of Fame and upon graduation was the recipient of the Captain Cecil Brixner Track Trophy. Following graduation from the naval academy, he was commissioned a lieutenant in the United States Marine Corps and is now attending Marine Corps School, Quantico, Virginia.

Contemporary Literature, Music Features Fine Arts

"Fine Arts in Today's World," the program theme of the Fine Arts Club for the current year, was presented in interesting manner when the club met Monday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Norman Coon on Westminster Drive. Assisting Mrs. Coon as hostesses were Mrs. B. D. Allbritton and Miss May Read.

Chairman for the evening's program was Mrs. E. Everett Lawson, who chose for the subject, "The World of Contemporary Literature," depicting both poetry and prose. Mrs. Lawson gave a review of the life and works of John Masefield, poet laureate of England for the past 35 years. The poet, whose latest book was published this year, is master of dramatic narrative with a current interest in poetic drama.

Miss Cliffie Olmstead read lyrics from earlier works of Masefield, in which he employed both the Chaucerian model and also a form similar to the Byronic Stanza. The Canterbury Pilgrims had influenced the works of Byron.

Mrs. W. Barlow Inabnet presented prose works of Albert Schweitzer and gave excerpts from the book Poetic Music and Pictorial Music, as a typical example of his monumental on J. S. Bach, in which he describes the true artist as a painter, poet and musician. Schweitzer's autobiography, "Out of My Life and Thought," is documentary proof that the late talented, dedicated humanitarian had but one concert which was that truth must be attained through thought.

Contemporary musical selections were played by Leon Hammonds, which included Exodus by Ernest Gold and Episode by Stuart Ross. Mr. Hammonds also accompanied Davis Bingham, who sang selections from Broadway musicals.

Following the program members were invited into the family room where refreshments were served from a beautifully appointed table. Mrs. B. L. Mulhern and Mrs. Max H. Kulcke presided at the coffee and punch services respectively.

Members present in addition to those named were Mrs. F. V. Allison, Miss Eleona Brinsmade, Mrs. H. H. Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mayo, Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Newman, Miss Ladelle Duke, Miss Juanita Porter, Miss Gertrude Sandrock, Mrs. Eloise Stanhope and Mrs. W. J. Veazey.

Luncheon At Lotus Club Compliments Sally Farr

The forthcoming marriage of Miss Sally Ann Farr to Burton Louis Price was the inspiration for a luncheon given yesterday, November 20 at the Lotus Club. Hostesses for the festive occasion were Mrs. Dorothy Apgar Hodge and Mrs. William Rodriguez.

Arrangements of white chrysanthemums and fern decorated the luncheon table and mantel in the library of the club, where arriving guests were greeted by Mrs. W. F. Thurmon.

For her party Miss Farr wore a forest green wool suit with pale green silk blouse and black patent accessories. Highlighting the occasion was the presentation of gifts to the bride-elect by the hostesses.

Sharing the occasion with the bride - elect were her mother, Mrs. R. D. Farr Jr., her grandmothers, Mrs. R. D. Farr Sr., and Mrs. W. J. Hodge; mother of the future bridegroom, Mrs. G. L. Price and members of her bridal party, Miss Mary Louise Farr, Miss Janis Brandon and Miss Janet Williams.

MISS LINDA FAYE ATKINS

Engagement Announced For Linda Faye Atkins

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Linda Faye Atkins and Robert Henry Duncan Jr., is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oren Howard Atkins Sr., 502 Austin Avenue, West Monroe. The future bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Frances Duncan of Chattanooga, Tennessee and Robert Henry Duncan Sr., also of Chattanooga.

The couple will exchange vows on January 29 at 7:30 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of West Monroe. Officiating will be Dr. Clifton R. Tennison.

Attendants for their wedding have also been chosen by the betrothed couple. Mrs. Jean Atkins Newton has been selected by her sister to serve as matron of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Frances Phillips, Miss Charlotte Pankey, both of West Monroe; Miss Millie Hislop of New Orleans; Miss Sue Atkins, Edna, Texas, cousin of the bride-elect and Mrs. Susan Wilson Aldridge of Gonzales, La.

Candlelighters will be Miss Jan Blackmon of West Monroe and Patrick Atkins McDonald of Jackson, La.

Mr. Duncan has chosen Fred Woodrow Newton Jr. to serve as best man. Named as groomsmen are Oren Howard Atkins Jr., brother of the bride-to-be; Perry Aldridge of Gonzales; Ray Clayton McDonald of Jackson; Lloyd R. Greenwood, Chattanooga, Tenn., and Phillip D. Martin, M.D., of New Orleans.

Miss Atkins is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John William 'Lynn' Atkins of Jonesboro and the late Mr. and Mrs. Georgia Gilbert Bradley of West Monroe. The bride-elect attended Louisiana Polytechnic Institute and received her B.S. degree in elementary education from Louisiana State University. She is a member of Alpha Delta Pi sorority.

Mr. Duncan is descended from Mrs. George B. Haynes and the late Mr. Haynes and the late Mr. and Mrs. William R. Duncan, all of Chattanooga, Tenn. He received the B.S. degree in electrical engineering from The Citadel in Charleston, South Carolina and is now employed with Duncan Electric Co., in Atlanta, Georgia.

Fur Borders, Lines, Collars Winter Coats

Coats and suits for fall wear fur in unusual ways. Notable is the advance of the fur-lined coat and, to some extent, the fur-lined suit.

Linings "spill over" to form fur collars, or the entire coat may be reversible from fabric to fur. And the once bulky look of the fur-lined coat has vanished. The linings are deftly shaped to maintain a line nearly as slim as that of an unlined coat.

Fur borders and bands in sable, mink, nutria form the new look of fur trims—for example, a tunic suit the hemline bordered in nutria. Black or gray Persian, fox, beaver are other fur-trim favorites among fall fashions.

Minklets Are New For Ankles

AP Newsfeatures

Where else can you put mink besides on toothbrushes, beer can openers, fly swatters, and book markers? That is, besides coats, vests, slacks, dresses and lingerie?

Ankles, that's where.

At the premium fur show held at the New York Coliseum this year Douglas Furs introduced mink ankle circlets not unlike those ringlets around the trim leg bones of a well - manicured poodle. The furriers suggested the accessory for beachwear, nightwear, formal and cocktail occasions.

Paradoxically, the minklets were not always mink. There were also leopard and ermine "minklets."

BELL-BOTTOMS

Bell - bottom trousers — regulation Navy white variety — are all over the country now, so the girls in California are doing something a little different. They're running up bell bottoms in wild prints and ginghams.

Beware Of Lamb In Disguise

Beware of a Persian Lamb in cotton-acetate clothing advises the National Institute of Drycleaning. Certain imitation Persian lamb coats, jackets, and trims are giving drycleaners headaches and consumers fits.

In many cases poor adhesive has been used to attach the Persian-type fur to the background fabric. When drycleaned, or when cleaned by the furrier method, the adhesive becomes soft or sticky. Sometimes the imitation Persian completely separates from the fabric backing.

But, adds the Institute, there is no problem with either cleaning method if the imitation Persian lamb curls have been stitched to the backing.

Manufacturers are working to solve this problem. But when shopping it's still wise to separate the curl and look for the stitching or get the store's definite assurance that this Persian lamb can be safely cleaned.

MISS CAROL ANN PUCKETT

Northeast Students Plan New Year's Day Wedding

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Carol Ann Puckett and James Ralph Arnold, both students at Northeast Louisiana State College is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Puckett of Georgetown. The future bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Winnie Arnold of Crowville.

The wedding is planned as an event of January 1 to be solemnized at 4 p.m. in the Georgetown Baptist Church. Rev. Howard Smith will perform the ceremony.

Chosen as attendants by the bride-elect are Miss Sandra Dalton of Winnsboro, maid of honor; Miss Judy Kay Corley of Georgetown, bridesmaid and Miss Cindy Puckett of Olla, as junior bridesmaid.

Jimmy Arnold of Crowville, will attend the bridegroom as best man and named as ushers are Ray Tucker of Monroe; Walter Sowell of Alexandria and Darrell Ellerbee of Tallulah.

Miss Puckett is the granddaughter of Mrs. O. G. Mathis and the late Bailey Puckett of Georgetown and the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Grinnall of Dumbleton, Glostershire, England. A graduate of Georgetown high school, she is now a junior at Northeast, majoring in biology education. Miss Puckett is vice president of Zeta Delta Chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority at Northeast.

Mr. Arnold finished Crowville high school, was graduated from Northeast in 1964 and is presently enrolled in graduate school of Chemistry at Northeast.

Following their marriage the couple will be at home at 115 Hudson Lane, Monroe.

Cloth Coats Mainstay Of Coat Wardrobe

A survey made by the National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry shows that the regular cloth coat remains the mainstay among winter coats. The winter coat wardrobe averages 2.6 coats per woman. A woman's wardrobe can contain a variety of coats such as: winter cloth coat, no fur trim; cloth car coat; winter cloth coat, fur-trim; heavy raincoat or storm coat; a fake-fur pile coat or a fur coat.

Some women do not even own a coat. They live in the warmer climates. Winter coat wardrobes are larger for working women than for housewives, and largest for white-collar workers. Suburban living has brought a swing to more casual coats. The higher the family income, the larger and more varied the woman's winter coat wardrobe. The average number of winter coats per woman is 1.9 in the lowest income bracket (under $3,000) and 2.8 in the highest ($10,000 or over).

VACUUM RUG BACKS

If small rugs have a non-skid finish on the wrong side, vacuum or sweep this backing often. Also sponge the backing once in a while with soap or detergent suds — because dirt keeps the non-skid finish from gripping the floor.

Yule Decor Demonstrated For Welcome Garden Club

Ouachita Parish Public Library in West Monroe was aglow with Christmas decorations when Mrs. John Lewis was guest speaker for the Welcome Garden Club at the November meeting held Monday afternoon.

Mrs. K. R. Young, president, opened the meeting by leading the members in the Garden Club Collect. Mrs. T. H. Spurlock read an invitation from Town and Country Garden Club to a lecture and demonstration on Christmas decor by arranger Ronnie Merrill, flower judge of Baton Rouge. The event will be held on November 29 at the American Legion Hall.

Mrs. M. W. Montgomery, acting as program chairman, presented Mrs. Lewis as guest speaker. She displayed a number of door pieces and various colorful arrangements for inside the home during the holiday season. One decorative arrangement was of roses in various shades of pink.

In her talk Mrs. Lewis traced the origin of decorations from the Pilgrims who used the Yule logs with candles and ivy as a symbol of good luck and happiness. She also filled an old fashioned oil burning lamp of crystal with colorful Christmas balls for an arrangement and created a unique door hang by using various sizes and colors of satin balls on a green background.

Hostesses for the meeting included Mrs. Miller Christie, Mrs. D. C. Golson, Mrs. W. T. Ellis, Mrs. Mae Modes and Mrs. Ed Hislop Jr. who served appropriate seasonal refreshments at conclusion of the afternoon.

Guests present for the occasion were Mrs. E. M. Baber, Mrs. W. W. Hathorn, Mrs. Gladys Kulcke, Mrs. M. H. Kulcke, Mrs. Ivan Bremer, Mrs. Ethel Thompson, Mrs. James B. Bradley Jr., Mrs. Bob Stilles, Mrs. James S. Brock, Mrs. R. P. McKay, Mrs. Roy L. Simmon Jr.

Members attending were Mrs. John Tolar, Mrs. Miller Christie, Mrs. D. C. Golson, Mrs. Aimee Cook, Mrs. Ada Henderson, Mrs. John Vernon, Mrs. Tom Spurlock, Mrs. Fred L. Stricklin, Mrs. Icy Willis, Mrs. D. Ryan Sartor Sr., Mrs. W. L. Mitchell, Mrs. C. T. Johnson, Mrs. E. L. Page, Mrs. Charles Oseland, Mrs. W. T. Ellis, Mrs. Ed Hislop Jr., Mrs. W. D. Albritton, Mrs. Bert Gambrell.

Mrs. A. R. Bates, Mrs. W. C Feazel, Mrs. Mabel Ford, Mrs. Floyd Mathewes, Mrs. S. W. Raby, Mrs. M. W. Montgomery, Mrs. J. W. Golson, Mrs. Charles Byrd, Mrs. Alfred Christensen, Mrs. J. L. Whipkey, Mrs. Mabel Hood, Mrs. Mae M. Modes, Mrs. Malda Hedgepeth, Mrs. George Goodwin, Mrs. F. L. Hearne, Mrs. Sherwood Emory, Mrs. John Musselwhite, Mrs. J. L. Warren, Mrs. C. C. Drop Outs Discussed At De Nova Club

Mrs. L. M. Waddell and Mrs. William L. Mitchell were cohostesses for members of DeNova Club at a luncheon on Saturday at the Paragon Club. Flemish flowers in an antique container provided the focal point for the luncheon table.

The meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. James N. Riddle, who urged members to cooperate with the General Federation of Women's clubs in carrying out the program for the ensuing year.

Chicago, Ill., has been chosen as the site for the Diamond Jubilee convention of the general federation. Two jewels members will be chosen from each club to be submitted to the convention. Those representing the De Nova Club will be Mrs. Max Kulcke, with the longest continuous membership in GFWC and Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, member with the longest and most outstanding record of leadership in the federated club district and state federation.

A report was given by Mrs. Alfred K. Christensen on the Ouachita Parish Museum in which she stated that the museum needed either a gift or the loan of a china cabinet to house the china collection. New year books were distributed to Mrs. Larry Loftin and Mrs. Sue R. Bradley.

Modern Day Concerns about Drop Out and Juvenile Delinquency was the subject of a talk by Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, who noted three points, parental neglect, disrupted schooling and petty crime. She also pointed out that Louisiana needs more guidance councils to help in the state which has a 40 per cent high school drop out record.

The next meeting of the club will be January 15 with Mrs. Z. J. Byrd as hostess.

Stretch Pants Shopping Tip

Here's a practical tip from the National Institute of Drycleaning for stretch fabric shoppers.

Be sure to examine garment construction. Inexpensive or short-cut cutting and sewing can produce unequal stretch in two legs or two different parts of a garment.

When purchasing stretch pants, hold them up and examine them. Be sure both legs hand straight down, one directly on top of the other.

Beauty-Box Is Time-Saver

NEW YORK, N.Y.—A kitchen drawer filled with aids to milady's beauty and safety can be a dandy time and step saver. Such a drawer might hold a bottle of hand lotion, some sterile gauze and absorbent cotton, an antiseptic cream for cuts and burns, Band - Aid, a skin freshner, a manicure set, toilet water, needle and thread, and a small mirror.

Last but not least, it should probably contain one of those decorative bouffant caps to slip on over rollers should an unexpected guest drop in.

MISS DANNIE SUE WILLIAMS

Miss Williams To Be Bride Of Gary Barton

A December bride - elect is Miss Dannie Sue Williams, daughter of Mrs. Dan Williams of Chase and the late Mr. Williams whose engagement and approaching marriage to Gary Don Barton, is announced by her mother. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barton of Gilbert.

TEST WALL FINISH

Before washing walls, test the paint or finish to make sure it is washable. For this, use a sudsy sponge or cloth to wipe a small section in a corner which doesn't show. If this area looks the same — only cleaner — it's safe to go ahead and wash the entire wall.

HELPS SPINACH

Ever add mushrooms to creamed spinach! You can use canned mushrooms or sauteed sliced fresh ones.

Sherell Plank, Fiance Plan January Wedding

Engagement of Miss Sherell Elaine Plank and Reabert Bing Bishop is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett B. Plank of Rayville. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Bishop of Monroe.

The couple will be at home in Monroe where the bride will continue her studies and Mr. Bishop is employed as a draftsman by a Monroe firm.

Book Toters Posture Aid

COLOGNE, Germany — Two German physicians warn that youngsters may develop poor posture because of the way they carry their school books.

Five to 15 pounds of books stuffed into a briefcase which is held in the same hand all the time may eventually cause the shoulder on that side to slip lower than the other. Or it may cause the spine to deviate from its normal position.

What to do about it? Carry the books in a knapsack. Or divide the books into two piles, carrying approximately the same weight in each hand.

NEW TASTE

Add grated cheddar cheese and dry mustard to white sauce; serve with a cooked green vegetable.

New Members At Tea

New Members Ae Tea

The colonial style home of Mrs. Armand McHenry Jr., 1810 Riverside Drive, was the setting for the annual tea given by Fort Miro Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution on Saturday, November 13 to honor new members.

New members honored at the occasion are Mrs. Leroy Adams and Mrs. Sidney Seegars Sr., both of Columbia, Mrs. S. M. Snead, Mrs. R. H. Hurst, Mrs. Herschel A. Gentry, Mrs. Fred Huenefeld Jr., Mrs. W. M. Washburn, Mrs. Charles E. Vaughan, Mrs. Elizabeth Humble Carter, Miss Beverly Carter and Mrs. Robert C. Downing.

Noted in the entrance hall was a mass arrangement of pink Tiffany roses overflowing from a floor standard. Red roses graced the piano in the living room and red pyracantha berries were used on a velvet draped table. In the sun room was an arrangement of tawny colored chrysanthemums and a large arrangement of magnolia foliage.

The polished table in the dining room was centered with a pyramid arrangement of white roses, white chrysanthemums and stock in a tall silver epergne. Alternating at the silver tea and coffee services at either end of the table were Mrs. O. R. Lewis, Mrs. A. Milling Bernstein, Mrs. J. E. Middleton, Mrs. Duncan Cook, Mrs. Tripp Faulk, Jr., Mrs. Thomas Leigh, Mrs. R. D. Kellogg and Mrs. B. S. McRaney.

Mrs. McHenry received at the front door assisted by her small daughter, Miss Marian McHenry, attired in colonial costume. Receiving with the new members were Mrs. W. L. Alexander, regent of Fort Miro Chapter; Mrs. Furman P. Robinson of Bastrop, third vice-regent of the Louisiana Society DAR; Miss Carrie Dee Drew, state chaplain; Mrs. Brooks Dawkins, senior president of Lieutenant Joseph Bowmar Chapter Children of the American Revolution.

Assisting Mrs. E. D. Shaw, and Mrs. Harry Stone, in the dining room were Mrs. W. E. Smith and Mrs. R. E. Marionneaux. Also serving in the dining room were Mrs. C. E. Buckley, Mrs. T. R. Henry Jr., Mrs. Henry Guerriero, Mrs. John Theus, Mrs. Aubrey Boyd, Mrs. Travis Oliver Jr., Mrs. Jack Taylor, Mrs. J. P. Norris Jr., Mrs. Henry Bernstein, Mrs. Haydn Cutler and Mrs. Henry Biedenharn Sr.

Mrs. W. A. Guy, Miss Eleona Brinsmade and Mrs. George Hemphill assisted in receiving in the living room. Flowers throughout the house were arranged by Mrs. Joe Dixon and Mrs. John Salisbury.

Hostesses for the afternoon affair in addition to those named were Mrs. F. C. Amman, Mrs. Allen Barham, Mrs. B. W. Biedenharn, Mrs. Paul E. Blackmon, Mrs. J. C. Brown Jr., Mrs. O. W. Brown, Mrs. T. E. Houston, Mrs. J. B. Kugler, Mrs. Gilbert Marx, Mrs. S. S. Meek, Miss Hazel Mitchell, Mrs. T. H. Monk, Mrs. H. D. Montgomery, Mrs. Satchie Naiden, Mrs. A. H. Newsom, Mrs. J. P. Noel, Mrs. George Snellings, Jr., Mrs. Paul R. Tennis and Mrs. G. F. Wallace.

Serving as general chairman of the event was Mrs. James W. Moore.

Over 200 guests called during the afternoon.

Bolton-Schrock Vows Read In Church Setting

A sunburst arrangement of white gladioli and jade provided a background setting for the wedding of Miss Linda Marie Schrock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Schrock of Oak Grove, to Dennis Wayne Bolton, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bolton of Lake Providence.

The sanctuary of the Seventh Street Baptist Church in Lake Providence was scene of the ceremony on November 12. Rev. R. V. Kenny of Elmwood performed the double ring ceremony.

A prenuptial concert was rendered by the pianist, Miss Rebecca Eubanks, who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Tommy Eubanks.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her brother, Carol Schrock, who gave her in marriage. She wore a two-piece white wool knit model, which featured lace edging and pearl buttons on the blouse. A tiara of seed pearls held in place her veil of illusion and she carried a cascade of frenched chrysanthemums centered with a yellow-throated white orchid.

Miss Brenda Hill of Kilbourne, the bride's only attendant, wore a sleeveless yellow wool sheath with collar of imported lace. She carried a nosegay of yellow daisies interspersed with poufs of tulle and satin ribbon.

Salvadore Hernandez of Tallulah served Mr. Bolton as best man and ushers were Tommy Steen and Ben Johnson.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Schrock wore a two-piece off-white knit ensemble trimmed in golf braid, with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Bolton chose a dark sheer complemented by a white carnation corsage.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Roy Johnson, sister and brother-in-law of the bride, entertained with a supper at their home on Schneider's Lane.

The couple will be at home in Lake Providence where the groom is employed and the bride will continue her studies at Kilbourne high school where she is a senior.

Movement Characterizes Season's Dance Dresses

Evening sees both the short and the long, the soft and the tailored dress making an elegant entrance for fall and winter holidays.

The sari - influenced one-shoulder dress appears in short and long versions, in every type of elegant fabric from chiffon and lace to brocade, satin and cloque.

In the same mood are strapless or little - strapped great-evening gowns with asymmetrically draped bodices.

Dirndls vie with the classic belled skirt for long and feminine evening looks, and the slim, shaped and draped long dress in a floaty fabric such as chiffon has a competitor in the crisply tailored above - ankle gown of whisperweight flannel accented by velvet or satin.

The discotheque dress dances on its way into autumn with fewer frills but more fluidity than ever. The bows, ruffles and fringe that once characterized this type of dress are giving way to the pure shape of dresses meant to move, in supple fabrics, glowing colors, bias cuts.

Instead of frills, today's dance dresses have such accents as cutouts on long, slim sleeves, or contrasting bands of color extending along the sleeves and down the sides.

FLIP TOP

Help for the woman who irons: a "flip top" ironing board. Its narrow, 48-inch long top has a slim nose at one end, a flip-up piece to square it off for ironing wide flat work and another flip piece to make the entire board wider.

LITTLE WHITE DRESS

The time has come to switch-over to a little lamb of a white wool dress and pull the switch on little-black, according to Harper's Bazaar. Quick to meet the pulse of any hour, any weather, is the little white dress of supple naked wool.

Create A Harvest Swag To Beautify Front Door

Contribute to the effort to make America more beautiful and evidence your hospitality to neighbors by beautifying the front door of your home or apartment with a harvest door arrangement.

With Thanksgiving close at hand, such a door swag would be very appropriate and timely. It would add a decorative touch to your entrance way and catch the eye of all who pass by your dwelling, the Society of American Florists points out.

Even the simplest of swags, those made of sea oats or a sheaf of wheat, a few ears of Indian corn and some dried flowers — will serve as a cordial "welcome" sign and stimulate your friends and neighbors to dress up their front doors too.

Your nearest florist would be glad to custom - make a long - lasting harvest or other door swag that would best complement and beautify your entrance way and he admired and talked about by your neighbors and friends.

If you wish to fashion your own door arrangement, here's how you can do a relatively simple one yourself using a sheath of wheat, three or four ears of Indian corn, a few dried flowers, several branches of autmun foliage, and a piece of styrofoam:

Cut the wheat just below the grain. Group it in three clusters on wired picks. In the same manner cluster the wheat's stem ends. Insert the grain clusters into the styrofoam at one end; and the wheat stems at the other end at an angle to create the appearance of one long sheaf.

Encircle the cluster of Indian corn with heavy wire, insert wire ends through the styrofoam and twist them together at the back to anchor.

Insert the wire stems of three or four autumn - colored dried flowers, each of different stem length, so they hide the styrofoam from sight. If necessary, use a few stemmed walnuts to accomplish this. Then back the arrangement with autumn foliage branches.

Bridges-Dahl Vows Read In Monroe

Mr. and Mrs. Roy T. Dahl, 712 McCain Drive, Monroe, announce the marriage of their daughter, Karen Jeanette to Darrell Ernest Bridges, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bridges of West Monroe.

Rev. I. L. Yeager performed the ceremony on Saturday, November 13 at Stone Avenue Methodist Church in Monroe.

Mr. Bridges is employed at Ford, Bacon and Davis in Monroe while also attending night classes at Northeast Louisiana State College. The bride is a junior at Northeast.

The couple is at home at 1309 McGuire Ave., Monroe.

Sleek Look On Or Off Slopes

On and off the slopes, the ski look of fall means sleek stretch pants in brilliant colors. Tweedy outer fabric means warm, leaner parkas, while nylon shows paisley print, embroidered or pleated trim. Headgear is also sleek and close fitting in helmets, caps.

PORTABLE DRIER

Just right for life on campus: a portable electric drier for both clothes and hair. The clothes drier section is designed to handle hosiery and other small washables including delicate synthetics exactly the items a college girl finds aren't dry in time for a date.

LEG OF LAMB

If you use a meat thermometer when you are roasting leg of lamb, be sure to insert the thermometer so that the bulb reaches the center of the thickest part of the leg.

MRS. ROBERT WAYNE TRIESCHMANN

Robert Trieschmann, Bride En Route To Hawaii

Vows uniting in marriage Miss Anne Elizabeth Kling and Captain Robert Wayne Trieschmann were solemnized Saturday, November 13 at 4:30 p.m. in the Spring Hill Chapel at Mobile, Alabama. Rev. Lawrence O'Neill performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Carl V. Kling of Fort McPherson, Georgia and Capt. Trieschmann is the son of Mrs. William MacFarland Long and the late William F. Trieschmann of Lake Providence.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a full length gown of white peau de soie. Alencon lace encrusted with seed pearls formed the empire bodice, fashioned with scalloped neckline and brief sleeves. The A-line skirt, bordered in lace, featured a chapel train, embellished with lace inserts. Her veil of illusion drifted from a cluster of lace flowers edged with seed pearls and tear drops. She carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias and yellow roses.

Mrs. Richard Hornbeak of Mobile, Ala., served as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. King B. Trieschmann of Lake Providence; Miss Sharon Wall and Miss Mary Alexander, both of Mobile. They wore full length gowns of gold crepe with pale gold satin bodices and carried cascade arrangements of fall flowers in golden tones.

King B. Trieschmann of Lake Providence, served his brother as best man. Groomsmen - ushers were George V. Trieschmann, Salt Lake City, Utah; William F. Trieschmann, San Antonio, Texas, also brothers of the groom and Carl V. Kling Jr., brother of the bride, of Fort McPherson.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Brookley Air Force Base Officer's Club. After a wedding trip to New Orleans, the couple will leave for Hawaii where they will reside at 605-7 Lilienthal Road, Wheeler Air Force Base.

Room Dividers Can Improvise Foyer In Home

The old military strategy of divide and conquer has as much merit at the front door as it still does on the battlefield. Front doors that open directly into living rooms are frequently sites of skirmishes, which can be eliminated forever by the proper attack.

Room dividers are the great boon to the home without a foyer. Occupants of such homes know well the problems of chilly blasts of air that send the family scurrying for sweaters, the unexpected caller whose entrance into a slightly mussed living room embarrasses the lady of the house, and the foot tracks through the rest of the home from unchecked boots or soiled shoes.

Conquest of these frontal assaults on the house and family needn't be a difficult or expensive process. Room dividers are usually moveable and can be set up and taken down by anyone. Expense depends upon what you want. The more elaborate dividers contain shallow closets and shelves while others are simply attractive screens.

Finishing off a foyer for maximum protection to the rest of the house is accomplished by surfacing the floor, and possibly part of the walls too, with durable quarry tile. A type of ceramic tile, quarry tile will resist the scuffs of rubber boots, won't be dented by high heels shoes, and will be the easiest to clean material in the entire home.

An entranceway added after a home is built doesn't have to take up a lot of room to accomplish its tasks. Even the smallest foyer will bring a large measure of peace to an active household.

TOOTHBRUSH RACK

A toothbrush rack, one that will hold seven brushes plus a tube of toothpaste is one of the newest notions. The styrene plastic unit can be mounted with self - sticking adhesive or it may be screwed in to place. It comes with a case that covers the brush heads.

...On Dit...

by Marillyn Taylor

Always charmed to entertain visitors, our hostesses are never happier than when the guest is one of "our own," back home for a few days. Such a happy situation existed this week, with the visit of MONTY FRAZIER and his family from Cleveland, Ohio.

Monty, a former resident of West Monroe, arrived last weekend with his wife, JEAN; children LINDSEY, BETSY, and JIM; and Jean's mother, HARRIET CHANDLER. They were guests of Monty's cousins, AYLMER MONTGOMERY, and JOE MONTGOMERY, until Friday. A number of parties were planned for Monty and-or Jean during their stay.

On Monday at noon, BARBARA EASTERLING was hostess for luncheon honoring Jean at the Easterling home on Island Drive. Eight guests were seated at a table centered with sasanquas . . . Tuesday's hostesses were LAYTON LAMKIN and ANNA SLAGLE, who entertained at Bayou DeSiard country club . . The compliment planned by MARTHA KILPATRICK was luncheon at the Lotus club on Wednesday. Jean and Harriet were joined by DOT BACKSCHIES of Seattle, Wash., JANE BARHAM and JACK BURGESS.

The home of Aylmer and Clara Montgomery on Park avenue was the scene of an evening party Wednesday honoring Monty and Jean. Queen Elizabeth roses in a brass bowl were placed on the low round table in the living room. In the corners of the room were antique plant stands holding masses of loquat foliage. The dining table was centered with yellow apples in a brass bowl. On the buffet were twin arrangements of yellow chrysanthemums at either side of the mirror.

A second refreshment table in the den was decorated with a bowl of lemons, yellow apples, and crabapples. On a chest at one side stood a five-branched brass candlestick with bittersweet candles.

Each of these rooms overlooked the courtyard. Here the focal point was the fountain, filled with yellow chrysanthemums. Pansies and violets confused by our Indian summer weather, were in bloom around the base of the fountain. On a glasstop table was placed a wrought iron candelabra with bittersweet candles. Old friends of Monty's were invited to call between seven-thirty and ten.

Jean was named guest of honor at luncheon Thursday at the home of ANN WESTROM. JUNE McHENRY was co-hostess for this party. The table, which was covered with a white cloth, was centered with a silver and crystal epergne filled with yellow chrysanthemums. There were nine guests.

Clever invitations were in the mail this week for a lovely party celebrating the harvest season. On alternate years, the BERNARD BIEDENHARNS entertain at their "day in the country" party. This year's invitations, printed in dark brown on amber - colored paper read on the first page "You are invited . . ." and inside, "To Bernbet by Bernard and Betty Biedenharn, Sunday, November 21, from eleven to three". Bernbet is the hosts' home on Arrant Road, West Monroe.

Decorations for this party echo the harvest theme, and today Betty plans to use on the porch a large country basket filled with fall fruits and foliage. In the entrance, at the base of the pier mirror, is a large candle ornamented with symbols of the season. The candle is based with autumn leaves.

On the living room mantel are turkey-shaped candles in an arrangement of natural foliage. An Italian brass cornucopia spills yellow and bronze chrysanthemums across the coffee table. Golden Wave roses fill the crystal and silver epergne which will center the dining room table. In the new glassed porch, one corner is filled with a five-foot pyramid of gold and bronze chrysanthemums, while the refreshment table here is to be decorated with yellow chrysanthemums. Over one hundred guests have been invited to this party.

Newcomers to Monroe are welcomed with gay parties. One such was the small coffee planned last Friday morning by VIRGINIA CROW honoring ELLOUISE WAY, who with husband H. L. (Cicero), recently moved here from Stuttgart, Arkansas.

Virginia decorated her living room with bouquets of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums. An arrangement of variegated euonymus centered the dining room table. With a choice of coffee or bottled drinks, the hostess offered doughnut holes, pecan crisps, tiny sandwiches, fresh grapes, and sand tarts. Twenty ladies were invited to meet Ellouise.

A couple who moved here this past summer, GLADNEY and TOM PEYTON, were named guests of honor when ANN and JIM PADGETT, MARY LEE and RALPH KING entertained at a dinner party Thursday evening at the Padgett home.

Guests were seated at two tables. That in the dining room was centered with red roses in a silver Revere bowl. In the family room, the table held a small footed silver container filled with bronze chrysanthenums. The menu served to twenty - three guests included ham, au gratin potatoes, marinated green beens with onion rings, hot rolls, and Brownies.

Here from Dallas last weekend was ANN PRYOR, guest of CLIO and DICK BRIGHT and DOT MEREDITH at their home on Emerson street. She arrived on Friday, was here until Tuesday.

Houseguests have been entertained for the past two weekends by MARIE LOUISE and GEORGE SNELLINGS, JR. OSCAR T. MARTIN, who was George's roommate at Princeton and at Harvard, arrived last Friday. He attended the trail ride held by Riverside Riding Club on Saturday. He left for home, in Springfield, Ohio, on Monday. . . This weekend the Snellings have as their guest DUDLEY FORT, of Nashville, Tennessee, a nationally known horseman. He arrived Friday, plans to leave tomorrow. Also houseguests of the Snellings family are Major and Mrs. N. J. Farmer of Leichestershire, England.

A group of intimates got together Thursday at Bayou DeSiard country club to celebrate the birthday of CHARLOTTE ETHRIDGE. With the group when they met for lunch was Charlotte's sister, RENA NELSON of Houston, who has been visiting here this week.

Last night's oyster roast at Bayou DeSiard country club was a sure sign of arriving winter. Each year several of these popular parties are planned during the season. This year Hurricane Betsy delayed the delivery of oysters, but last night saw several hundred club members out to sample the new crop . . . . Traditional Thanksgiving dinner is to be served at the buffet being planned at Bayou DeSiard this coming Thursday. Club members may feast any time between noon and two-thirty.

Members of Junior Charity League are anticipating the group's annual Charity Ball, to be held Friday, December 3, at the Paragon. This year for the first time tickets are not being sold to the public. Through the cooperation of local merchants, League members realized a handsome profit at their Straw Day Market. And therefore they are sparing the merchants another solicitation. The Ball is to be supported entirely by active and sustaining members of the League. Phares Corder and his orchestra will play for dancing from eight until midnight. Breakfast will be served between twelve and one.

In lieu of a poem today, here are some quotations about the theatre:

Some of the greatest love affairs I've known have involved one actor — unassisted. — Wilson Mizener

I'm always nice to the stagehands; they can murder an actor. — John Barrymore.

The theatre (as improvished as it may be) is still the Rembrandt of show business. —Billy Rose.

The lines actors like best are the ones in front of the box-office. — Eli Wallach

There's no love for the theatre in America — there's only love for a hit. — Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

You must not keep on confusing the appreciation and understanding of parts and plays with the ability to act them. —George Bernard Shaw

To many people dramatic criticism must seem like an attempt to tattoo soap bubbles. — John Mason Brown

To me, acting is a craft. Like making a cabinet. When I was five I was put on a stage and told to act. I didn't have this long dream that actresses are supposed to have. — Lillian Gish

If I had a bosom I could rule the world! — Julie Harris.

A well-built showgirl is like a 3-ring circus — a guy doesn't know where to look first. — Al Newman.

Children should be exposed to the theatre the way they are exposed to the measles — early in life. That way they can get it over with and not risk a severe attack, with possible complications, later on. A child with a case of theatre is in no real danger, even though he may spend hours dreaming up new names for himself — names that won't crowd the marquee. — Elaine Kendall

Tragedies are finished by death; all comedies by a marriage. — Lord Byron

ROASTING RACK

Turkey time is coming round and that reminds me to remind you that a V-shaped stainless steel roasting rack is an invaluable asset in the kitchen for cooking any roast properly. These racks are adjustable to hold a small or large piece of meat or bird. They keep the roast clear of fat and are easy to clean.

Delight In Daring With Use Of Color In Fashion

Delight in daring. . . begin with the roguish fun of color, wear pale green tweed stockings and matching suede ghillies with a crisp navy wool suit with a longer jacket. For the at - home look, wildly dare to drape yourself in colorful seraglio pajamas with billowing harem hems and golden mylar turk toe sandals that recreate the nights of Scheherazade.

Discover the sudden freshness of blue for fall. Aegean blue suede pumps warming a brown herringbone dirndl skirted suit. Navy suede hi - vamped pumps and a navy silk bouse give a new look to a belted camel knit suit. There's the revival of whites in Asian sand, a hot off-white that sparks classic winter shades. Feminine bow, high heel pump in Asian sand livens a short brown crepe shift. Ruffle buckle pump in Asian sand suede uppers accent a skimpy orange silk dinner dress.

Tiger Gold burns bright with Fall's deeper shades. Courreges inspired boot in tiger gold balances a welted, vertical pocketed grey shift that stops four inches above the knee. Tiger gold suede uppers in a loopy, low bow pump wildly set off a tiger striped chiffon gown with a fuller, flowing skirt, lower neckline. Turkish red in a sporty kiltie sling pump livens a cool pink pastel two - piece knit.

Expect little girl looks, tender look of ankle strap pumps worn with baby lacy shifts with the unexpected twist of nude lining. Riding clothes done up in velvet worn with velvet boots for a new at - home look, paisley or tweed stockings and matching sweater tucked into a very short, hip - riding skirt, finished with white Courreges boots. Pop up in broadly buckled black pumps on curvy museum heels peppering the soft look of a quilted leather coat. The classic trench coat, now in white suede, lined in red and yellow tattersall and finished with white Courreges boots. The untimid look of zebra stenciled fur in an uncontrived bare-arm shift - to - the - floor, wildly finished with brillant orange peau de soie pumps. We say look for the non - chiche that suddenly makes everything else look out of date!

Capes, Tunics, Weskits Bring No-Sleeve Look

Bracelets, gloves, the shapely sleeves of your suits and dresses — furs show them off this season as never before! A dominant new fur - silhouette idea seems to be "Wrap the body in furs, and let arms accessorize themselves."

The full - length cape is the height of fur fashion. It's buttoned like a fur coat, collared like a fur coat — but it's slit on either side to let your arms display themselves. It's a particularly exciting look in black Alaskan fur seal with huge frogs of silk braid linking the buttons.

Tunics of fur are shaped like knee - length jumpers, or like ponchos, and look luxuriously new for day or for evening. (Who but the American fur designers could give you such a fresh, free look?) Interesting furs for tunics include ranch mink, and black American broadtail lamb.

The little fur weskit — completely sleeveless, just waist-length, and molded to your figure — leads an important fashion life over at - home skirts and pants, and inside suits. See it in all the sleek furs!

There's even an at - home robe of fur that's elegant enough to go to the opera! It's a sleeveless peignoir of white Indian broadtail lamb — and it's floor-length.

MISS CHARLOTTE ANN SANFORD

Louisiana Tech Seniors To Wed In January

Mr. and Mrs. James Dennis Sanford of Oak Grove, announce the engagement of their daughter, Charlotte Ann Sanford to John David Grimm, son of Mrs. John Grimm and the late Mr. Grimm of Metairie.

The wedding will be an event of January 29 at 4:30 p.m. in Oak Grove Methodist Church with Rev. Charles Walker performing the ceremony.

Miss Sanford has chosen her cousin, Miss Lee Hughen of Shreveport, to serve as maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Barbara Grimm and Miss Mary Louise Grimm of Metairie, both sisters of the future bridegroom.

David Alspach of Lancaster, Pennsylvania, will serve his cousin as best man and named as ushers are Dennis Sanford of Oak Grove, brother of the bride-elect and John Bentley of Bastrop.

The bride - to - be is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Hughen of Arcadia and Mrs. W. A. Sanford and the late Mr. Sanford of Belzoni, Miss. She was graduated from Oak Grove high school and will be graduated in January from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

Mr. Grimm is the grandson of Mrs. T. A. Alspach and the late Rev. Alspach of Lancaster, Pa. and the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grimm of Pittsburgh, Pa. A graduate of Metairie Park Country Day School, he will also be graduated from Louisiana Tech in January. Mr. Grimm's fraternity is Kappa Alpha Order.

Following their marriage the couple will be at home in Baton Rouge where he will attend LSU Graduate school.

MULTIPLE USES

Keep a set of round-bowl fractional measuring spoons in your kitchen — you'll find them useful. For example, the 1-teaspoon size may be used for making melon balls instead of a regular melon-ball cutter; the tablespoon size does a good job when you are making "drop" cookies.

Thanksgiving Message Given For Review Club

Mrs. William Kight was a guest when Mrs. Lestar Martin was hostess for the November 15 meeting of the Review Club in her home on Valencia. On arrival members were invited to have refreshments from a table centered with a Thanksgiving arrangement comprising a silvered wicker cornucopia and turkey decorated with caladium and copper plant leaves. Assorted pastries and finger foods were served.

Mrs. C. P. Gray Jr., president, called the meeting to order and welcomed Mrs. Kight. During the business session the club voted to donate to the Penny Art Fund. Mrs. Gray read an invitation to a tea in Mer Rouge November 21, honoring Mrs. Maude Files Zimmer, author of Village So Small.

In keeping with the Thanksgiving season, Mrs. W. T. Davis, home life chairman, gave a Thanksgiving message recalling the history of the holiday and Abraham Lincoln's proclamation declaring November as its official celebration time.

Mrs. J. C. Loftin, program chairman, introduced the theme of the day's study, a Legacy from the Scandanavian Countries, and the speakers, Mrs. Claude Smith and Mrs. Ralph King Jr. Mrs. King reviewed Markings by Dag Hammerskjold. The book, a diary, contains quotes and poetry written during his 20's until his death, portraying a transition of his spiritual life from an early skepticism to a firmly grounded faith in God that manifested itself in his public life and in his work with the United Nations.

Mrs. Smith reported on the background and life in general of Dag Hammarskjold, pointing out that the man truly represents the legacy from the Scandanavian countries.

Those present for the meeting were Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Loftin, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. King, Mrs. James Altick, Mrs. Armand E. Breard, Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Mrs. Thomas Dansby, Mrs. Herschel Gentry Jr., Mrs. Noland Harvey Jr., Mrs. Fred Huenefeld, Mrs. W. M. Inabnet, Mrs. Charles Wilkins and the guest.

Keyboard Guild Has Program On The Hymn

Two new members, Miss Sue McLemore and Miss Marilyn Procell, were welcomed into the Keyboard Guild when it met Saturday in the home of Miss Susan Singleton with Miss Nancy Singleton as co-hostess.

During the business session following the club collect, Miss Dawn Gatlin was elected sergeant - at - arms.

The program opened with singing of the Junior Hymn of the Louisiana and National Federation of Music Clubs, accompanied by Miss Cheryl Poindexter. A text on "The Hymn," was given by Miss Alana Oxford after which Miss Billy Auttonberry played "Onward Christian Soldiers." Miss Carol Smith presented "A Mighty Fortress is Our God," and "Old Hundred," was played by Miss Lynn McDuffie. Concluding the program was the playing and singing of favorite hymns.

Refreshments were served to Misses Vicky Adams, Billie Auttonberry, Pam Auttonberry, Dawn Gatlin, Julie Green, Libby McClendon, Lynn McDuffie, Sue McLemore, Susan Owens, Alana Oxford, Cheryl Poindexter, Marilyn Procell, Carol Smith, Marsha Smith, Denise Spurlock, Gloria Williamson, Martha Woodward, and counselors, Mrs. Thomas Spurlock Jr. and Mrs. Charles Chisholm.

Early Wed Hard Fed

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

For some young people early marriage has proved to be a bread line. After they get over being independent about breaking away from the family circle, they are back again at mealtime at the homes of their parents.

"Just about the time my mother gave up asking us for dinner, we decided we'd just have to go home for occasional meals or starve. We had no idea it costs so much to live. By the time you get finished paying the rent, light bills and all sorts of small things there is very little money for food or recreation," says a 17-year-old bride.

What complicates things for this young couple (he's 18) is that they haven't found enough places to eat free. They don't want to go to their parents more than twice a week, and sometimes the parents are on vacation, and there are days of beans and spaghetti and oatmeal for dinner. Meat is a big expense.

Food isn't their biggest problem, she points out. All those expenses assumed by parents before they married—clothes, recreation, gas for a car—make marriage a financial trap.

"The terrible thing is that you want to be independent of everyone, but how can you," says the groom of six months. "I very naively bought a car before I had a job. My father gave me the down payment, but I had to give it up after I made one payment because I couldn't keep a $3,000 car on a $60 a week job."

He is just about to swallow his pride, let his wife take a job so that he can take something part time and go to college. He knows it will be hard for him to survive unless he finishes his education.

The gold lining in their marriage is that they are really devoted to each other, both admit they should have done things differently, and they are going to work hard to pull out.

"But the big thing that we've learned is that what they were telling us is true. You need maturity to face marriage, and it really wouldn't hurt to have had a course in economics that would have given us the facts of life about expenses of running a household," she says.

His new plans have been well thought out. He'll spend four years getting organized in school and work as they pull in their belts, enjoy simple recreation and keep home expenses to a minimum. He hopes his wife won't work too long, and parents have already promised to help so that they don't postpone having a family because of their financial condition.

Fun, Flowers Share Thanksgiving Feast

Thanksgiving 1965 is a day of festive food and family fun — a modern celebration of an age-old harvest ceremony. When the Pilgrim fathers gathered to give thanks for the yield of their first harvest, they gave New World treatment to thanksgiving rituals of ancient legend and lore.

Centuries ago in Greece and Rome, abundant harvests were a signal for joy and merriment. Demeter, the Greek goddess of plenty, was honored in a three-day celebration each November. She received fruit, corn and poppies as gifts of gratitude for bountiful crops. In Rome, maidens wore garlands of flowers during harvest celebrations, and fresh blossoms are still a symbol of bounty and beauty on the traditional day of thanks.

Wild flowers, wheat sheaves and autumn leaves were the Polgrim's choice for table decorations. The first Thanksgiving in this country was enjoyed in October 1621 by some 50 colonists and 90 Massasoit Indians. The harvest celebration — complete with feasts and games — lasted for three days. Over two centuries later President Lincoln proclaimed the last Thursday in November as a national day of thanksgiving.

The chrysanthemum is the official flower of November and the blossom most likely to grace Thanksgiving tables across the land this year. Large fluffy mums and smaller pompons in rich autumn colors are the favorite choice for the Thanksgiving holiday, according to Florists' Transworld Delivery experts. A centerpiece arrangement of yellow and bronze pompons and fall foliage designed by FTD floral experts especially for the holiday table makes a festive Thanksgiving greeting from friends and family members away from home.

Today, the modern version of ancient thanksgiving rites will be celebrated with family reunions throughout the country — in a spirit of sharing with feasts, fun and fresh flowers in the season's happy mood.

MIXED - UP GARDEN

JEFFERSONTOWN, Ky. (AP) — Robert E. Cassidy recently scored a horticultural first of some kind: he grew tomatoes on Irish - potato vines.

Cassidy has planted both in his garden but somewhere along the line, pollen from the tomato plants wafted across and settled on the potato blooms.

In a short time, three thumb-size tomatoes appeared on four of the potato vines.

NO SIGN, NO STOP

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Two motorists collided at an intersection in suburban Pleasure Ridge Park.

It didn't take police long to spot the cause: vandals had stolen a stop sign on one of the streets.

Your Problems

An Angry Driver Is Hazard On Road

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My fiance has a terrible temper. Whenever we get into an argument he storms out of the house and says, "I'm too mad to talk. I'll ride it out of my system." Then he zooms up the street in his car and heads for the open highway.

Wouldn't it be better if he stayed and talked things out? I worry that he might have an accident. He says he's a good driver and that this is a mature way to get over his anger. Comment, please? — DRUSELLA

Dear Dru: He would be better off if he parked the car and took a brisk walk — or even ran around the block. And so would everyone he meets on the road. An angry driver is a dangerous driver. I hope you can get this across to him before he becomes a statistic and takes a few people with him.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I just returned from a vacation on the west coast. Last Sunday we wanted to spend a quiet hour in a house of worship.

We were appalled at what we saw. Several school age children were whispering, laughing, and hitting each other during worship. They popped gum, ate peanuts and rattled candy bar wrappers.

Two boys about seven years old lay down in the pews and pretended to be pedaling bicycles. One youngster left for the bathroom right in the middle of the Lord's Prayer.

Both my husband and I hope that the parents who read this will ask themselves if they are guilty of allowing their children to behave in this shameful manner.—MILES CITY, MONTANA

Dear Miles City: Parents who permit such behavior disclose a shocking lack of respect for their religion. It isn't enough just to take children to church. They should know why they are there and they should be taught how to behave.

Dear Ann Landers: Before passing sentence on two teenagers convicted of car theft an Illinois judge said some things which I feel are worth repeating.

The judge said, "You two young men have been convicted of a felony. A felony is a crime for which you could have been sent to the penitentiary. I am not sending you to prison but you should know the record of your conviction will stand as long as this court house stands.

"If you are called as a witness in any court you will be asked if you have ever been convicted of a felony. You will have to answer 'Yes.'

"Perhaps someday you will apply for a passport. You may not get it.

"You may want to take a position of trust and a surety bond will be required. When your record is known you will be refused by most bonding companies. By the time you find a company which will take a chance on you, the position will be filled by someone who has no criminal record.

"In a few years you will be 21. Others your age will be allowed to vote. You will be denied this privilege.

"I am granting you a parole. A parole is in no sense a pardon. Your conviction is now a matter of record. It will be with you to the end of your days." — M. M. B.

Dear M. M. B.: The judge's words are sobering, indeed. Only a full pardon from the governor or the President can restore citizenship rights to a felon. But even if a pardon is granted, the record stands forever.

P. S. My legal eagles tell me that if the sentence is served and the individual is not on probation, a passport can be secured.

Outerwear Shapes Feminine Foundations

The influence of ready-to-wear on the styling of foundation garments has seldom been more obvious than it is for the fall.

The free-and-easy look of so many of the new outer fashions is echoed in sheer, next-to-nothing foundations — transparent barssieres, mesh-paneled girdles, one-piece "briefers" that are a mere stretch of elasticized tricot of powernet shaped to the body by seaming and darting.

Shorter skirts have their counterparts in shorter girdles, from sports briefs to what used to be considered "regular" length. The "regulars" now appear short in contrast to the really long-legged pantie stylies first popularized by stretch pants but today universal in their appeal.

The bias shaping of outer apparel has prompted bias-shaped brassieres and girdles, plus such specifics of smoother fit as hemless hemlines: rather than having a separate underbinding, very often a girdle's waistline, a brassiere's midriff band or a pantie girdle's legline will simply be turned back on itself.

REFLECTS COURREGES

Still another aspect of inner-outer coordination for fall is the Courreges influence upon foundation styling. There are a number of "fun things" for youthful figures that reflect the Courreges approach to design. And even Op art appears in underfashions!

Mostly, however the fall look is feminine. Along with seductive animal and reptile patterns, there are delicately printed laces and fresh florals. And the newest "basic color" is the whole skintone range from cream to coppery tones.

FIT PERSONALIZED

As important as the look of the new foundations, of course, is their fit — which a number of features are tending to personalize.

Stretch straps not only stretch but also have buckles to permit their adjustment.

Pantie girdles frequently are proportioned according to stride. A brassiere's fiberfill padding is sometimes both movable and removable. A bra's contours and cut are often identical to those of a slip.

The coordination of under apparel continues to be a growing trend. Besides matching brassieres and girdles that are matched in turn to slips and petticoats, there now are pantie girdles and stockings in the same textured patterns.

Coats Share Fashionable Individuality For Winter

This winter, fashion begins with the coat, and a stimulating selection is ready to make it a great beginning.

Colors appear in tone combinations or monotones. Fabrics are subtle but exciting. Shapes go from narrow to full, and lengths range from the "little overcoat" to the evening - elegant floor lengths, reports the National Board of the Coat and Suit Industry.

SKIRTS ARE SWEEPING

Big news in coats is skirt motion. The fitted coat makes a comeback in a new guise — the dirndl. The coat skirt is gently gathered, or really full. Princess silhouettes are reigning favorites, and as in suit skirts, clusters of side pleats provide motion.

The narrow coat gets a great fashion vote, too. In fact, the narrow trench coat, once entirely in the domain of sports coat fanciers, now blossoms forth in pretty tones of elegant wools.

For the complete look, coats are married to sheaths, shirtdresses, or skirt and weskit combinations. Generally, coats for these costumes are skinny, or the new shorter-than-long length.

Coat closings are varied. The side closing is fastened with buttons and, sometimes, fur-edged. Fly fronts with concealed closings are on the fashion front, as are wrap coats.

Tunnel belts, back belts or no belts are "in," as coats proclaim that it's the season for individuality.

Two - tone coats are a new triumph. A gray coat may be banded with taupe, a white coat in coffee. Often, a pastel combines with a bright tone, a neutral with another h u e of the same colors.

Reversibles ride into fashion on the two - tone wave.

Fabrics have flattened surfaces with new dimensions, through the use of novelty yarns or weave - on - weave.

Tattersall, houndstooth and harlequin checks are broken up by the use of color or weave. Broadcloths, fleeces, meltons are smooth, luxurious and fresh. Heather tweeds take the look of shetland, Harris, argyle.

Twills look fresh in gabardines, tricotines, serges, stretch fabrics. Crepes in many weights and textures are opulent.

After-dark occasions call for silver blends with pastels, satins, cloques and brocades.

Colors for coats go wild or neutral — and they are unrestrained when they combine in one coat for drama.

Jewel-Studded Watches Add Glamor Touch

Crystals this year are faceted for added sparkle, and again, bezels in a variety of shades touch up the watch face with enchanting color.

Jewel-studded watches are radiantly glamorous this fall. Fascinating bracelets, designed with combinations of round, pear and marquise diamonds, mean thrilling new wrist witchery. Emeralds, rubies and saffhires also create a timeless spell on these enchanting timepieces. And even further excitement is provided by jewel-studded lids ingeniously concealing the watch face, which slide or pop up to reveal the time.

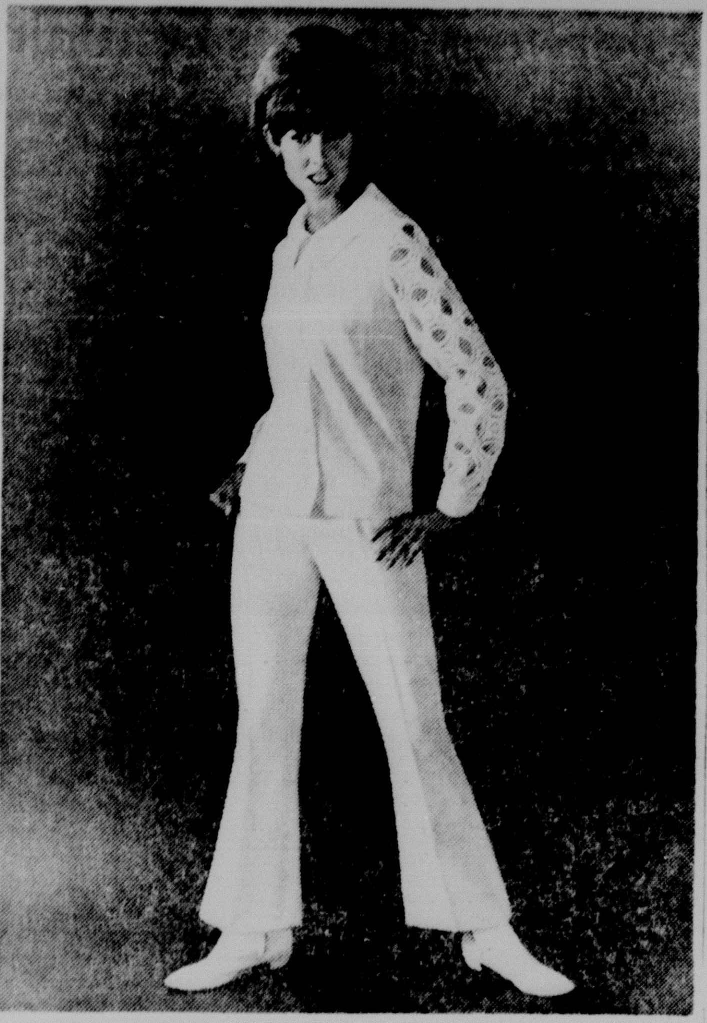
One thrilling technical advance is certainly welcome on this fall's fashion scene: Ladies automatics in dress watches. These are dainty and attractive timepieces in rounded shape, some of which are brilliantly set with diamonds.

The effect in tailored watches is a bit on the well-molded squared side. They are larger and straight-lined, and lend a note of feminine refinement to the sporting costume.

Pendant watches, timepieces as attractive as they are practical, come in a thrilling variety of new styles and shapes, among which is the distinctive design of a watch face set in a large, asymmetrical pendant of polished wood. Antique and heirloom designs are also popular, and this year the locket finds itself in a variety of new disguises. Favorite novelty watches are in pin and ring form. Such time-telling accessories so combine whimsy, charm and utility that they delight every women's fancy.

Wrought Iron Moves Inside

Wrought iron furniture is coming indoors. One manufacturer is offering wrought iron pedestal and rectangular dining tables that substitute wood or plastic tops for the ubiquitous glass tops seen on patios. The new tables are designed to harmonize with conventional dining room furniture.



A SCENE-STEALER is this combination of sailor pants and lace-sleeved shirt in glowing pale colors of pink, blue, beige or ivory. The ensemble in crisp rayon-acetate fabric with a look of silk, is from the Country Set group of exciting holiday wear.

JAGUAR TAKES on new dimensions for "apres ski" wear when interpreted by Fantasia Furs in a leather-piped jerkin. The exciting fur accessory can be worn equally as well over stretch pants as shown or long dinner skirts for the holidays.

Bosses Are Buzzing For More Secretaries

By ROBERT A. BAKER

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Who has the diplomacy of a statesman and the sense of humor of a comedian; who cheers up her boss when he is blue and remains calm when he is angry?

If you answer secretary, you're right.

She has one other thing going for her: she is not likely to be fired for anything short of treason, for she is virtually irreplacable. And she is virtually irreplacable in the strictest sense of the word because, for every two employers who want a "girl Friday," there is one applicant for the job.

Herman Miller, president of the Stenotype Company of California says there is a definite shortage of qualified secretaries, not only in this area, but nationwide.

"Girls with good shorthand and typing skills can call their own shots when it comes to job opportunities," Miller said.

He said the clamor for secretaries reaches its peak every Sunday in the "Help Wanted, Female" section of the classified ads.

Miller noted that the city of Los Angeles will pay $375 a month for a girl just out of high school and trained in shorthand and typing.

And, he said, there is evidence to indicate the secretarial situation will not improve in the near future. Miller said it does not appear the school systems are turning out enough qualified girls.

He said that, between 1948 and 1962, the number of school girls enrolled in advanced shorthand classes in the Los Angeles City School System increased by only 400 despite the huge expansion of business in the area.

The U. S. Department of Labor said "a shortage of workers with stenographic and typing skills has existed in many areas since World War II." The department said the demand has often exceeded the supply.

Miller said even in jobs where secretaries work side-by-side with complicated office machines, there are two employers fighting for every graduate.

Those in the know say the reason the supply of secretaries is so low is the fact that women who want to work now have a wider choice of jobs.

Vocational avenues previously closed to women are now opening up and many are choosing other fields of work.

Miller and other authorities see two answers to the problem. High school counselors must point out to students the excellent career possibilities available in the secretarial field. Also, women who did not take secretarial courses in high school must be encouraged to go to business schools or night classes to acquire the necessary skills.

COMPANY FARE

Unexpected company for supper? That creamed vegetable you made for the family will be party-style if you top it with heated crisp French-fried onion rings. As you probably know, the onion rings come in cans and are handy to keep on the pantry shelf.

'Jnder Fashions, The Slip Takes On Bold New Ideas

The slip is now a fashionable in its own right. Keyed to the outer shape of fashion, slips are softer, barer, lighter and much more feminine.

Fleshtones are vying with the traditional white and black for color supremacy. Unusual prints, like the "French ribbon" florals, skintone and Op prints, and the female detailing of ribbon, bow, lace and embroidery make for some of the prettiest slips seen for fall.

Keeping slips functional as well as lovely are the bra slips with their long line or natural bra tops and skirts of nylon or crepe tricot.

Strictly for the modern woman is the chemise — a mere sliver of a slip, thigh-high, feminine and flowery for fall — and the new, lacy thigh-high half-slip with attached panties.

Up - to - this - minute fashion-wise is the one shoulder slip that bares the other shoulder simply by turning it inside out, of transparent tricot.

For Old World enthusiasts, the camisole is back, in nude tones with matching above-the-knee pettipants or slightly flared skirt and trimmed in ribbons and beading.

LINED IN OP ART

Op art prints on lavish silk are being used to line the newest furs, in the newest way. Colors spark, fade undulate, vibrate in a geometric game to trick the eye with interesting visual compositions.

Brush and Palette

by Jan Bank

By STEVE HODGES
Guest Columnist

Currently on exhibit at the Masur Museum of Art is an exhibition of paintings by Mrs. Halcyone Barnes, Mrs. Bess Dawson, and Mrs. Ruth Holmes, of Summit, Mississippi. These three artists have exhibited widely in the South and have won awards in many regional and national shows. It is their custom to always show their work together.

Mrs. Halcyone Barnes has a group of collages on view which she constructed by first painting pieces of paper of various sizes, and then applying them to masonite with acrylic polymer. With this technique Mrs. Barnes has created some very rich paintings full of subtle gradations of color and value.

Mrs. Bess Dawson is indebted to abstract expressionism. In her paintings she has used paint for its own sake. A spontaneous brushwork is combined with intense, saturated color, creating work which is high in emotional content. Although her paintings are abstract, it is interesting to see how some of them relate to the landscape, while others relate to the still life.

The paintings of Mrs. Ruth Holmes are full of humor. She utilizes painted and real machine parts which she sometimes combines with a careful rendering of a flower or a group of pine needles. In one of her paintings is what could only be described as a machine-man which strikes one as being amusing at first, but I suspect that there is a message here of a more serious nature.

This showing of three Mississippi artists will hang until the end of the month.

December 5th is the opening date of the exhibition of Monroe artists which should be of interest to everyone. Monroe is fortunate to have many excellent working artists, and it is hoped that we can all show our support by attending. Many of our artists win prizes regularly, and the styles range from the very abstract to the very realistic.

An exhibition of work by students of Northeast Louisiana State College may now be seen at Bry Hall on the Northeast campus. On display are water - color and casein paintings, drawings from life class, three - dimensional work in paper and clay, and hand-made jewelry.

3 Engineers Are Awarded Scholarships

RUSTON (Special) — Three Louisiana Tech students in the department of mechanical engineering have been awarded scholarships by the Louisiana Engineering Society and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers of Tech.

Phillip D. Fairchild of Bossier City received a $200 award from the Shreveport section of the Louisiana Engineering Society.

Patrick Creed Kelly of Minden and Ronald Clark Loyd of Hosston are joint recipients of a $150 scholarship from the Shreveport section of the ASME.

To be eligible for the LES scholarship, a student must have a minimum of 70 semester hours and be a resident of the fourth congressional district.

Recommendation for the award was made by the scholarship committee of the School of Engineering. J. J. Thigpen, head of the Tech's department of mechanical engineering, is chairman of the committee.

Kelly and Loyd were given scholarships for their outstanding contribution to Tech's student chapter of the ASME.

Conference Of Baptists Slated

The Northeast Louisiana Baptist Pastors' Conference will meet at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the First Baptist Church of West Monroe.

Rev. H. L. Sampson of West Monroe, program chairman, said that the pastors will examine texts and materials for sermons on the special occasions of Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's. The meeting will adjourn at noon.

'Bad Mouthing

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The long-dormant volcano Popocatepetl is reported belching smoke up to 300 feet, alarming nearby villagers. There has been no major eruption of the volcano in decades.

Appearances At Northeast Set By Mrs. Zimmer

Author and newspaper columnist Mrs. Maude Files Zimmer will be on the Northeast Louisiana State College campus Monday for talks before English and journalism students and the NLSC Women's Club.

Mrs. Zimmer, whose second book, "A Village So Small," is being published this month by Robert Speller & Sons of New York, is a native of Oak Ridge who now lives in Bloomfield, Conn., and writes a weekly column for The Hartford (Conn.) Times.

The author will speak to students twice Monday, first at 9 a.m. and then a different group at 2 p.m. Also scheduled Monday is a television interview with members of the English faculty in the morning, dinner with the faculty at noon, dinner at 6 with officers of the Women's Club and selected guests and then the address before the entire Women's Club in the CUB auditorium.

A book-author reception has been planned for Mrs. Zimmer today, in Oak Ridge.

Mrs. Zimmer's first book was "A Time To Remember." Both it and "A Village So Small" are compilations of vignettes taken from her weekly newspaper column and other publications. Oak Ridge is the setting of the two books and the author reminisces about her childhood spent in a "very large family in a very small town."

Her first book centered around family life and the second enlarges the picture to include people and places outside the home circle.

New 4-H Club Officers Named

J. T. Franks was recently named president of the Riser Junior High School 4 - H Club, with Brenda Hudson named vice president and Marilyn Rogers elected secretary-treasurer.

Others on the new slate of officers include Gracie Crawford, reporter; Regena Hammond, program chairman; Vickie Funderburk, council member.

Boycott

BOGALUSA, La. (AP) — As Bogalusans went about their weekend shopping Saturday, many store fronts were picketed by Negroes flashing signs urging boycotts of merchants not employing Negro clerks.

One white boy was among those seen carrying a placard. Bogalusa police, under federal court orders to protect demonstrators, watched closely throughout the day. There were no incidents, and whites ignored the picket lines.

Guide To Good Reading

Interesting New Books In Library

By FRANCES FLANDERS,
Ouachita Parish Librarian

The book collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library is growing constantly and there are many new books this week to appeal to a variety of readers. "At Play in The Fields Of The Lord" by Peter Matthiessen is a novel set in the Amazon jungle. It concerns the experiences of a band of missionaries and should make interesting reading. "Letter to a Conservative" by Steve Allen is certain to be widely read. "$ $ $ and Sense" by Ella Gale is a book in the field of consumer education which has good ideas for saving money. "Voices In The Classroom" by Peter Schrag is a philosophy of public education and should be of special interest to teachers. "How to Pass High On The Graduate Record Examination" by Edward C. Gruber should be seen by everyone who is planning to take this examination.

Many readers enjoy books about snakes, and a new title on this subject is "Introducing Non - Poisonous Snakes" by Stanek. One of the tragedies of natural history is the extinction of the passenger pigeon. Allan Eckert has written about it in a very touching manner in a book which he calls "The Silent Sky." Gardeners will want to see "Soil and Health" by Albert Howard, which is an excellent book on natural gardening. Cookbooks are always in demand and there are three new ones this week. They are "The Art of Mexican Cooking" by Jan Aaron, "French Cooking For Everyone" by Alfred Guerot and "Father was A Gourmet" by Carol Truax.

Coin collectors will want to see a lovely new book on this subject "Coins and Collectors" by David Bowers. A beautiful and unusual book is "Children's Toys Throughout the Ages" by Leslie Daiken. "The History Of Professional Football" by Harold Classen will interest many devotees of this sport. "Adventures Under the Sea" by Jim Thorne is a very splendid new book about professional divers.

Stories of espionage and intrigue are always in demand. This week we have a true story about one of the most successful agents of World War II. The title is "Cynthia" and the author is H. Montgomery Hyde. "Floodtide in Europe" by Don Cook is an interesting history of Europe since World War II. "Days of Shame" by Charles C. Potter is a resume of the McCarthey hearings in the Senate "The Middle East" written by Jay Walz is a fine discussion of Economic, social and political conditions in that part of the world.

Many readers prefer biographies to any other type of writing. "The Crippled Tree" by Han Suyin is an interesting biography of a modern day Chinese writer. "Albert Sidney Johnston" by Charles P. Roland is a very fine biography of one of the outstanding Southern Generals in the Civil War. Certain to be widely read is "Margaret Mitchell of Atlanta" by Finnis Farr. This is the story of the author of "Gone with The Wind" and it is most exciting to read. A perfectly beautiful new book is "The Schweitzer Album" by Erica Anderson. This is a large and handsome book and the illustrations are outstanding. "The Secret of Sarajevo" by Hertha Pauli sheds new light on the Assasination that set off World War I.

A most useful new book in the genealogy coollection is "Colvin and Allied Families" by Ethelle and Baker Colvin. Many people in this area will find it useful. A new atlas and a very splendid one is "The World Book Atlas". We also have the new catalog of the Fine Art Reproductions of Old and Modern Masters." This book is Published by the the New York Graphic Society.

The Bookmobiles will not operate next week and all of the Libraries will be closed on Thanksgiving Day, Novmeber 25. They will be open as usual on Friday and Saturday, but the main library will not be open on Sunday afternoon, November 28.

Patients Will Suffer After Legal Battles

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A chiropractor said here Saturday that thousands of chiropractic patients are caught in the middle of a verbal battle between the chiropractic and medical professions.

Dr. Russell A. Aker, a chiropractor, took issue with Dr. J. A. Sabatier Jr., president-elect of the Louisiana Medical Society, who asked for the arrest of chiropractors for operating without a license.

In a newspaper advertisement, Aker said a showdown is indicated by a recent ruling by a three-judge panel that the Louisiana State Medical Examining Board has the authority to refuse licenses to chiropractors who do not have medical degrees.

Dr. Sabatier, Aker said, claimed many people go to chiropractors first and by the time they get to a physician it is too late to help them.

MRS. CLAUDINE THOMPSON of Spats Rexall Drug, was the Grand Prize winner in Rexall Drug Co. Box Top Bonanza Contest for salespeople. Presenting her with the freezer full of money ($1,000.00) is Rexall representative Ray Caldwell. In addition to the $1,000 Mrs. Thompson won an outdoor barbecue, a tether ball, volley ball and two bicycles. Mrs. Thompson is employed at SPATS REXALL DRUG, 1700 Louisville Ave., Monroe, La.

Garden Center Notes

Thanksgiving Motif Themes

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Fleur de Lis Garden club of Monroe presented a magnificent program last Wednesday depicting the Thanksgiving season. Ten outstanding designs were displayed. Twelve of the members including their president, Mrs. W. R. Haight, brought the designs which contained many lovely mums from the members' own gardens, and fruits of all types.

Since Thanksgiving is a time of harvest and plentifulness we think of fruits of all types. Mrs. J. H. Monroe and Mrs. Thelma Oseland used clipped yucca for the line material with their fruit design made on a black round base. Small fruits, nuts, and grape clusters were placed symmetrically around the yucca stalk to form a free-standing design for the table. Small peppers from the garden served as a colorful filler.

TEMPTING DISPLAY

Another "tempting" display of fruits was made by Mrs. S. J. Russell. Her container was a tan wooden lazy Susan. Mixed fruits in all colors were unified into a circular pattern with the use of green grape clusters as a basic material. There is nothing lovelier for the holiday table.

Euonymous formed a tiered line on a round wooden base for a mixture of fruits at the basic part of the design by Mrs. Henry Ray and Mrs. Julius Fink. The highlight was given by the use of Burford holly berry clusters throughout the entire design.

Mrs. W. D. Albritton and Mrs. R. P. McKay created the typical Thanksgiving table design using a footed brass container onto which was attached three candle holders. A massed design of variegated euonymous, marigolds and small yellow mum clusters was completed with three yellow candles and a cluster of pale green grapes. Two ceramic turkeys served as accessories on each side of the design.

PYRAMID DESIGN

Mrs. L. A. Shelton used the elegant white Empress camellias in a white bowl for her pyramid design. The foliage of the camellia served as a rich green background for the camellias. Another design made by Mrs. Shelton and Mrs. Dwight Alverson contained two sizes of the lavender pink mums placed into a line of graceful equisedum in a green compote container. Mrs. J. B. Young created a "sunshine" design using large yellow mums with smaller spray mums of the same color in a rectangular footed yellow bowl. Several sprigs of yellow wheat gave just the right touch for fall accent. Mrs. Young grew the lovely mums from a pot plant that she had acquired two years ago. She said it did pretty well last year in the yard, but this year it grew to tremendous size and had many large blooms. Of course she disbudded, but only a month ago. From the start this has truly been a "sunshine plant."

Mrs. Henry Ray and Mrs. Julius Fink made a second design using a large brandy snifter as a container for tall slender stems of tropicana rose buds which curve into a radiating line from the snifter. Three large open blooms served as the focal accent. For the lower line a cluster of orange-red pyracantha berries flowed from the lip of the container. A round mirror base was used to reflect the colorful beauty. All colored marbles added interest and stability inside the snifter.

HARVEST DESIGN

Mrs. W. R. Haight chose lovely spider mums for her "Harvest Design" in a footed brass container. Wheat stalks and a brown slender basket formed the background. Dried okra pods served as a filler that tied in the color of the tray and gave accent to the light orange color of the mums. At the base one large Japanese persimmon was placed for color and accessory.

The last design was made by Mrs. Percy Neely who used the large golden mums with the smaller spray mums to form a horizontal design in a soft green compote. Very suitable for the table, or beneath a picture or mirror over the mantle.

Our next program will be presented by The Garden Gate Garden Club of Winnsboro.

"Beauty From Our Natural Resources" was the theme of the Fifth District Conservation Conference recently at Farmerville. The Farmerville Garden Club served as hostess for this meeting which was greatly enjoyed by all who attended. Mrs. Jettie Barnum, chairman of fifth district conservation, introduced each of the outstanding speakers for the day's program. Greetings came from the Farmerville Garden club president, Mrs. Melvin Everett and Mayor Clyde Williams. Mrs. M. L. Johnson, Fifth District L. G. C. F. director gave the response. The past commissioner of Lake D'Arbonne, A. F. Rabun, talked on "The Importance of Conservation of Our Natural Resources and Particularly the Conservation of Fresh Water and It's Influence Upon the Economy of Our Country." L. C. Allen, chairman of Lake D'Arbonne Commission, showed a film of the D'Arbonne Lake as it is today. This was quite interesting. He explained many phases of it's development stages.

"Beauty From Our Natural Resources," was the topic for our State Parks and Recreation Commissioner. His talk gave a great insight of the importance of preserving our state parks, and a brief history of several made us feel more appreciative of the value to us as individuals.

NATURAL RESOURCES

It is a shame each Louisiana citizen could not hear more about natural resources and how to preserve them for the future generations to enjoy. "Birds," one of our greatest natural resource, was the subject covered by Mrs. Paul Bourg, our state LGCF bird chairman. These are truly our fine feathered friends and they should be protected by each of us. Even our wild plant life should be preserved. Mrs. M. L. Hogan, our state LGFC conservation chairman gave a brief, and interesting talk on how to preserve the wild flowers and plants that are fast becoming extinct due to carelessness, growing population, and new highways, etc. She also explained the available awards to the clubs, and how to attain them.

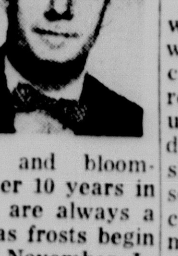
"Water," was the natural resource that was discussed as our most important concern. Fresh water for use to drink and also, water for our plant growth. After leaving this meeting I have more appreciation for this all important resource that has been given to us, and as individuals we take so much for granted. Maybe each of us should be more and more concerned in the future Just a tiny plant added to a barren bank, cultivated so that it will take over the bare spots along the roadside, will do a big part to check erosion and add beauty to our countryside.

The final highlight of the day's events was a tour of Lake D'Arbonne, including a visit into some of the beautiful homes built on it's banks. These homes, nestling in the wooded areas along the lake, were too beautiful to describe. This is truly conserving beauty and using Nature's gift to the fullest advantage. These homes, some are called camps, set an outstanding example of what can be done and will inspire building of many more such lovely campsites in the future. Just imagine what this Lake will look like in 10 more years. Truly a beauty spot to be proud of in the future. We are told that it belongs to each of us in Louisiana, so go to Lake D'Arbonne for a visit. You'll puff up with pride.

The meeting would not have been complete had we not had our own Louisiana Garden Club Federation President, Mrs. J. L. Yaawn. During her brief talk we learned about a new trail that we will all want to visit, "The Magnolia Nature Trail," in the Kisatchie Forest. If we took time to visit each of our 16 state parks, we would not have the time to visit other countries, at least, for some time, and we'd really appreciate the valuable beauty that we have right here at home.

Southern Gardener

Fall Beauty In Blossoms



By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Chrysanthemums are not the only beauties of the late autumn The brilliant blue, lavender and white varieties of the giant crocus speciosus have been in bloom for a week, now, and will go on for another week or 10 days.

Crocus speciosus is considered by English crocus specialists to be the easiest of the fall species to grow. The Dutch and other blub breeders have thought so highly of this bright flower that they have created and selected out some five or six varieties and given them names.

Planted about six inches deep in specially prepared soil of a third each of coarse sand, chip mold and woods soil with bone meal added, several varieties of this wonderful late bloomer have multiplied and bloomed lavishly for over 10 years in my garden. They are always a big surprise just as frosts begin to come around in November. In their woodland setting underneath the trees, frosts do not bother them at all. In fact, they are probably so hardy to cold that they would not be much affected by frost even in the open, but they are very attractive just underneath the edge of large shrubs and small trees where they are out of the way of cultivation.

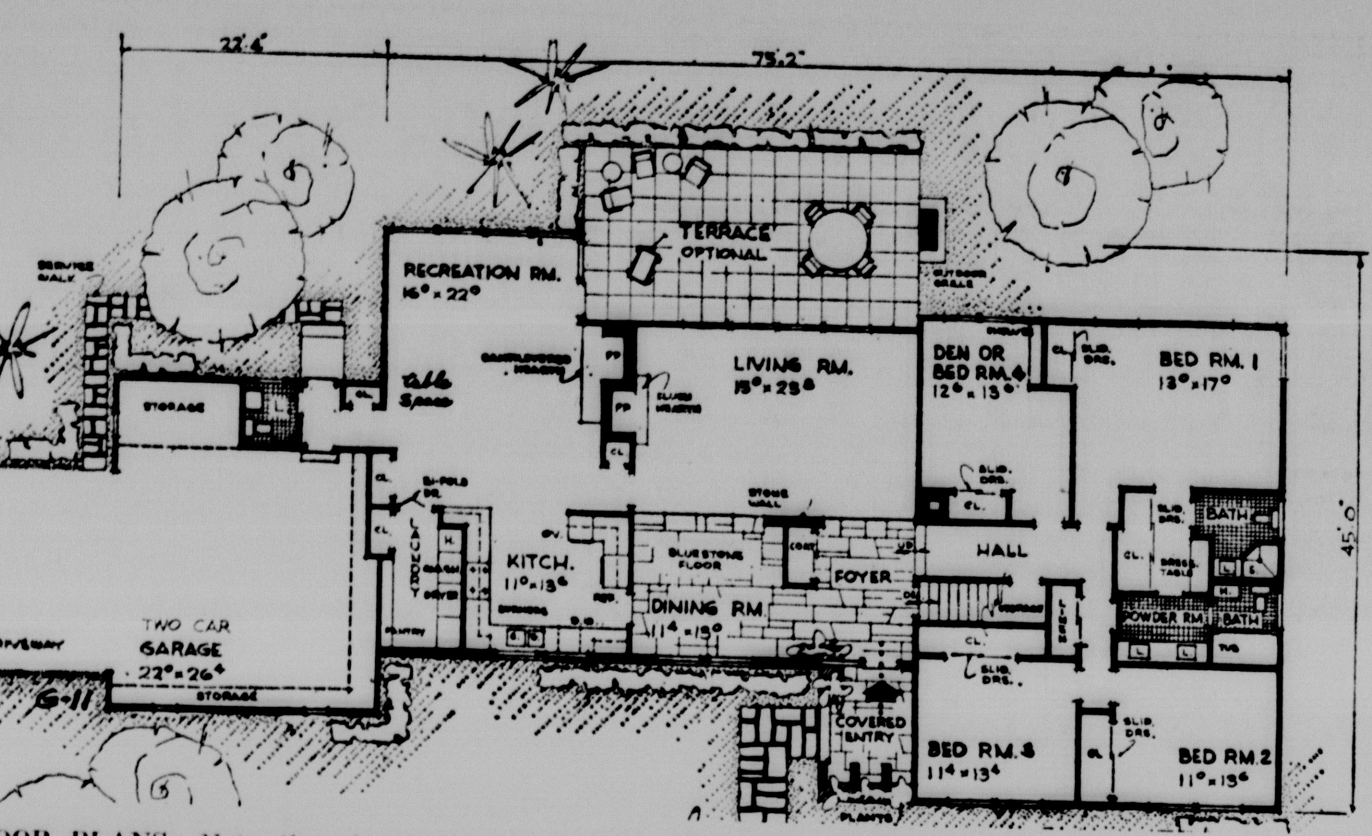
PLAN AHEAD

Make a memorandum for next July or August and order the corms of this spectacular crocus. July is not a month when one is at all likely to order crocuses, and that is the reasons for the absense of many of these easy to grow bulbs in Southern gardens. We have begun to think about ordering colchicums those bigger - than-crocus purple and lavender flowers that will bloom without water — and crocuses can be ordered along with them.

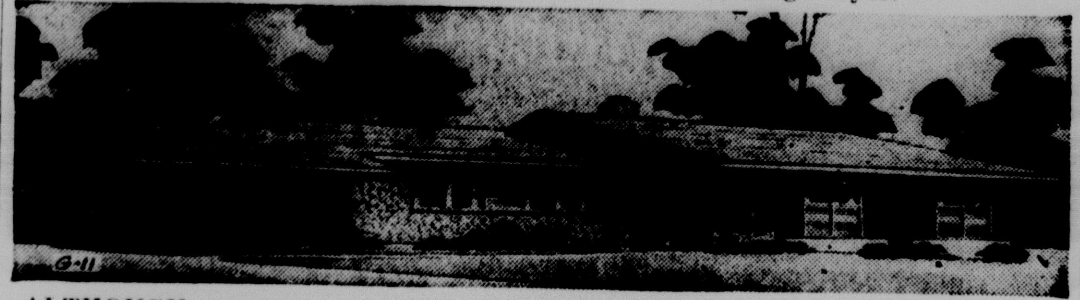
NERINES FOLLOW

Just as the crocuses begin to fade, in about a week, the South African pink Nerines will bloom. Some readers of the column got these from the West Coast bulb dealers during the past few years. The name in the catalogues is Nerine bowdeni and they are bulbs that look like those of spider - lilies except that they are not brown. The foliage on this nerine seems to come out and grow whenever there is enough water and go to sleep when there is none. Although the flowers wait until just the time of hard frost to open, they can stand a lot of cold. Pick them, and they will last for two weeks or more as cut flowers.

Right along with hard frosts comes another unusual plant. This one is the oriental species of cimicifuga, the tall white spiked wild flower of shady woods. The genus was named for this late flowering species from Russia because it is used there to drive away bugs. Look for cimicifuga simplex in the northern perennial catalogues.



FLOOR PLANS: Note the abundance of unusual features here, not the least of which is the bluestoned floor which ties together the dining room and the large foyer.



ALTHOUGH pretentiousness is conspicuous by its absence in this four-bedroom ranch, it takes only a glance to mark it as a tasteful, well-designed residence.

Architect's House Is Basis For Design Being Featured

By ANDY LANG

There was good reason for believing that the latest House of the Week would be something extra special — before we even saw the plans. For we had been told ahead of time that it was patterned after the house which architect Herman H. York designed for his own family.

Sure enough, it turned out to be a residence with a pleasant exterior and an excellent circulation pattern, blended into a first-rate example of tasteful, contemporary design.

It is not a small house, with over-all dimensions of 97' 6" by 45', including the garage. But a family which has a lot large enough and which requires three or four bedrooms on one floor will find it a house that has everything necessary for luxury living. Architect York worked on the floor plan on and off for a year, making several changes until every detail was exactly as he had originally visualized it.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan G-11.

DEPTH IMPRESSION

After passing through the covered entry, an impression of depth is achieved by large panorama windows at the rear of the living room. The stone foyer floor is carried into the dining room to further carry out this concept of spaciousness.

The formal living room, with its flush hearth fireplace, leads directly to a large recreation room in line with the trend toward larger recreation areas. Here, too, the rear is almost all glass. All of the principal rooms face toward the rear of the property to get the benefit of whatever landscaping is done there. A raised cantilevered hearth is designed into the fireplace of the recreation room, which serves the dual purpose of hearth and sitting area.

LAUNDRY LOCALE

At every conference on housing, women say they want a laundry near the kitchen, but not directly in it. Here there is enough space for washer, dryer and clothes-sorter. This is a room for the purpose, not merely a closet. In this plan there are three closets in the immediate area of the laundry and service section. A washup lavatory and toilet are located between garage, kitchen and rear door. The garage has been designed with huge storage area. The main double door of the garage is shown at the side instead of toward the front. Approximately 30' from the property line is needed to swing a car into the garage. Should this distance be unavailable, the door can be located facing the front. But a better facade results from the side entry plan.

At the other end of the house, well isolated from the noise of the recreation room and laundry equipment, is the bedroom wing. Two 6" steps separate the sleeping area from the living area. The wide hall of this wing adds luxury at an important crossover place in the house. Assuming bedrooms No. 2 and 3 are used by the children, it can be seen that they are able to use the bathroom without being seen from the front foyer or living area. The bathroom has a split design so that it can be used by three people simultaneously.

The owners' bedroom, located at the rear of the house for the most favorable exposure, is designed with its own bathroom and dressing section. This bathroom also is located to give privacy even should the bedroom door be open.

SIMPLICITY

Stone and rough - textured wood are used on the outside, with simplicity the keynote. Architect York believes that a restful exterior is achieved by using a minimum number of different materials and window sizes. He likes to "tie together" some of the window units to create a single unit of two or more openings, as shown in the windows of the kitchen and dining room. The panels under the front bedroom windows are designed to simplify the architectural treatment of these units.

Wide roof overhangs are of great help in reducing maintenance costs and providing protection in rainy weather. In many areas, it is possible with this kind of roof overhang to omit leaders and gutters. Gravel bed or masonry walks just under the edge of the overhang will suffice to catch water coming down from the roof.

If you have the land, the family and the wherewithal, you can't go wrong with this house.

Wallpapered Floors Can Be Durable

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Many people have wallpapered their floors, not always successfully. Papers chosen and methods used to apply the paper to the floor should be considered in the light of stress to be exerted on the floors.

But wallpaper can be used successfully on floors, say those who do use it providing it is applied properly. It even stands up in the kitchen which gets the hardest wear and tear of all rooms in most homes, providing it is treated for extra protection.

The method suggested is one that involves putting a protective coating over the wallpaper after it is put down. Two coats of clear liquid vinyl may be poured on, the second after the first has dried. It should give the wallpaper a good surface that will resist scuffing and tearing.

DURABLE

A floor of an entranceway in a home can look good after five months' wear on one coat of clear varnish. But lots of factors are involved. Some homes take more abuse than others, and the surface should be finished to cope with it. Some people put a coat of wax over the varnish, but if an area rug is to be used over the paper, waxed floors can be a potential danger as little rugs may slide.

Wallpapering a floor involves the same principle as wall application — start at a corner, and work across, matching the pattern. If the design is large, it should be centered, working out from the middle of the floor, so that everything comes out even on both sides of it.

PATTERN SELECTION

One idea in choosing patterns for wall and floor is to match them. Checks, plaids, tweeds, brick and pebble patterns all look good on floors. Companion papers can be found for walls, but don't make the contrast too overwhelming. Some of the best wallpapered floors are done with the idea that the design will wear down, and the ultimate worn look is the one that will blend in well with furnishings, such as early American.

In Colonial times one way to stray from conservatism in decorating was to put design on the floors. These were often painted to look like designs in hooked rugs, inserting the designs in little octagonals or squares. They also liked spattered floors.

Wallpaper may be carried up the wall from the floor to make a room look larger, with a stripe going around the wall above it. But it depends on the pattern of the paper. In narrow rooms stripes may be used to make the room look wider by running the wallpaper horizontally across the room.

Harmonien Is Honored By Stamps

Norway's philharmonic society "Harmonien," established in 1765 in Bergen, is honored by that country with the issuance of two new stamps. The society is one of the oldest musical organizations in the world.

The 30 ore and 90 ore adhesives depict the Patronesse of Bergen, "St. Sunniva," and some ancient buildings of Bergen in the background. The announcement of the artistic commemorative set for the society's 200th anniversary came directly from the Norwegian Post Office in Bergen.

Great Britain has issued two new stamps marking the operational opening of the new Post Office Tower in London. The 3 pence stamp is vertical and shows the 620-foot tower springing from a symbolic foreground of Georgian - type buildings which are a feature of the immediate vicinity. The colors are two shades of blue and yellow. The 1 shilling 3 pence pictures Georgian architecture and the tower overshadowing Nash Terrace at Regents Park. The colors on this higher value are two shades of green and blue. In each stamp the Dorothy Wilding portrait of Queen Elizabeth is featured to the right of the tower.

As an experiment, the British Post Office for the first time has printed the names of the artist and printer in the bottom margin of each stamp.

Austria has issued a new stamp commemorating the 20th International Red Cross Conference recently held in Vienna. It is a 3 schilling black and red on white depicting the Red Cross and a gauze bandage. Also issued by Austria was an additional value to its series of monumental buildings. It is an 8 schilling stamp in burgundy featuring the Steyr Town Hall.

Brazil has issued a new 100 cruizeiros stamp commemorating the state visit of Italy's President Saragat to Brazil. The stamp bears Saragat's bust portrait with appropriate inscriptions marking the visit. Another stamp for a state visit to Brazil honors H.A.R. Grau, President of Luxembourg.

The newest member of the United Nations, the Maldive Islands, has issued its first set of stamps since its independence. The new set is a commemorative honoring the late President John F. Kennedy. The Maldive Islands territory covers 100,000 square miles and over 2,000 islands and atolls scattered in the Indian Ocean about 450 miles southwest of Ceylon. The Maldive Islands have been well known to stamp collectors for the last 58 years under British colonial rule.

Trees Vital To Landscape

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

You, Mrs. New Homeowner, may be trying to decide whether to plant a tree in your landscape. Here are some reasons why a tree should be planted. Trees may add shade, add color and interest during changing seasons, screen out noise and dust, serve as a windbreak, make a pleasing setting, add value to property (esthetic and real estate - may add food as fruit and nut trees). Before you, Mr. and Mrs. Homeowner, plant a tree, consider these points for reasonable protection of public and peronal interest: Sewer lines, overhead public service power lines, street and traffic signs, sidewalk and other paved surfaces, water mains and clearance for unobstructed views at intersections.

November is an excellent time for planting, especially trees. They are in a dormant condition and can be planted or transplanted with great success.

If you, Mrs. Gardener, are anxious to get in the yard these fall days then one job that is important to do is to cut and burn all weeds. They aid over wintering insects or harbor eggs of many insects which, if left to hatch, will result in damage to your garden.

Clean beds and cultivate soil for annuals and perennials to be planted later.

Make cuttings of English Ivy for areas of ground cover.

CHOCOLATE

Have you, Mrs. Homemaker, added liquid to melted semi-sweet or milk chocolate and frequently had the chocolate to tighten. Many times the incorporation of steam contact with damp utensils or combining with a teaspoon of vanilla may make this happen. Tightening does not occur when two or more tablespoons of liquid are added - it's the minute amount that causes the trouble. If this should happen to you, simply add one or two tablespoons of vegetable shortening, stir well, and the chocolate will liquify. If a recipe calls for less than two tablespoons of liquid, add it to the chocolate after other ingredients, eggs, butter, sugar, flour etc. have been incorporated.

TURKEY

Its turkey time and you, Mrs. Homemaker, want to be careful to avoid the danger of food poisoning. So be sure to combine the ingredients for the stuffing just before roasting. Place the stuffing into the poultry neck and body cavities lightly so it will heat rapidly. Use oven temperature of 325 degrees for roasting. This will allow the stuffing to pass quickly through the temperature range from 50 to 120 degrees at which food poisoning organisms will grow and multiply if present. After the meal is served removed any leftover stuffing from the cavities immediately and refrigerate without delay.

CHILDREN

As soon as possible after a child's third birthday, you, Mother, should prepare him for a visit to a dentist. If parents show they are afraid to go to the dentist, the child will catch the feeling and be afraid, too. Try to make going to the dentist an interesting experience for your child. Help him feel that the dentist is the family's friend and avoid rewarding or punishing a child for the way he behaves at the dentist. He should be praised if he does well. However, he may need practice to do well during a visit to the dentist. Select the toothbrush and dentifrice your dentist recommends and see to it that your child brushes his teeth at night and in the morning and after meals whenever possible.

For the growth of good teeth, it is important that your child have a well balanced diet. Avoid excessive sweets.

A THOUGHT

If you cannot be thankful this Thanksgiving season for what you receive, then be thankful for what you have escaped.

Caulk House When Need Is Apparent

By AP NEWSFEATURES

There's an impression that caulking a house should always precede the painting of it.

Well, it's right.

But only as far as it goes.

Caulking a house should be done whenever it is necessary—which means before painting the exterior or even if painting is the farthest thing from your mind. Paint or no paint, small openings on the outside of your house can cause trouble. A gap no thicker than a quarter can result in leaks that damage walls, ceiling and furniture.

The simplest way to avoid this possible damage is to inspect the outside of your house twice a year, in the spring and in the fall. While a casual inspection is possible from the ground, especially in a one-story house, the only certain way is to get up on a ladder and do it. Only in this way can those tiny openings around windows and at the tops of door frames be spotted.

METHODS

While caulking compound can be applied with a putty knife, from a tube or with a professional-type caulking gun, the most popular method is with a small gun into which a cartridge is inserted. When you pull the trigger, the compound comes out of the cartridge with enough pressure to move well into an opening.

If you're painting the house or intend to paint the compound, use white or a light color.

Don't forget to clean out the gaps with a putty knife or old chisel before applying the new compound or loose bits of wood can interfere with proper adhesion. When the opening is very large, fill most of it with coarse hemp or oakum, then apply the compound.

Special qualities of caulking compound enable it to contract and expand in extreme temperatures, necessary at points where dissimilar house materials meet.

MYSTERY MEN COMBINE

LONDON (AP) — Two mystery men are going into collaboration to form a unique alliance in motion picture making.

One is the American mystery writer Cornel Woolrich, author of the book "Rendezvous in Black." The other is James P. Cavanagh, many - time winner of the Mystery Writers of America award.

Their collaboration—a screenplay by Cavanagh of Woolrich's book — will result in a film being made in England in the spring of 1966.

"I regard this the most exciting marriage of talents in years," said Jules Bricken who will produce the movie for Jules Buck and Peter O'Toole's Keep Films Ltd.

PLAYS MUTE PART

LONDON (AP)—Actress Rita Tushingham will travel by boat all the way to Canada to act in a movie in which she will speak not a word.

The talented British actress will star as an orphaned mute in "The Trap," first major budget coproduction feature financed by British and Canadian interests.

Her leading man will be Oliver Reed, one of this country's most sought after young actors.

Much of the filming will be in Vancouver.

Music Boosts Plant Growth

Does music have any effect on plant growth.

A botany professor in India grows plants in the sound of quaint Indian melodies and he says the results are noticeable.

At San Quentin Prison, Hal Ransey, instructor in horticulture, had inmates wire greenhouses with night - long music to promote better chrysanthemum growth.

Officials of the 32nd annual California Spring Garden Show compared results at the prison with growth of greenhouse mums at San Francisco City College without music. The prison music-grown plants averaged six inches taller and had more color.

A farmer who wired his corn fields to music reported an improved field.

(The corn, you might say, had a good ear for music!)

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Important decisions about film processing services and Super 8mm movie film in longer lengths affect the photo world in many directions from boosting amateur snapshooting to sparking the manufacture of new movie cameras of professional caliber.

Specifically, there is Kodak's recent but long - awaited decision to start mounting "half- (or "single-frame") transparencies and its announcement of Kodachrome II films in double rolls of 100 - foot lengths. These items warranted front - page billing in PTN, the Photographic Trade News industry publication, as well as enthusiasm among picture takers ranging from amateurs who are strong on small - format cameras to professional movie makers.

PROCESSING STARTED

Kodak's announcement reveals that half - frame mounting has started in all its processing labs throughout the country. Each transparency is placed in a 2 x 2-inch ready - mount with a picture aperture of 18 x 24mm unless the photographer specifies "Do Not Mount" with any roll of film sent in.

There is an added charge for this new service since twice as many pictures are obtained with half - frame cameras and therefore twice as many mountings are required, and greater precision in mounting is required because of the smaller image size.

The convenience of automatic Kodak mounting will undoubtedly accelerate the upward trend in half - frame shooting and stimulate the introduction of more half-frame cameras.

HAND IN HAND

The advent of the new Super 8mm format earlier this year with its 50 per cent added image size to each frame and the introduction of improved quality in the color films started a little revolution in the ranks of professional movie makers. If they could switch to Super 8 format, there could be savings in film and equipment costs.

So the announcement of new long - length Super 8 films and Pathe's introduction of a new Professional Reflex DS8 - BTL movie camera go hand in hand . . . the film is made for the camera and the camera is made for the film.

With Kodachrome II, daylight and Type A, in 100-foot double Super 8 spools, the movie maker can get 200 feet of movies per roll by shooting 100 feet and turning the film over to shoot another 100 feet. It's a practical film footage for professionals which the present 50-foot magazine for amateur use is not.

The Professional Reflex camera has a basic Angenieux 15-mm f-1.3 lens and a BTL ("Behind - The - Lens") exposure reading system of the actual light reaching the film plane. The camera will accept any "C" mount prime or zoom lens from extreme wide angle to extreme telephoto, has camera speeds from 8 to 80 frames - per - second, a variable shutter from 180 degrees to totally closed and a built - in rewind handle. It puts 8mm movie making on a professional pedestal.

Dallas Girls Planning Aid To Viet GI's

DALLAS (UPI) — Eixteen Dallas girls, who say the war in Viet Nam was brought close to home for them by a United Press International story, want to share their Christmas with the soldiers in the war zone.

The girls read a news story written by UPI Correspondent Joseph Galloway telling how an outnumbered American platoon was massacred in a 30-hour attack by the North Vietnamese. The girls called UPI and asked for help with their plans.

Kathy Huff, 21, who originated the idea, said she wanted Galloway to pick out a small squad of GI's serving on the front lines. She said her group planned to send cookies, cakes, candy, stationery, razor blades, raisins and books in a giant package to the soldiers.

Miss Huff said she and the other girls work the night shift masking instrument parts for painting at Texas Instruments Inc. She said she got approval from company officials for apparatus department employes to make many of the items.

LIKES THE BRASS

LONDON (AP) — Stanley Holloway is still working at the age of 75.

It's not because he's short of cash.

He has a country house in Buckinghamshire, and a long, black and highly expensive automobile (Rolls Royce).

Stanley's latest job is in "Thé Sandwich Man," being filmed at nearby Pinewood Studios.

"I haven't any hobbies," said Stanley explaining why he took the new work. "Besides, it's nice to feel wanted, and I never despise the brass (monkey) work brings in. Nobody who has been hard pushed in life despises money. Anyhow, work keeps me young. If I'd stop I'd die of boredom."

CURTAIN CALL

The box office at Strauss Playhouse opens Wednesday to take reservations by telephone or in person for "Everybody Loves Opal" the next Little Theatre production which makes its debut Friday. Thereafter performances will be given Saturday and Sunday, then again the following Thursday through Sunday. All will have the usual 8:15 p.m. curtain except the final Sunday, December 5, which will be a 2:30 matinee.

Box office hours will be 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. daily, except for Monday and Tuesday, November 29 and 30, when only mail orders will be processed. For the matinee, of course, the box office will run from 10:30 a.m. until curtain time.

RESERVATIONS

Once more we invite members to take advantage of the form they have already been sent to make advance reservations by mail. This is the best way to make sure of the performance and seat locations you prefer. We also remind members that Friday and Saturday nights fill up the fastest, whereas the Thursday and Sunday performances could benefit from greater demand. It would solve much of our attendance problem if reservations could be spread more evenly over all performances.

Headed by Marillyn Taylor in the title role, "Everybody Loves Opal" includes Marcia Mitchell, Bill Blythe, John Filhiol, Jack Easterling and Curtis Rape. The wacky comedy is about an ecentric recluse whose tumbledown shack near the town dump is invaded by three inept con artists who concoct a plot to murder her for her insurance. Opal's faith in human nature rises above all their machinations and in the course of some hilarious situations and dialogue, she converts them to a nobler life after a fashion.

TALENTS IN EVIDENCE

The bare bones of the plot give only a feeble idea of the absurdity of the farce that author John Patrick has spun for us. The talents he displayed in "The Teahouse of the August Moon" are much in evidence in "Opal." With Eileen Heckart in the lead and Stubby Kaye in the supporting cast, its life on Broadway was brief, but we suspect this was due to the unusual circumstances that sometimes cut short a good show, as its subsequent history in summer stock and community theatre amply demonstrates its audience appeal.

"Winnie-The-Pooh" entertained about 1,000 enthusiastic children — and some grown - ups too — in its four performances, as well as several hundred underprivileged youngsters who attended dress rehearsals in response to invitations to various local institutions. It will be followed during the week after Christmas by "Niccolo And Nicolette" also known as "The Puppet Prince," which ought to prove even more popular.

MUSICAL AUDITIONS

We plan to get off to a fast start with "How To Succeed In Business Without Really Trying," by holding auditions for the hit musical shortly after "Opal" closes, even though rehearsals will not begin until after the first of the year. Unlike "The King And I" and "The Sound of Music" which demanded superb voices, "How To Succeed" is more of a "Bye Bye Birdie" type show where a little of the vocal quality can be sacrificed, if necessary, in order to achieve the effect of a rousing, slambang, funny musical comedy.

There are leads and principal parts for about seven men and four women, plus as many as eight singers and dancers of each sex. While it is not a costume show as such, the costume chairman, Marianne Graser, is plotting some spectacular outfits for the girls. We have heard the "Courreges look" mentioned among other things. Anyone interested in participating in "How To Succeed" either in the cast or backstage should keep an eye out for the announcement of audition dates and definitely plan to attend.

BUT THEY'RE ROBOTS

LONDON (AP) — In the new movie, "Professor Goldfoot and the Bikini Machine," Vincent Price plays a mad professor who invents a machine that literally produces beautiful, bikini-clad robots.

The film also stars Frankie Avalon.

Sukarno Gives Newsmen Blasts For Positions

BOGOR, Indonesia (UPI)—President Sukarno vowed Saturday Indonesia's revolution would remain to the left and blasted both Indonesian and foreign newsmen for inflaming public sentiment.

His remarks were seen as criticism of the army which took over much of the nation's news media following the Communist-backed Oct. 1 coup attempt.

He made it clear his country would remain in Peking's orbit despite charges by the army that the Red Chinese had backed the coup.

Contrary to earlier speculation by some observers, Sukarno took no clear stand against the Indonesian Communist Party (PKI). He said only that Indonesia would remain to the left, "but left does not mean Communist."

Sukarno summoned newsmen to his summer palace to hear his speech. Then he went into closed session with more than 300 military commanders throughout the islands.

He said he would jail Indonesian newsmen and oust foreign correspondents who failed to tell the truth.

Sukarno used the entire hour of his speech to upbraid the domestic and foreign press and lecture reporters on the duties of the press to the Indonesian revolution.

Criminal Trials At Neurnberg Go Without Notice

NEURNBERG, Germany (UPI)—Twenty years ago Saturday the allied Nuernberg war crimes trials began. The anniversary passed almost unnoticed here.

The trial the Americans, British, Russians and French began Nov. 20, 1945 was unprecedented. Never before had victors indicated the leaders of the vanquished for starting a war and waging it in bestial fashion.

But few West Germans Saturday appeared to know of the date's significance or even to be willing to talk about the trial when reminded.

Of 12 passersby stopped on a Frankfurt street and asked if they knew when the allies brought the Nasi leadership to book, only three knew it was 20 years ago. None would say what he thought of the trial.

"What's that to me?" said a well-dressed businessman.

Why are so many Germans unwilling to remember or talk about the trial? Guenter Wickert, head of the Wickert Public Opinion Research Institute at Tuebingen, told UPI it was not because of guilt feelings.

"Twenty years of hard work and the prosperity they feel their work has earned make people simply unwilling to dredge up the unpleasant past. People are only human . . . older Germans feel, we've done our share, what's done is done . . . in those days I had no choice. Now let me live my life in peace," Wickert said.

Death Notices Taken To Widows By Taxis

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — The use of taxi drivers to deliver telegrams to wives of soldiers killed in Viet Nam has brought numerous complaints in this city which saw the 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division march from nearby Ft. Benning off to combat.

The 1st Cavalry, currently in action in the Ia Drang Valley, has suffered moderate to heavy casualties, about 60 of them from Columbus.

W.F. Howard, manager of the Western Union office here, says he has had complaints from citizens and friends of widows whose husbands were killed.

But Howard said the company is following instructions from the Department of the Army in its method of delivering telegrams. He added that the practice is not limited to Columbus.

An Army spokesman told the Columbus Ledger that official Department of the Army policy requires notification of next of kin of casualties "as rapidly as possible."

"We don't specify delivery in any special way," said the spokesman, "but our policy is to deliver it as rapidly as feasible." He said that the department was "following the desires of the great majority of people who want to know immediately" about relatives being wounded, missing or killed in action.

He said he had heard no criticism of methods of delivery. When the notification has been delayed, he said, "we have gotten criticism for that."

The Western Union official said taxis are used at night because the company does not have night messenger service.

He said the drivers who deliver the telegrams "are just like Western Union employes" and are sworn not to discuss the telegrams' contents.

Ben Walburn, managing editor of the Columbus Enquirer, said the newspaper has been receiving numerous letters and telephone calls complaining about the method of delivering the telegrams.

"Some of them said the cab drivers just ring the bell, hand over the telegram and leave," Walburn said. "A woman called me Friday night from the home of a young widow with three children who got her telegram at 1 o'clock in the morning."

Columbus is the home of Ft. Benning where hundreds of wives live alone or with their children while their husbands are overseas.

"A lot of them don't know anybody here," Walburn said. "They are just living here for a year or so to wait for their husbands."

He said many of the complaints are that someone should be notified when a soldier's wife learns she is a widow. Some citizens believe a minister should go along.

Howard said Western Union's instructions are "that we deliver the telegram and if the person shows an extreme reaction, the messenger, or whoever delivers, asks the person if he can call someone for help in any way." "If the addressee does not make a request, we leave."

The manager said he is aware of an offer by the Columbus Ministerial Alliance to aid in delivering the telegrams. He said, however, the Department of the Army "has made no contact witn the ministers."

Mississippians May Take Poverty Plans

JACKSON (UPI)—The Mississippi battlefield commander of the war on poverty believes the federal program's benefits will soon overshadow by far the controversy experienced to date.

Martin Fraley, longtime head of the State Pardon and Parole Board, knew he had an uphill fight when Gov. Paul Johnson named him to coordinate the anti-poverty program in Mississippi.

"It was a very unpopular program at first," Fraley said. "It's been slow getting started, but most people are getting over their fears."

Many officials from state level on down were skeptical of the poverty program. Feeling against the federal government has been high for years, and much of the public feared all the program would do was help further advance integration.

The first encounter with the program in the form of "Project Head Start" operations by the independent Child Development Group of Mississippi did little to calm fears. Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., and a number of newspapers kept up a running battle against CDGM, charging misuse of funds and subsidization of civil rights activity.

But Fraley is quick to point out that the dozen or more communities in which the program was operated by the local school system were generally pleased.

"I'm sold on Head Start," Fraley says. "In about 10 years it will begin to show its value. It is a fact that underprivileged children are not as ready for school as those from better backgrounds."

One problem has been getting independent Mississippi leaders to admit there is poverty — most had rather talk of progress than problems — and that the federal program could help.

Poverty program officials say the project was almost tailor-made for Mississippi, a state with great needs in literacy, educational, and job training work.

"All but a couple of counties are now in Community Action Committee territories," Fraley said.

Neighborhood Youth Corps programs are beginning to get off the ground in several communities.

"We've kept politics out of it," Fraley said. "If politics comes up, we knock it down. We're trying to remember the objective of the act — doing something for the poor."

"A big thing to watch is the STAR program," Fraley said. "It's going to be a model. Several other states, including Louisiana, are looking into it."

The STAR program is aimed at the more than 200,000 illiterates above the age of 21 in Mississippi. Under a $7 million grant, it will open 18 centers around the state for adult education, vocational training, job counseling and job placement.

One problem the program has encountered is the reluctance of responsible white leaders to come forward to work on poverty program committees.

Rise Of Water In Winn Salt Mine Is Seen

WINNFIELD (Special) — Carey Salt Mine plant manager J. M. Thornton said Saturday he expected water in the flooded mine to rise to within 90 feet of the top of the shaft.

The shaft is 811 feet deep. Water was continuing to rise slowly Saturday and had reached to within 329 feet of the surface.

The mine started flooding Thursday. S. B. Horrell of Hutchinson, Kan., vice president of Carey Salt Co., Saturday had been on the scene for two days.

Thornton said crude salt from other sources was on order to be shipped by rail. He said he hoped the mine would be back in production the latter part of this week.

No interruption in operations of a nearby rock quarry was anticipated.

Lay Conference

ALEXANDRIA (Special) — The Louisiana Conference Board of Lay Activities of the Methodist Church will meet Dec. 4-5 at the Holiday Inn at Alexandria, where a report on the "1000 Club," the layman's organization that helps build new churches, will be made by Herbert C. Moffett of Monroe.

Many other church laymen from throughout Louisiana will participate in the two-day conclave.

Police Here Solve Series Of Burglaries

The apprehension of a 12-year-old youth and the implication of three other juveniles Friday night cleared up a series of petty burglaries tht plagued Monroe police for over a month.

The youngster was caught in the office of Haddad's Cleaners at 609 N. 5th St., according to S. G. Martin, assistant chief of police. Martin said the youth admitted a string of six burglaries of the cleaning firm dating from Oct. 14 and implicated three other youths.

In each instance, Martin said, entrance was gained through an exhaust fan on the roof. The amounts taken ranged from $2 to $5.

In other action, Monroe police booked three persons with driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages. They were Joey R. White, 22, of New Orleans, apprehended on Louisville at 1:45 a.m.; Albert N. Landon, 40, of 607 Lamy Ln., Monroe, apprehended on Powell at 11:53 p.m.; and Betty L. Tibbit, 34, of 1509 Mississippi St., Monroe, apprehended on Louisville at 6:30 p.m.

Charged with DWI in West Monroe was Dayton E. McElduff, 26, of Choudrant, apprehended on Cypress at 11:34 p.m.

President Has Busy Ranch Day

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — Minding his doctors, President Johnson got in a lot of walking Saturday but kept tabs on a wide variety of matters, including a strike with implications for the Viet Nam war and the space program.

Through Jack Valenti, a presidential assistant, Johnson relayed word that he is "very hopeful that this dispute will be settled as soon as possible."

His reference was to the strike of machinists employed by the McDonnell Aircraft Corp., which makes warplanes for Viet Nam and spacecraft for the Gemini program.

But Valenti, who is filling in temporarily as press secretary, stressed that Johnson is not personally involved in the negotiations. He said these are being carried on by the Federal Mediation Service under director William E. Simkin in consultation with Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Valenti reported that Johnson talked by phone with Wirtz about the McDonnell strike and other labor matters.

A Monroe man, Henry Gilliland of 3507 Hippolite St., sales representative for Modern Methods Co., here, has won membership in the Century Club, an honor fraternity formed to recognize superior performance in selling.

Only the top salesmen throughout the nation earn places in this honor group, company officials announced.

HIGH EARNINGS

J. Ray McDermott and Co., Inc., worldwide contractor to the oil and gas industry, reported net earnings for the first six months were the highest for any first half period in the history of the company.

President Roger W. Wilson stated that the consolidated net income for the six-month period which ended on Sept. 30 amounted to $8,582,300 or $2.12 per share based on 4,052,616 shares as compared with earnings of $6,894,593 or $1.78 per share, based on 3,872,880 shares for the corresponding period of 1964, which also included a gain on sale of oil properties of $.30 per share.

COMPANY MOVES

Bill Huckabay, branch manager of Coastal Plains, Inc., Bearing Division, has announced that his company has moved from 508 North Third Street in Monroe to 1305 Natchitoches Street in West Monroe.

The bearing and power transmission supply company opened the branch in Monroe in March 1961.

Site of the new location is just off the Stella and Mill Street exit on I-20.

SALES INCREASE

Gordon Jewelry Corporation sales for the first two months of the current fiscal year were 22 per cent ahead of last year's all time high for the same period, reported Aron S. Gordon, executive vice-president.

"Based on the favorable economic conditions that prevail, we expect to have the best Christmas season in the company's history," Gordon said.

Indications Support NATO Nuclear Force

WASHINGTON (AP) — Support is reported growing in the Johnson administration for the United States to take a strong new lead next year to bring about creation of a North Atlantic Treaty Organization nuclear force despite French and Russian opposition and apparent British cooling off.

President Johnson is expected to make basic decisions on the U.S. policy line following consultations here in two weeks with West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard. The whole movement has been on dead center for a year so far as NATO is concerned. For several months the issue of a nuclear weapons force has been hotly disputed within the administration.

In recent weeks, however, Johnson has directed policy makers to move ahead with planning but is withholding final conclusions on the U.S. course pending the conference with Erhard and probably quick follow-up consultation with other chief European allies.

Erhard's view are considered of vital importance because essentially the proposed and disputed NATO nuclear force represents an effort to give Germany a hand in control and a voice in policy of the West's nuclear defenses.

With Britain, France and Russia as nuclear powers already, many U.S. officials are convinced that sooner or later Germany will have either its own national nuclear power or full partnership in some international system.

Johnson administration leaders are known to hope that Erhard will be in position to answer three basic questions with respect to his own government's policies:

1. What kind of nuclear weapons partnership system does Erhard consider necessary to assure future German status as a first-class power, considering that "the bomb" has become the symbol of standing for nations?

2. How quickly, in Erhard's view, does the NATO nuclear force problem have to be solved?

3. If the United States and Germany begin to press for a solution early next year will we be prepared to handle the pressures of political conflict with France and the Soviet Union — pressures which seem inevitable in view of their known positions?

Johnson shelved the whole problem last December so far as the United States is concerned primarily because of prospective elections in West Germany and France this year.

In Germany Erhard won a new lease on his political leadership. In France President Charles de Gaulle is considered certain of re-election next month.

Erhard is due here Dec. 3 for conferences with Johnson — either in Washington or at the President's ranch in Texas.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk, undersecretary George W. Ball and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara as well as White House adviser McGeorge Bundy reviewed the European situation among others in talks with Johnson in Texas two weeks ago. There are understood to have been other talks during the past week in Washington.

New uncertainty seems to have been introduced into the confused situation by Britain.

U.S. officials are becoming convinced from their contacts with British diplomats and officials that Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government is cooling off on the whole NATO nuclear weapons project for two reasons.

Strong elements of the British leadership are said to be less and less interested in taking Britain out of the nuclear weapons field as a national power. Secondly, Wilson and Foreign Minister Michael Stewart think some agreement with Russia may be possible on a treaty to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.

But Russia is against Germany's getting access to weapons even in a NATO collective system. Some British officials are said to believe that if the NATO project could be traded for a nuclear weapons nonproliferation agreement with Russia they would have a good bargain.

In this country there is some support inside the administration for the British view. There is also a reluctance to create any avoidable antagonisms in relations with De Gaulle.

The main force of argument in the State Department, known to be spearheaded by Ball, favors some kind of NATO collective system but no longer insists on a jointly owned and jointly manned nuclear missile navy — the so-called MLF plan.

Worst Week Over; U.S. Carries Load

SAIGON, South Vietn Nam (AP) — U.S. troops in South Viet Nam, who have just fought their bloodiest week of the war, are shouldering a larger burden than ever before in the fight against the Communists.

Nevertheless, South Vietnamese forces continue to bear the brunt of the fight and most of the casualties.

The war took on a new look last week as American and North Vietnamese troops battled for six successive days in the Ia Drang Valley of the central highlands. The spectacular fight — the first real confrontation between Hanoi and Washington — by far dominated the headlines and overshadowed military activity elsewhere in the country.

At the same time, however, Saigon's government forces were engaged in some of their toughest battles of the war from the northern coastal provinces to the Mekong River delta. While the North Vietnamese tangled with the Americans, the Viet Cong hit the South Vietnamese with fury.

In a flurry of bold actions, the Communists penetrated an airstrip, overran a district capital and assaulted a government position defended by Vietnamese marines only 12 miles from the heart of Saigon.

Reacting quickly, government troops caught up with the Viet Cong that infiltrated the airstrip, recaptured the district capital and repulsed the attack in the capital military district.

Though U.S. helicopters transported some of the troops, Americans played only advisory roles in the counterattacks.

There are now about 550,000 men in South Viet Nam's armed forces, more than three times the size of present U.S. troop strength, nearly 168,000.

The U.S. troops have been conducting about one-tenth as many battalion-sized and small unit actions as their Vietnamese allies according to the latest weekly statistical reports issued by U.S. military sources.

During the weekending Nov. 13, for example, there were 100 battalion-sized operations, of which 12 were initiated by U.S. troops. Of more than 21,000 smaller operations, nearly 2,000 were by Americans.

Some U.S. military sources say privately, however, that these statistics tell only part of the story. They note, for example, that during the first two weeks of November, small U.S. units made contact with the enemy 439 times compared with 190 times for the Vietnamese, although the government troops were in 10 times as many operations.

The growing involvement on the part of U.S. troops is clearly reflected in the mounting American casualties. In the first two weeks of November, U.S. troops suffered 617 casualties — dead, wounded and missing — compared with 1,017 government losses.

The two-week casualty toll was the highest on record for U.S. troops. Moreover, U.S. losses for the week ending Saturday, reflecting the fighting in the Ia Drang Valley, are expected to set a record for the most Americans killed or wounded in one week.

Mrs. Johnson Getting Ideas For Library

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Accompanied by an architect and officials of the University of Texas, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson inspected an insurance company, a factory and an urban renewal project Saturday.

On Friday, the First Lady had made another unannounced visit — to the Boston area, where she paid particular attention to architecture on the Harvard campus.

Mrs. Johnson has been gathering information and ideas for construction of the Lyndon B. Johnson Library at the University of Texas.

She flew to Hartford from Boston aboard a commercial airliner early in the afternoon and went first to Bloomfield, a suburb, where she was shown through the headquarters of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co.

A representative of the company said Mrs. Johnson seemed interested in the architecture and facilities in the building, and took a special interest in the carefully landscaped grounds.

The Connecticut General home office has been cited by national architectural groups.

The tour lasted about an hour and after it was over the First Lady expressed a desire to visit a factory directly across the street.

The visit to the Emhart Manufacturing Co. was arranged on the spot and Mrs. Johnson spent about half an hour touring the plant where bottle-making machines are produced.

She then was taken to downtown Hartford to visit Constitution Plaza.

Dennis Cooke has joined the sales force of Rivers Ford. He moved here about a year and a half ago from Natchez where he taught school. Dennis and his wife Frances are a musically talented team; he is director of the Monroe Civic Singers. As a Rivers Salesman, Dennis is quite enthusiastic about the '66 Ford, particularly the LTD and its Quiet Quality, and particularly about the Stereo Tape System available on all Fords. Dennis invites all his friends in to "Hear" the '66 Ford and to See why so many people are switching to the '66 Ford. He'll even show you how to do "The '66 Switch".

WANT-AD WONDERS Trade Mark

WANT AD
SAVES CITY

When an Air Force Base closed in Harlingen, Texas, 6,000 people left the area. The outlook for the city was bleak. The community leaders ran Want Ads in 22 papers telling readers about Harlingen's assets . . . a good climate for retirement and a lot of empty houses. After two years the homes were filled and the city recovered nearly all of its lost population.

Golden Years In Florida Sun End In Tragic Death Aboard Fiery Cruise Ship

EDITOR'S NOTE — When the cruise ship Yarmouth Castle died a fiery death in the Atlantic Ocean, she took with her 23 members of the Broward Senior Citizens Club. Here is the story of the group whose golden years in the Florida sun ended tragically — too soon.

By BEN FUNK

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The time of work and struggle was over. The golden years of carefree retirement in the warm Florida sun had begun, and they seemed to stretch out endlessly ahead.

They were members of the North Broward Senior Citizens Club. On the average, they were in the late 60s, but they still had a strong zest for life and the ability to be useful. They had the right to look forward to more of the good years.

Between parties and bridge and pinochle games, they gave much of their time to welfare work. They were active in politics, and even sent a lobbyist to Tallahassee to push some Florida legislation they figured was for the common good.

But on this day — Friday, Nov. 12 — they put their work aside. It was a beautiful, balmly day and they were going on a four-day cruise to Nassau in the Bahamas.

They gathered at the station 60 strong to board a chartered bus for Miami, and their eyes sparkled and they chatted excitedly with friends who had gathered to see them off.

Their ship was the Yarmouth Castle. She was an old lady of the sea, but she had a swimming pool, nice staterooms and boasted of her fine cuisine.

(The Yarmouth Castle sailed Friday at sundown and it couldn't have been a more perfect night for a cruise. The rays of a big orange moon glistened on the warm, placid surface of the sea. A few minutes later the cruise ship Bahama Star sailed, also bound for Nassau.)

Many of the club members had taken this same trip last year on the Yarmouth Castle. At the clubhouse where they gathered for cards and parties, they talked about it so much that the president, Loren Hicks, organized another one.

Sarah Crawford and her husband George, a retired toolmaker from Detroit, bought their tickets three months ahead of time. Sarah was happy and excited because it was to be her first boat trip. And friends were happy for them, because Sarah and George were the nicest people you could meet.

(Just ahead, Capt. Carl Brown of the Bahama Star noted a reddish-orange glow in the night and he thought that "a Cunard liner had come between us and the Castle. That's the Cunard color.")

Irving and Annette Rose didn't take the trip, because Annette had a premonition. Fred and Rose Woodward canceled out because Rose was limping after a foot operation and didn't want to be "the oddball of the party."

Some others — as if by a stroke of fate — switched plans at the last moment and stayed at home.

But nothing was going to keep Helen Eustace from going. Except for a trip back to Valley View, Pa., to visit a daughter, she hadn't been anywhere since she and her late husband, a retired guard for a detective agency, came to Florida in 1960. He died a year later.

Helen talked about the voyage with her neighbor, Mrs. David Milloy, as they tended their neat gardens and wanted her to go, too. But Mr. Milloy's mother was coming from Canada for a visit. The Milloys offered to take care of Helen's cute little Pomeranian dog, Taffy.

(The Star was coming up on the Castle and suddenly Brown realized that the glow was coming from the Castle herself. It was the reflection of fire off her stack.)

Peter Reich had his fill of ships in the Navy in World War I and when his French war bride, Georgette, suggested they make the trip, he took a dim view of it.

"I don't want to go on that ship any more than I want to fly to the moon," Reich told his friend, Louis Neher, when they met at the American Legion Post 142 clubhouse on Veterans' Day. A barbecue and dance was scheduled for Saturday at the post and Reich wanted to go to that.

But the vivacious Georgette, who still had her French accent, argued, "Come on, Peter, we've got a nice stateroom and we can live it up."

Neher, now convinced, and his wife, Margaret, tried to talk the Russ Wetzlers into going. With the group rate, he said, it was a bargain. But Wetzler laughed: "I wouldn't go if it cost only $10."

Everybody liked the Nehers. Louis, a retired New York City policeman, was a swell guy and a jolly fellow who always had a fresh joke when you met him. He and Margaret were people who loved life.

At the Milloy's home, the little dog, Taffy, refused to eat her dinner.

(The evening's social activities ended on the Castle at 1 a.m. and as Margaret Masters, hostess for the club group, walked back to her stateroom, an orange light flickered through the louvered bottom of a door to a storage room.

("Oh, my God," she cried, "something's on fire!")

Besides the Reichs and the Nehers, two other couples from Post 142 signed up for the trip — the Crawfords and Bill and Elsie Burleigh.

The four couples were all hard workers for the post, the wives in the auxiliary's child welfare program. Commander Walter Sargis admired them as patriotic and dedicated Americans.

(In the nightmares of sailors, nothing matches the horror of fire at sea.

(Hot, acrid smoke filled the corridors and the ship rang with the screams of the burned and the dying. Men and women, stumbling out of sleep, opened cabin doors and were driven back by flames. Dazed passengers in night clothes groped blindly through the smoke.

(They had awakened to find the Castle already wrapped in a holocaust.)

In the case of the Burleighs, it was Bill who wanted to go. Elsie was a little worried about seasickness, but she went for Bill's ickness, but she went for Bill's sake. Bill, a bricklayer back in Fort Dearborn, Mich., now was chaplain of Post 142.

The Burleighs asked a neighbor, Elsie Dooley, to go along, but her house needed painting and she wanted to use the money for that.

Herman Pollock, who had retired from a business in Philadelphia, and his wife Minnie had taken the trip last year and had a wonderful time, so they decided to go again. Herman wanted to take a trip to Jamaica, too.

(The Star was alongside the Castle now and she was ablaze from bow to stern. Brown cringed at the sounds of windows and doors being smashed, and the sad cries coming from the doomed ship.

("Slide down the ropes or jump over the side!" he called to the dazed and shocked people on the rail. He dispatched the Star's lifeboats and crewmen began to lift the struggling survivors out of the water.)

Like all the rest, Bill and Agnes Hill came to Florida because the warm climate is kind to bones growing old. Soon after they arrived from New York City, where he had worked as a machinist, Bill began to feel better. He cut down on his medicine and his appetite improved.

Bill had steered clear of boats since the first world war, when he rode a troopship to France. He could just look at the water and get seasick. But when the new friends asked the Hills to go along on the boat trip, they agreed.

Glenn Musson, who had operated a plumbing and electrical business at Akron, Ohio, had just returned from a trip back home and after a bout with pneumonia he hadn't got his strength back. So his wife, Gayle, went with a friend, Wanda Gang.

Glenn offered to take care of the Hills' parakeet while they were gone.

(Gayle Musson usually took a sleeping pill. Perhaps she died of asphyxiation in her sleep, and never awoke to the terror around her.

(The Castle rolled over on her side and when she slipped beneath the surface, Brown said, "she made a sound like someone wailing. It was like the sad sound the wind sometimes makes when it moans in the rig of a sailing ship.")

The awful news came and a pall of gloom fell over the retirement community. Through long, agonizing hours, the club members who stayed home huddled over radio and television sets.

Some loved ones were reported missing, only to turn up safe somewhere. Others were said to have survived, but were found to have been lost, after all.

Mrs. Dooley wept over the loss of her dear friends. "When one goes," she cried, "it's bad enough — but so many! Loren Hicks is almost going crazy."

It was reported at first that the Burleighs were safe.

"Bill was a big, strapping fellow and he wouldn't have any trouble getting off that ship," Mrs. Dooley said. "But Elsie was having trouble with her legs and when we heard that she had survived, we thanked God for a miracle."

But the Burleighs were not safe. They will not return.

(In Nassau's Princess Margaret Hospital, a surviving club member, Mrs. Lee Mulhaney, lay badly burned after her rescue by the Star. She received a telegram from her daughter in St. Louis and it was read to her.

("Tell her," Mrs. Mulhaney sobbed, "that all my clothes are gone — all the pretty new clothes for the trip.")

At last, the whole truth was known. Of the 60 club members, only 37 would come back. Twenty-three had gone with the Yarmouth Castle to her death. Three others will return bearing the scars of their burns.

The Crawfords, Helen Eustace, Georgette Reich, the Nehers, the Burleighs, the Pollocks, the Hills, Gayle Musson — none would ever return to the pastel-colored homes in the sun.

Neither would Bill and Helen Hier, George and Catherine Keen, Charles and Salle Vincent, Andy and Frances Best, Joseph and Florence Wright.

(Of the four couples from Post 142, only Peter Reich was alive. He lay in a hospital, wrapped in bandages from head to foot that hid the cruel burns.

(As each friend walked into his room, Peter's first words were: "Georgette's gone!")

The golden years were ended — too soon.

Beatification Of Popes May Be Difficult

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—A high Vatican official warned Saturday the beatification of the late Popes Pius XII and John XXIII "will not come quickly."

Father Ferdinando Antonelli, secretary of the Vatican's Sacred Congregation of Rites which handles matters of beatification and canonization, warned in an article for "Osservatore Romano" that "the desired conclusion of the two causes will not come quickly."

He pointed out that Pope Paul VI himself, in announcing the start of the process for his two predecessors, said "It cannot come quickly."

Father Antonelli said in the article that since the day of their deaths the Sacred Congregation has received letters and pleas for the start of the beatification process for the two pontiffs "from every part of the world."

"Requests of this type have been received in the past for other servants of God, but never in such a vast number or from so many different areas."

Father Antonelli pointed out that the investigations involved are "numerous and lengthy" and must be carried out with care.

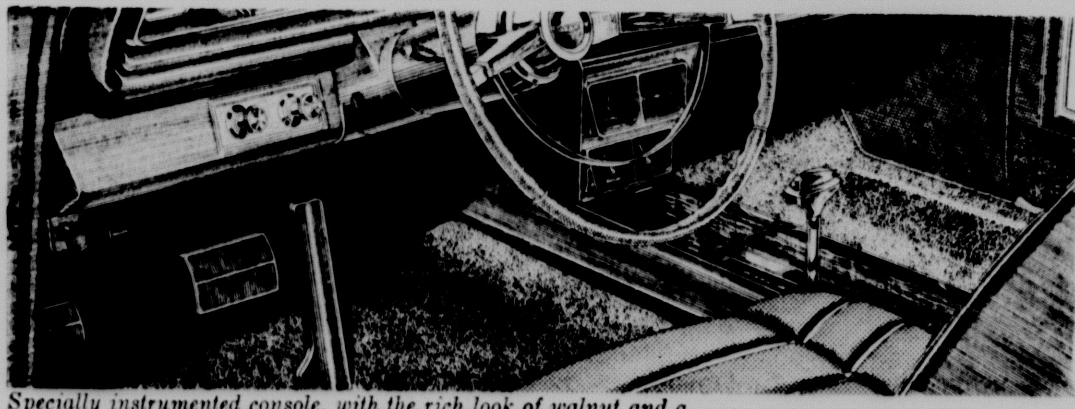
NOW! '66
CAPRICE
BY CHEVROLET

'66 Caprice Custom Coupe—with formal roof line that comes on no other car

A whole new series of elegant Chevrolets with a whole new choice of features even some of the most expensive makes don't offer



Specially instrumented console, with the rich look of walnut and a carpeted storage locker, is available for the Custom Coupe

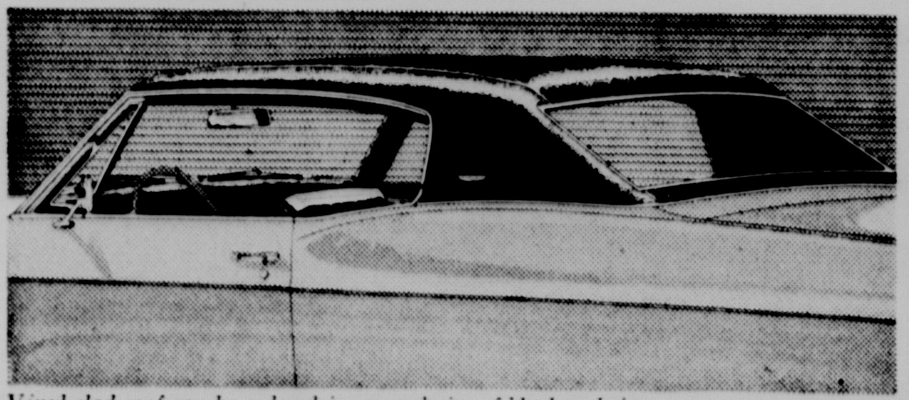
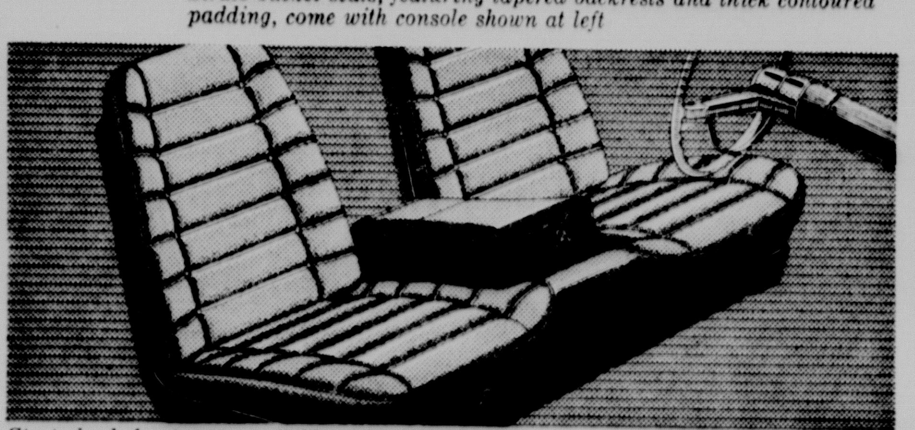
New Turbo-Jet V8's are available in all four models with up to 425 hp



Vinyl-clad roof can be ordered in your choice of black or beige to grace either the Custom Coupe or Sedan.



Strato-back front seat, available in Custom Coupe and Sedan, has bucket-like contours and center armrest that folds up for third person

New Standard Safety and Convenience Features

• Seat belts, front and rear • Padded instrument panel and sun visors • Outside rearview mirror (always use it before passing) • Shatter-resistant inside rearview mirror • Windshield washers • Two-speed electric wipers for better visibility in heavy rain or snow • Back-up lights

Plus all these you can add

• Traffic Hazard Warning System (flashes both front and rear turn signals as a warning in emergencies) • Automatic Speed and Cruise Control (helps you stay within speed limits) • Rear-window defroster • Positraction rear axle (for better traction in snow, mud, sand)

All told there are 200 ways you can pile luxury upon luxury in the '66 Caprice. And that includes creature comforts like FM stereo and front-seat headrests.

But the beauty of it is that a Caprice, before you add the first extra, is luxurious above and beyond any other Chevrolet you've seen—and many a more expensive make, too.

There are four Caprices for '66. Two Custom Wagons that have the look of fine woodwork inside, as well as on body sides and tailgates. And a Custom Coupe and Sedan with the look of burnished walnut and the comfort of deeply quilted upholstery in their Body by Fisher interiors. Throughout the series, the attention lavished on detail is evident in every way—right down to the gentleness of the ride that comes from giving each body style its own specially tailored set of Full Coil springs.

If you're ready to move up, your timing couldn't be better. Because your Chevrolet dealer is now ready to move you up about as far as you could want to go.

BLONDIE-- WHERE ARE YOU? WHY AREN'T YOU IN BED?
OH, DAGWOOD, I HAD THE MOST HORRIBLE NIGHTMARE... I COULDN'T GET BACK TO SLEEP!
I DREAMED I WAS DOWNTOWN SHOPPING WITH A THOUSAND DOLLARS CASH AND ALL THE STORES WERE CLOSED
THINK OF IT.. A THOUSAND DOLLARS CASH IN MY PURSE AND ALL THE STORES CLOSED!
OH, BOO-HOO.. THAT'S ABOUT THE WORST THING THAT COULD HAPPEN TO A WOMAN
YOU MEAN YOU WERE GOING TO SPEND ALL THAT MONEY SHOPPING?
YES, DEAR
THAT MONEY SHOULD'VE BEEN USED FOR THE CHILDREN'S COLLEGE EDUCATION OR A NEW HOME OR...
BUT, DAGWOOD IT WAS JUST A DREAM
I DON'T CARE..IT'S THE PRINCIPLE OF THE THING
WHAT'S THE EXCITEMENT?
MAMA, DADDY.. WHAT'S GOING ON DOWN THERE?

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Words cannot possibly tell you how grateful I am to the woman who told us how to make nylon net tablecloths!

Home again, home again, jig-a-de-jig . . .

Many of us have those old, round dining room tables in our homes, and proper-size tablecloths are very hard to find.

As your precious net is 72 inches wide, I had to buy only two yards of it, cut out a circle, stitch some nylon lace around the edge and, presto, for less than a dollar, I have a perfect tablecloth for parties.

I left the center of the net tablecloth plain and I use it over a worn cutwork cloth. The net hides all the worn spots in my old tablecloth, and makes the table look so festive.

Catharine

* * *

Gals, I almost did a jig, too, when I read this one, especially with Thanksgiving this week.

You could also make an oblong cloth to cover your table when you add the extra leaves. And who in the world can find an oblong tablecloth of the proper length?

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

TASTY DUMPLINGS

DEAR HELOISE:

I wonder if you know that you can use ready-prepared biscuit mix to make dumplings.

Put two cups of biscuit mix in a bowl, add one teaspoon of poultry seasoning to the flour mixture, and mix well. Then add three-fourths cup of milk and mix with a fork.

Drop this, by spoonfuls, on top of chicken or turkey broth.

Cook two minutes uncovered and ten minutes covered, and you'll have luscious-tasting dumplings that are out of this world.

Drue S.

* * *

I tried it. And they are out of this world.

I also learned that you could use celery salt and onion salt in this ready-prepared biscuit mix before adding the milk, and it was even better.

Heloise

TURKEY STUFFING

DEAR HELOISE:

So many women go through the trouble of sewing up a turkey after filling it with stuffing.

The simplest way is to place a washed whole apple right in the opening of the bird after it has been filled!

The apple flavor does not go into the filling, and it's so easy. Do try it.

Rita A. I.

KEEP IT CLEAN

DEAR HELOISE:

When cleaning up after a big holiday meal, I put a paper plate in the bottom of my garbage can and this saves those awful washings when something drips . . .

The paper plate does not have to be absolutely clean. After you use one for lunch, put it on the bottom of the empty can.

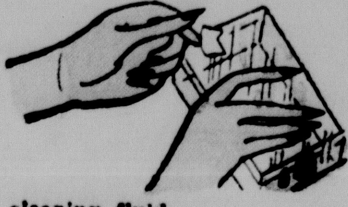
Oh, how much energy this has saved when it comes time to wash those things!

Mathilda

STICKY PROBLEM

DEAR HELOISE:

I find that the sticky stuff left on objects from labels can be easily removed with a safe cleaning fluid.



I suggest that plastic objects be washed after using the cleaning fluid, since some are subject to pitting.

Ellene Hoffman

THANKSGIVING CANDLES

DEAR HELOISE:

If you are short of holiday candles, try this trick I learned.

I had a very crooked candle . . . so this morning I put some fairly warm water in my sink and then put the candle in it until it was soft.

As soon as the candle became pliable, I removed it from the warm water and straightened it by rolling it across my drainboard as if I were using a rolling pin.

After it was cool, I put it in the refrigerator for a while. It was then straight and ready for use again.

Mary Carlson

11-21

If you have a hint, problem or suggestion you'd like to share . . . write to Heloise in care of this newspaper.

[illegible] FRYING

DEAR HELOISE:

I discovered when frying bacon that if I sprinkle a pinch of flour into the frying pan just as the fat begins to melt . . . it will prevent the grease from popping.

As you continue to fry additional bacon strips, you must place more pinches of flour in the fat.

It's the best way I've ever found to fry bacon. Try it.

Millie Totina

* * *

I did. It does. And you are tops.

Heloise

CAST-IRON POTS

DEAR HELOISE:

To prepare an iron stew kettle or skillet for use, grease the inside with pork lard or any unsalted fat. Then bake in the oven at 300 to 350 degrees for one hour.

Wash it in soapy, hot water. Scald with clear, boiling water, dry well and reheat for a few minutes. Your pan or skillet is now ready for use.

Mrs. R. M. F.

* * *

After washing any cast-iron pot, it must be reheated a few minutes or so to prevent rust.

Heloise

WAX THE [illegible]

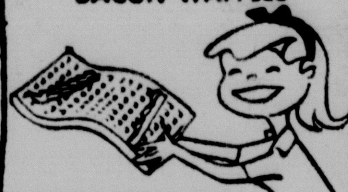
DEAR HELOISE:

To prevent sticky film from forming on the outside of my bottle of cooking oil, I remove the label and wax the bottle, when new, with either a floor wax or furniture polish.

After each use, I wipe any drippings with a facial tissue or paper towel. Sure keeps my bottle of oil nice and clean.

A. B.

BACON WAFFLES



DEAR HELOISE:

To make perfectly delicious waffles, cut a strip of bacon in half lengthwise and place one of the halves on each side of the griddle. Fry until almost done. Then cover the partially-cooked bacon with batter.

Your waffles will never stick, and the bacon will be cooked nice and crisp into your waffles.

"A MAN SHOULD NEVER PUT ON HIS BEST TROUSERS WHEN HE GOES OUT TO BATTLE FOR FREEDOM AND TRUTH." — HENRIK IBSEN.
I THOUGHT FEUDS WERE ALL OVER YEARS AGO! WHY DO YOU FOLKS AND TH' WEEVILS, OVER IN WITCH HOLLER, HATE EACH OTHER SO?
OH, THE OLD FEUDS HAVE JEST ABOUT DIED OUT!
ONLY HATES LIKE OUR'N ARE LIKE A DEEP FIRE, THET SEEMS DAID, 'TIL A SPAHK SUDDENLY SETS 'ER OFF AGIN, LIKE A CRAZY VOLCANO!
BUT DIDN'T YOUR FOLKS AND THEIR FOLKS SETTLE HERE WAY BACK 'BOUT TH' SAME TIME?
SHORE! EARLY SIXTEEN HUNDREDS! BUT WE WAS DIF'RENT! FACT IS, WE AN' THEY FIT EACH OTHER PRETTY STEADY FROM TH' BEGINNIN'!
BUT WITH TH' INJUNS AND TH' REV'LUTION; WAR O' 1812 AN' TH' WAR B'TWEEN TH' STATES!
WASN'T THERE ENOUGH 'SOLDIERIN' T'BE DONE WITHOUT FIGHTIN' WITH YOUR OWN NEIGHBORS?
FROM TH' BEGINNIN', ANNIE, TH' APTS AN' LEES HAS SERVED OUR LAND AS SOLDIERS IN EVERY WAH!
FROM TH' BEGINNIN', UP TO NOW, IN EVERY WAH TH' WEEVILS HAS BEEN BUSHWHACKERS, PREYIN' ON' TH' WOMEN AN' CHILDREN AN' OLD MEN OUAH SOLDIERS LEFT BEHIND; LOOTIN' AN' BURNIN' AN' DESTROYIN'!
EVERY TIME, WHEN OUAH SOLDIERS CAME HOME, THEY THINNED OUT TH' WEEVILS A RIGHT SMART! BUT LIKE SNAKES, LEFT ALONE, THEY MULTIPLY! YES, AN' LIKE RATTLERS, THEY NEVAH CHANGE!
GEE! CAN'T ANYTHING BE DONE ABOUT THAT KIND OF PEOPLE?
NOPE! WITH OUAH FIRM BELIEFS IN CHARITY AND TH' RIGHT FOR ALL TO LIVE, WISE OR IGNORANT, AS THEY PLEASE, WE KIN ONLY DEFEND OUAHSELVES WHEN THEY ATTACK; AND SOME CALL EVEN THAT A SINFUL THING!
AH CAIN'T BLAME A MAN LIKE SLASHER FER BEIN' TH' WAY HE IS! ALL HIS FOREBEARS FER HUNDREDS O' YEAHS HAS BEEN TH' SAME, LIKE A MAN-EATIN' TIGER! AND EFFEN HE MOVES AGIN ME, OR THEM DEAH T'ME, TH' SAME AS ONE DOES FER A TIGER, AH'LL HAVE T'KILL 'M!
WELL, WELL, QUITE A SPEECH BY SHERIFF EL APT! BUT LET'S CHECK IN ON MATTERS IN "WITCH HOLLER"!
SLASHER'S BEEN A'THINKIN' FER NIGH ONTO A WEEK! SEEMS HE'S JEST COME TO A CONCLUSION!
SHORE 'PEARS AS HOW!
YEP, BOYS, AH GOT IT! GIT THEM JUGS A'COMIN, WOMAN! Y'HEAH ME?
AH DECIDED, BOYS! JEST SHOOTIN' EL APT IS TOO EASY FER HIM! AH AIM TO SUFFER HIM! HOW? Y'KNOWS THET !!! FANCY LEE WOMAN HE'S MARRIED UP WITH! S'POSIN' SOMETHIN' HORRIBLE HAPPENED T'HER, EH?
YEAH!
Y'SHORE THINK MEAN, SLASH!
